Reds Rap Plan

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW—Prime Minister Harold Wilson may be unable to carry out his plan for a Commonwealth peace mission on Viet Nam, Tass said today.

The official Soviet news agency, in a dispatch from London, said the mission "is beginning to take an unpleasant and unforeseen turn for London," as other Commonwealth premiers criticize the idea.

"One gets the impression," Tass said, "that the British government does not want to wash its dirty linen in public and is striving to soft-pedal the discussion of the question concerning the expediency of sending such a mission."

'SHOW THE CRITICS'

The Soviet press and radio earlier attacked the plan. Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the mission was setting out without first branding the United States as an aggressor. It said it was a "manoeuvre intended to show the critics of British policy that London is concerned about peace."

China remained officially silent on the proposed peace mission today, but newspapers in Peking featured attacks on the "peace hoax" of Americans and those who supported Viet Nam talks.

Navy Fails To Lasso TNT Vessel

Drifting South Off Wash.

By RON SUDLOW

Battling mountainous seas and howling winds, two naval craft today failed to secure a line to the abandoned Laymore, carrying 149 tons of obsolete naval ammunition.

Standing by to ward off approaching merchant vessels and fishing craft were HMCS MacKenzie and naval auxiliary vessel Clifton.

HMCS Stettler took cover Friday night in Barkley Sound.

The vessels, at press time, were hove to off the Washington coast 60 miles south of Cape Flattery and 30 miles from land.

Commander H. J. Wade of Mackenzie said they were battling northwest winds and an increasing waves.

"It looks like no tow connection can be made today," he radioed.

The Clifton, which rescued the Laymore's 17-man crew from 70 mph gales and 30-foot waves Thursday evening left Victoria Friday night.

RETURNS FOR REPAIRS

She replaced the navy's ocean-going tug Heatherton which arrived at Esquimalt at 8 a.m. today for repairs to a generator which actuates her towing winch.

Capt. Bob Hooper of the towboat said weather conditions when they left the Laymore were "pretty well the same as Friday."

Winds were steady at 45 mph and gusting and 25-30-foot waves still pounded the vessels.

50-DEGREE PITCH

"Laymore was still pitching 40 to 50 degrees to either side when we left," he said.

Heatherton crept as close as 200 feet to the powerless, rudderless munitions vessel Friday and also sighted the fluorescent orange life raft used by her crew for four hours Thursday.

And Capt. Hooper today confirmed reports ammunition lashed to Laymore's decks had broken loose during the storm and was washed overboard.

DRIFTING SOUTH

By press time, Laymore had drifted 85 miles south of where she was abandoned because ammunition in the cargo hold shifted.

The ship is drifting against a northwest wind.

"During her drift she has crossed the approaches to most of the shipping lanes into the Strait of Juan de Fuca," Capt. Hooper added.

'NOT A MENACE'

But she is not considered a menace to shipping because navy vessels are standing by, transport department and U.S. Coast Guard officials said at noon.

ARMY COUP

Algerian President Ousted

ALGIERS — An army-backed coup carried out before dawn today ousted President Ahmed Ben Bella, 48, as a "diabolical dictator." By nightfall a revolutionary council that took over power was reported to be preparing charges of high treason against him.

Emerging as the strong man of the council, and signing its first declaration, was Col. Houari Boumedienne, vice-premier and defence minister.

The declaration said Ben Bella would "meet the fate of all despots." Besides treason, it accused him of abuse of personal power."

TROOPS PATROL STREETS

Most tanks which clattered into position before dawn had been withdrawn, although a few stood sentry outside some buildings. Troops units armed with sub-machine guns patrolled the streets.

COL. BOUMEDIENNE
. . . new strongman

The city was quiet and Algerians sat at sidewalk bistros sipping drinks. A few muttered dislike for Boumedienne and some said he had engineered the coup because of disagreement with Ben Bella on domestic matters.

Boumedienne, 40, an officer who had been associated with Ben Bella since the early days of Algeria's fight for independence, was said to have been trained either in Peking or Moscow. But The Associated Press reported one responsible source said Boumedienne "is definitely not pro-Chinese."

ADMIRES CASTRO

Diplomatic sources in Madrid said they had been informed the coup was accomplished by rightists within the Algerian armed forces. But Boumedienne is said to be an admirer of Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba and visited Havana last July.

Reuters news agency said Boumedienne, an ascetic, fervent Moslem, always has regarded the army as the core of a socialist society in his country.

A statement signed by Boumedienne and read over the radio said all power had been taken from Ben Bella. It added that Algeria would continue to honor all previous agreements and commitments with other countries.

PLEDGES FRIENDSHIP

Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika said in a statement that Algeria's foreign policy is non-alignment and friendship with all nations.

Blank Shot Proves Hot —24 Hurt

GLADEWATER, Tex. (AP)—A rodeo clown firing what was supposed to be a blank charge peppered spectators with bird shot Friday night, wounding 24 persons and creating pandemonium.

Investigators said it obviously was an accident but they had not determined early today how a live shell got into the shotgun.

Of the wounded, 11 adults remained in hospitals overnight but attendants said none suffered serious injury. The others were dismissed after emergency treatment.

Police said the clown, Ken Arthur Boen, 41, of Fort Smith, Ark., told questioners he noticed before the performance that his box of blank shells was nearly empty, and he would need to buy more.

Sheriff Doyle Johnson filed a charge of assault with a prohibited weapon against Boen. The clown was not in custody.

Father Held Knife Against Infant Son

A young man kept police at bay for 30 minutes this morning by threatening to use a knife on his five-months-old son if police made a move to get him.

Anthony Soulsby, 1142 Caledonia, was finally talked into coming out of his house.

He pleaded guilty in city court this morning to possession of an offensive weapon—a carving knife with an eight-inch blade.

Soulsby was remanded to next Saturday for a psychiatric report and sentence.

Constable Ken Horsman said he went to Soulsby's home at 1:50 this morning and found Mrs. Soulsby standing outside. She told him there had been a domestic quarrel and her husband was inside the house with their child.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby stood behind the glass door of his house and threatened police "If you try to enter I'll use this knife on the child and then myself."

The officer talked with Soulsby for 30 minutes before he let police inside. He stood behind the door holding the child in one arm and the knife in his other hand all the while he talked.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby had been drinking but was not intoxicated. The child was unharmed.

Magistrate J. A. Byers asked Soulsby for an explanation of his conduct.

Soulsby replied, "I just lose my temper and get like that. I wouldn't harm the child."

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Soulsby had a conviction for breaking and entering five years ago and also for impaired driving.

'Restrain War' Plea By PMs

LONDON (Reuters) — The Commonwealth peace mission tonight appealed to the warring factions in Viet Nam for "the utmost restraint in military operations" as a step toward an early ceasefire.

The appeal came in a statement from the British prime minister's official country residence, Chequers, from the four members of the mission—Prime Minister Wilson, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, and Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago.

Wilson launched his peace mission plan in the first major session of the current 21-nation Commonwealth prime ministers' conference Thursday.

The statement said the mission's function was to explore the circumstances in which a conference must be held to end the Vietnamese fighting.

SEEK GOOD CONDITIONS

"Meanwhile, in order to create the conditions in which the mission can carry through its work, the mission is appealing to all parties concerned to show the utmost restraint in military operations as a step toward a total ceasefire which the mission hopes will be established at the earliest possible opportunity."

It added the mission hoped to meet all the parties concerned in the Vietnamese dispute.

Conference sources said the mission was willing to meet the Viet Nam National Liberation Front (NLF), the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, as part of a North Vietnamese delegation.

In the past both Britain and the United States refused to have any kind of discussions with the Viet Cong.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Wilson mounted a weekend battle to avert collapse of his peace mission plan.

As the Commonwealth conference went into a weekend recess, Wilson received his colleagues in groups at Chequers.

The visits provided Wilson with an opportunity for talks to convince the Commonwealth leaders to close ranks in support of the peace-seeking mission.

A spokesman said Canadian Prime Minister Pearson, travelling to the country homes of Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart during the weekend, is exerting all efforts to reassure African and Asian critics of the mission's value, though some countries still demanded that Wilson step down as mission chairman.

Some Might Rather Be Dead Than Bled

OTTAWA (CP)—If nuclear bombs ever fall on Canada, the survivors may have to pay higher taxes.

A new cabinet order outlining responsibilities of government departments in event of nuclear attack instructs the finance department to "advise cabinet respecting the imposition of emergency taxes."

The justice department, among other things, would assist "in the identification of persons unable to identify themselves."

The labor department in a "national emergency government" would control and allocate all civilian manpower and set wage rates.

The defence production department would set price controls, the works department rent controls.

Defence production also would control all industrial production and regulate internal and external trade.

The post office would distribute emergency change of address cards.

COLORADO HIT

Flood Flips Car, Five People Lost

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—With Colorado still bearing most of the brunt, muddy cloudburst-fed rivers and streams spread damage through vast portions of the Rocky Mountain states and part of the southwest today.

Seventeen persons are known to have died in the flooding or for reasons directly attributable to floods. Unconfirmed reports in Colorado indicate that at least 11 other persons are missing in flooded parts of the state.

One such report said five members of the Manuel Guajardo family were swept away when waters overturned their car near Lamar. Guajardo, 36, the sole survivor, is a beet worker.

At La Junta, in the southeast part of Colorado, where the Arkansas River has made a virtual lake of the town for the last two days, 1,500 persons have received emergency vaccinations.

PREPARE FOR WORST

Officials in Las Animas, which lies in the conflux of the Arkansas and the Purgatoire Rivers, are prepared for the worst. The Arkansas has already inundated Lamar and Holly and the Purgatoire was reported to be moving rapidly toward the juncture.

Gov. John A. Love of Colorado issued an appeal to all persons in the Arkansas Valley to evacuate the lowlands. State civil defence officials said two emergency air deliveries dropped food for some 1,000 persons in shelters at Lamar.

Art student Marilyn Strouts vows this is true.

Miss Strouts was sketching sea life in Charlie White's Undersea Gardens last week when a group of tourists happened by. The tourists observed the fish through the undersea windows.

"I say," said one tourist, "do they have to open these windows every time they feed the fish?"

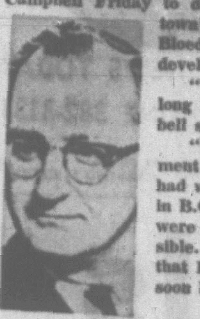
Got a telephone call from Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Friday to deny irately that he made his "shack town" speech after he knew MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River were planning to develop Kelsey Bay.



Campbell

"The speech was made in 1962 or 1963, long before I became minister," Mr. Campbell said.

"I was informed about proposed development at Kelsey Bay in June, 1964—after I had written to all the big logging companies in B.C. asking what their development plans were in areas where sustained yield was possible. Regard this as a categorical denial that I made the speech knowing they would soon be announcing their plans."

Mrs. Dorothy Hewitt White of 86 Kingham Place had an unusual reunion with Baroness Summerskill of Ken Wood, London, after the baroness addressed a public meeting in the McPherson Theatre last week.

Years ago in England, the baroness (then Dr. Edith Summerskill) treated her son Godfrey when he was taken seriously ill at Wood Green, North London.

"Dr. Summerskill, who was then practising in the district, was called to the house," Mrs. White recalled.

"She attended Godfrey for some weeks, finally restoring him, though he remained a sickly child while still in England."

Godfrey White is now a senior pilot with Canadian Pacific Airlines, flying between Canada, Rome and Amsterdam. He is also an accomplished bellringer.

"Baroness Summerskill was delighted to see me again," Mrs. White said. "She remembered his illness and I showed her pictures of him as he is today, with his wife and their four-year-old daughter Jennifer."

After many years as a general practitioner, Dr. Summerskill became minister of health in the Attlee Labor government.

Wonder what the Quebec delegates attending the annual meeting of the Certified General Accountants' Association thought of Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi when he addressed them Friday?

In fine fettle Mr. Gaglardi rattled off this pearl: "We in British Columbia are 100 per cent Canadian. In fact we lent Quebec $100 million. What if Quebec doesn't pay us back? Why we'll just take over Quebec and build a highway to cement the marriage. Canada will be welded together as never before."

Those of us who live here get used to such humor. Just hope our guests understood.

in Seattle, is keeping Laymore under surveillance with fisheries patrol aircraft.

The Laymore is drifting towards shore at an average rate of five miles per day, a navy spokesman told The Times.

He said it would be "unlikely" the ammo-carrying vessel would get too close to shore before a towline could be secured to her.

"But in the unlikely event the weather changes and she is swept toward the coast, the navy will do what is necessary," he said. He would not confirm reports this would mean deliberately sinking the disabled ship.

When the tow is completed, Laymore will be taken direct to Rocky Point magazine where she left Wednesday under tow with her cargo of explosives.

DECK CARGO

"If part of the cargo has broken loose, then we will have to unload the whole works," the spokesman said.

Then it will be re-loaded and the Laymore will continue on her ammunition-dumping mission.

Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, flagofficer Pacific coast, has asked for detailed reports of the incident from the Queen's Harbormaster and masters of the vessels involved.

FORMAL INQUIRY?

After reading the reports he will consider holding a formal inquiry into the mishap.

Laymore left Esquimalt Wednesday afternoon in clear weather conditions on a routine ammunition dumping mission to a designated area 35 miles southwest of Tofino.

The 176-foot, 935-ton auxiliary vessel was under tow to the Clifton. Most of her cargo comprised mortar bombs, demolition charges and fuses.

NO POWER

She had no power because her engines were placed "in preservation" for a $180,000 conversion to an oceanographic research ship this summer.

But Thursday afternoon the two vessels were caught in a wild gale and raging seas. Laymore's rudder jammed and her heavy towline snapped two hours later.

Capt. John Francois gave his 16 crew members the order to abandon ship at 5:15 p.m.

They jumped for a life raft and remained there for more than four hours, taking a tremendous buffeting from towering seas before being rescued.

was its sacred aim, he said in the statement.

Bouteflika retained his old post after the coup.

The statement pledged to continue and develop Algeria's policy of co-operation with France, which ruled Algeria until it gained independence in 1962.

ALGIERS CALM

The orinary life of Algiers went on as usual, apparently undisturbed by the coup. Government offices, state institutions and private businesses were operating normally.

Ben Bella had strongly oriented Algeria toward the Communist bloc and last year received the title of Hero of the Soviet Union. He also recognized China.

ECONOMY SHAKY

Algeria has been in deep economic trouble since the French granted independence in 1962 after a long and bloody insurrection. Unemployment is high, many persons living on U.S.-supplied surplus foods.

Former French farms were nationalized, but this failed to increase the production of food.

Rivard's Pals In U.S. Custody

MONTREAL (CP) — RCMP and Bordeaux jail officials said today three associates of jail-escapee Lucien Rivard were taken in custody from the Montreal jail to the United States Friday.

Inspector Raymond Canton of the RCMP said his men were called to assist U.S. customs agents in the removal of the three men in compliance with an extradition order. They are wanted in the U.S. for alleged participation in drug trafficking between Mexico and Texas.

The three men—Julien Gagnon, 35, alias Jerry Massey, Emile Groleau, 55, and Joseph Raymond Jones, 27—were taken by heavily-armed RCMP officers to the boarder at Blackpool, Que., where they were turned over to U.S. agents.

From Blackpool they were taken to Plattsburgh, N.Y., for transport by a U.S. Coast Guard aircraft to Loredo, Tex., accompanied by an armed escort off 11 U.S. customs men.

FOUR ARRESTED

The trio and Rivard were arrested and put in jail here one year ago today at the request of U.S. authorities. The U.S. government made the request while following up the seizure in October, 1963, at the Texas-Mexico border, of 76 pounds of heroin. The narcotics were valued on the illicit market at $56,000,000.

Last fall the four men were ordered extradited to the U.S., but they filed appeals against the order. The subsequent appeals were denied and in April of this year, the order was upheld in Superior Court and they were ordered removed.

Rivard, accused in a Texas grand jury indictment of being a kingpin conspirator in the border dope-smuggling ring, escaped from Bordeaux jail last March 2. No trace has been found of him, but Andre Durocher, who accompanied him over the jail's wall, was picked up here June 4.

RCMP would not comment on the number of officers employed on the transfer. Reports from the jail indicated at least a dozen police, some of them armed with rifles, were used to remove the men, manacled and with leg irons.

Youthful Air Chief New Viet Premier

SAIGON (AP)—Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, flamboyant air force commander, became South Viet Nam's youngest premier today, heading the eighth government in 20 months.

Ky, 34, took over from Dr. Phan Huy Quat who quit last week after a dispute with Chief of State Phan Khac Suu and opposition from religious elements. Suu also resigned.

The South Vietnamese armed forces assumed all power in the new government although 13 of the 16 cabinet posts are held by civilians.

The highest authority is the congress of the armed forces of Viet Nam, made up of some 20 top military officers. Under it is a 10-man military directorate, which in turn is over an executive committee of generals. Ky is chairman of the executive committee.

The directorate is headed by Maj.-Gan. Nguyen Van Thieu, whose job corresponds to that of Chief of state.

The new government is the eighth in Saigon since the overthrow and assassination of President Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1, 1963.

Ky has been air force commander since a month after the coup against Diem. The air force, with U.S. aid, has grown steadily under his leadership.

GOES ON RAIDS

He has frequently flown missions against the Communists and participated in one of the first raids against North Viet Nam in February.

In his acceptance speech, Ky said:

"I am just a pilot. As a pilot I don't like politics. But the generals have picked me because they have confidence in me. They picked me more to risk my life than as an honor.

"I hope in a few months to be able to return power to a civilian government at which time I will go back to the air force."

Ky painted a grim picture of the situation in South Viet Nam.

The war against Communist forces is going badly, he said. There is a political mess, basic insecurity, economic collapse, war profiteering and injustice.

The new premier said his government was faced with 26 "urgent tasks," including the declaration of a state of war, austerity and the mobilization of the country's potential.

All able men will be drafted into the armed forces, he said, and the population will be armed and told that it must throw its weight behind the war effort by volunteering for military service.

Special courts will be set up and offenders, such as profiteers, will suffer heavy penalties, Ky warned.

Ky said many economic and social reforms will be introduced. Foreign policy will be changed, he said although he did not go further than saying that relations with South American and African countries would be extended.

Compulsory Blood Test Plan Rejected

HARRISON, B.C. (CP)—The B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association Friday went against its national council by rejecting compulsory blood alcohol tests in impaired driving cases.

But the branch, meeting here in annual meeting, declined to censure the national council for proposing compulsory tests without first referring the matter to the membership.

By 60-40 votes, the meeting passed three resolutions which opposed "statutory presumption" relating to blood alcohol, legislation requiring drivers to submit to chemical tests, and making it an offence to refuse the test.

But the members defeated a resolution which suggested that the council of the Canadian Bar Association should not recommend changes in the laws of Canada without first receiving approval of a general meeting.

'Fingerprint All Canadians'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A senior police official Friday proposed compulsory finger-printing of all Canadians.

John Fisk, deputy chief constable, said fingerprinting would be a logical extension of Chief Ralph Booth's suggestion Thursday that all citizens carry identification cards to be produced upon police request.

Chief Booth said the move would help combat Canada's rising crime rate. He said some individuals rights should be sacrificed for the betterment and protection of society as a whole.

Deputy Fisk said police regret selective service cards issued during the Second World War did not have mandatory fingerprinting. "Citizens would have gone for it then," he said.

When asked if compulsory fingerprinting would not be an infringement of a citizen's civil rights, Deputy Fisk repeated Chief Booth's statement about sacrificing individual rights.

Disagreement with that statement was expressed Friday by Attorney-General Robert Bonner; Jack Moore, B.C. president of the International Wood Workers of America; and James Foulks, head of the B.C. Civil Liberties Union.

The three said individual rights are more important than police authorities' specific needs.

"I think the way our police forces are run, and the safeguards we have against over-zealous police action, represent a consensus of society," Mr. Bonner said.

A great day to discover how little long distance costs

How much is a voice worth?

That depends on who is speaking, and from where. On this special day, the voices of loved ones, perhaps from hundreds of miles away, have a special place in our hearts. Memories are sharpened; experiences recaptured. It is a time when togetherness can mean so much and, as always, at such little cost.

Long distance rates are among the very few items of personal expenditure that have actually been reduced, over the years. And after 6 p.m. each evening (and all day Sunday), they are cheaper by about one-fifth. Check the rates for yourself in your telephone directory or dial "O" and ask the operator. You'll be surprised how little it costs to enjoy "the next best thing to being there." For instance you can call from Vancouver to Prince George in the evening for $1.35; or from New Westminster to Calgary for $1.50; or from Victoria to Toronto for $2.35.*

It costs so little to discover how much these experiences mean—to you, and to those with whom you talk. Today, there's more reason than ever to use Long Distance for all its worth.

A Worthy Proposal

IT IS UNFORTUNATE THAT the Commonwealth proposal to create a peace mission to try to find a solution to the Viet Nam conflict should have become embroiled in internal rejections and problems right from the start.

The idea of the mission has great merit, inasmuch as it would bring five disinterested countries into contact with all parties to the dispute—Moscow, Peking, Hanoi, Saigon and Washington—and the emissaries, working at prime ministerial level, might have an excellent opportunity to devise a compromise settlement of the very critical Viet Nam situation.

This is a new departure for the Commonwealth—to serve as the honest broker in a major world dispute. But the logic is clear. Here is a loosely-knit organization with a world-wide membership comprising countries of varied races, social systems, ideological belief, religious adherence and skin color. Properly constituted, a committee of Commonwealth prime ministers can have a base broad enough to inspire confidence in almost any other nation, a point of contact with almost any type of regime. And because of this there should be reason to meet with such a committee and expect an impartial and understanding approach to the problem at hand.

This can only be, however, if the Commonwealth itself shows confidence in its own plan and a co-operative attitude toward the objectives. This is sadly lacking so far in the present instance. Some of the nominated members appear to have lost sight of the great purpose of the mission in a welter of lesser considerations.

It will be a pity if this opportunity for service is missed. The proposal carries not only the possibility of success in the Viet Nam negotiations—remote though this may be—but also the pattern of a new role for the Commonwealth as a respected and trusted agent in the preservation of world peace.

The Deadly Remedies

VANCOUVER'S POLICE CHIEF Ralph Booth was quoted as saying the other day that certain individual rights must be sacrificed to combat the increasing Canadian crime wave.

Among other things, he would like to see all citizens carry identification cards which they would be required to produce when asked by a police officer. He would like to see compulsory blood alcohol tests in suspected drunken driving tests. And he observed that the criminal is taking advantage of every technicality of the law in defending himself.

Chief Booth's observations are closely paralleled by those of an eminent legal expert, Lord Shawcross, attorney-general for the United Kingdom from 1945 to 1951.

Speaking recently to an East Sussex magistrates' association meeting, Lord Shawcross stated emphatically that crime does pay these days because the citizens do not back up the police and give them the necessary strength and power to combat criminals.

Since Canadian criminal law and procedures are closely patterned on British, what Lord Shawcross had to say on this aspect—and the way it relates to what Chief Booth said—is of considerable interest.

"The truth is," he claimed, "that the law has become hopelessly unrealistic in its attitude toward the prevention and detection of crime. We cling to a sentimental and sporting attitude in dealing with criminals. We put illusory fears about the impairment of liberty before the promotion of justice. Indeed, our whole idea of justice is a bit odd when you come to think of it."

Lord Shawcross noted that in most systems of law not descended from the British, the judge's role is akin to that of a scientist in a laboratory attempting to get at the real truth by all proper means. Under the British system, however, the judge is more like an umpire, his duty limited to ascertaining the objective truth insofar as the parties before him can or will present it. "Indeed, we symbolize justice as blindfolded and holding scales. The scales are weighted against truth."

The noted British lawyer inveighed strongly against what he called "pernicious notions": that it is wrong to make an accused answer questions in the witness box, that there is anything inherently bad in the police having on file the fingerprints of all citizens, that the police should not have the power of search in an emergency or the power to tap telephone lines and record conversations.

For the majority of people the opinion of Lord Shawcross, as well as of Chief Booth, that the direction of the law needs to be shifted away from individual liberty in order to preserve society as a whole from lawlessness will be flatly rejected. The whole thing smacks of "1984" and all that it connotes, and it will be noted that in countries enjoying "systems of law not descended from the British" there are accompanying aspects of life which do not commend themselves to persons accustomed to British justice and the social amenities that go with it.

It will no doubt be necessary, as a result of increasing crime, to revise some of the means of catching and treating lawbreakers. But any step that destroys even a portion of the liberty of law-abiding citizens is a backward one—it is harming the innocent in order to punish the guilty, and that is not what laws are for.

Going to the Well . . .

IT IS DISTRESSING TO LEARN that a project as admirable as the Children's Village on Vancouver Island this summer is having trouble in meeting local financial commitments Almost equally distressing is the impression that present difficulties are due to inadequate organization here for the necessary fund raising—a situation attributed to the ill-health of a key figure in the campaign.

No doubt sufficient money will be collected to meet the obligations undertaken for this meeting of selected young people from various parts of the world in an excellent observance of International Co-operation Year. The experience of the sponsors, however, should bring home a fact becoming increasingly apparent in Greater Victoria. It is that so many demands are being made on the public purse, both from government funds at various levels and from the pockets of individuals, that those interests making the appeals must be sure of wide support and careful planning in order to meet their objectives.

It is not sufficient for a person or a group of people to seize on a good idea—or at least an idea which seems good to them—and expect sizable financial help as a matter of course. Fund raising campaigns already overlap in Greater Victoria, despite efforts to combine most of them in a United Appeal. The ordinary citizen is asked continuously to put his hand in his pocket for dollars to help this group and that.

Inevitably the time arrives when he becomes selective in his giving. He has to. And whenever another approach is made, it can be effective only when enough prospective donors are convinced the cause merits their response.

The Children's Village campaign emphasizes that point.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

FOR an interesting hour or two go out to John Dean Park, Mt. Newton, and visit the little lake there.

This is a pond very rich in water life. Sunfish float along and at the shadow of a bird flying overhead they will dart under a lily pad. This is a protection from the Kingfisher or the Blue Heron which hunt these ponds.

Look closely at some of the lily leaves and you will see many little frogs blending in with the color of their background. Suddenly you hear a plop and see a ripple—the frog has made another catch.

If you stay quiet you will see him slowly swim back to his perch on the leaf. If some insect should alight on the leaf then in a flash it is gone, snapped by the long tongue of the frog.

Where the sun strikes the water there are many newts slowly swimming in what seems an aimless manner. Yet they too are hunting for food in the form of tiny aquatic animals.

Watch the Whirligig beetles as they dart round and round. These little creatures are scavangers and live off the bodies of other insects that have fallen into the water.

Do you know that each whirligig eye is divided by a margin, so that they can see under the water as well as above?

Watch how the Dragonfly hovers and patrols his own territory. He will chase off any other male that may invade, but will capture any female that strays into his area.

U.S. FOREIGN POLICY PROBLEM

By WALTER LIPPMANN

A Search for Governments Deserving Support

WHETHER the United States is dealing with Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic or with the foreign aid program in general, there is one common problem which is crucial and central for all the many things we are undertaking. It is to find governments that we can support which are reasonably honest, efficient and progressive and are trusted by their own people. We are learning in Viet Nam how difficult it is to defend a country in which there is no government which can rally its own people. We are learning in the Dominican Republic what happens when there is no recognizable legitimate government to receive our military backing and our economic help.

Lippmann

The same difficulty is at the root of the disappointment, which is so great in this country today, at the results of the foreign aid programs. We are, to be sure, much more vividly conscious of spectacular incidents like the burning of a library than we are of the quiet successes. Nonetheless, there are disappointments, so many of them that the Senate has now voted another installment of foreign aid with the proviso that there is to be a radical re-examination of the whole policy within the next two years.

Without attempting to guess what conclusions will be reached in these two years, it is already quite evident that trouble arises when aid is funneled through corrupt, reactionary or highly incompetent governments. It is not easy to find enough good in all the emerging and underdeveloped countries, and, if we are philosophical about it, we must not be surprised at the difficulty of finding them. The condition is baffling, but that is a concomitant of inexperience and backwardness.

Moreover, American officials who have to administer the programs are frequently in a quandary. As a general rule, the most impeccably anti-Communist governments are more often than not reactionary, stupid and corrupt—as, for example, the Batista government in pre-Castro Cuba or the Trujillo government in the Dominican Republic.

On the other hand, the more progressively minded parties or factions include almost inevitably not only the left but the Communists on the left of the left. It takes a lot more acumen and political courage for an American official to back a progressive faction than it does for him to embrace a rightist faction. This dilemma confronts us continually in our role as champion of the free world in Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Viable States Needed

Nevertheless, in the task of containing the expansion of communism there is no substitute for the building up of strong and viable states which command the respect of the mass of their people. The President, of course, knows this and has frequently said it. But the tragedy of our entanglement in Viet Nam is that we find ourselves fighting what is in fact an American rearguard action to stave off the collapse and defeat of the Saigon government. In this cramped position there is little opening or opportunity for us to use our power and our resources constructively in Southeast Asia.

We may leave it to the historians to say how and why we are painted into a corner. Our task is to bring up our resources to power and wealth, which are intact, in order to cut down our unavoidable losses to the lowest possible cost in lives and in influence.

In our predicament it is a disservice, I think, to inflate and emotionalize the stakes in Viet Nam to make it appear that the whole future of America and of the western world in Asia and the Pacific is going to be fought out and decided in the Vietnamese jungle. It is not going to be decided there, and it is not going to be decided in any other single place.

Prepare for New Burdens

Thus, for example, we must prepare our minds even now for the possibility that Britain will not be able to carry much longer the whole burden of her responsibilities from Aden and the Persian Gulf through the Indian Ocean to Singapore. There looms ahead of us the prospect of having enormous new responsibilities thrust upon us, responsibilities which do not begin and will not end with our entanglement in Saigon.

That is why, though we cannot and must not scuttle and run, we must use our resources and our wits to avoid becoming bogged down in a large land war on the Asian mainland.

MR. BENNETT'S STAND

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Closer to Japan Than Canada?

GOVERNOR-GENERAL Vanier was entertained at luncheon recently in Victoria by the government of British Columbia. As the official host Premier W. A. C. Bennett listened respectfully to his eminent guest, who said: "I am proud of each province but I am prouder of Canada which comprises the provinces. I want to be known abroad and at home as a Canadian, not only as a citizen of one of the provinces."

Hutchison

This simple, manly creed must have interested Mr. Bennett since he had just returned from abroad and at Osaka had thanked his hosts in words strikingly different from those of the governor-general.

Mountain Barrier

"We feel a little closer to Japan than to Ottawa," Mr. Bennett said. "Between British Columbia and Ottawa there is not only a lot of land but also some high mountains. But between B.C. and Japan there are no mountains, only the same ocean that joins us."

In this flight of geographical imagination Mr. Bennett revealed, perhaps unintentionally, the true crisis of our nation—its ambivalent spirit, its inward struggle between a broad Canadianism and a narrow provincialism. As one or the other prevails the nation will thrive or perish.

Mr. Bennett regards himself as a good Canadian. He sees no conflict between the nation's welfare and his jealous provincial independence. What is good for British Columbia must be good for Canada. He never seems, however, to grasp the truth of the opposite proposition: What is good for Canada is good for British Columbia or any other province.

Which comes first, the nation or the province? That is the real issue before us now.

The People Decide

We hear it argued every day by politicians from coast to coast, with different local emphasis, but neither the politicians nor any neat constitutional formula can settle it. In the end it will be settled by nameless people who don't understand formulae and seldom know what the politicians are talking about.

Mr. Bennett knew exactly what he was talking about at Osaka. He was talking about vague emotions, instincts and hunches never mentioned in any brief to a federal-provincial conference.

When he said that "we feel a little closer to Japan than to Ottawa," his words, I believe, were inaccurate and preposterous but they were the right words for his purpose. He was concerned with feelings and they will be decisive for Canada.

Mr. Bennett's political contempt for the existing Canadian government is quite understandable and is shared by a multitude of voters. His growing antagonism to the nation itself is an entirely different matter.

It appeals to the lowest denominator of parochial prejudice, to the viscera not the intelligence of British Columbia. It excites the worst elements of B.C.'s collective character and submerges the best. It builds an isolationism not merely mean and negative but positively dangerous to his province which depends on the nation's health for its own.

Everyone knows, of course, what Mr. Bennett is up to. He wants certain concessions from the federal government, mainly a bank under his control, and he is using every lever he can find, including an absurd little lever made in Japan.

Improper

Some of his levers are legitimate, as assuredly his friendship with Japan is admirable. Some of his demands in Ottawa are perfectly proper. But it is not legitimate or proper for him to act as if he possessed some practical alternative to British Columbia's membership in the Canadian Confederation.

To be sure, there is an alternative, already cited by Mr. Bennett's hysterical colleague, Mr. Loffmark. The alternative is to join the United States, a prospect which apparently does not alarm Mr. Loffmark in the least, but Mr. Bennett repudiates that view. For Mr. Bennett separatism and absorption in another country are not a practical alternative.

Ultimate Result

Nevertheless, Mr. Bennett's truculent attitude, projected ahead as on a graph, could lead only to British Columbia's withdrawal from Confederation.

That thought, I am sure, would horrify him. It is the last thing he desires. Yet with all his immense abilities he is steadily building up a sense of grievance and protest that he may not be able to control. He cannot even control Mr. Loffmark in his own cabinet. His movement of local protest encourages the same in other provinces and rejoices the separatists of Quebec. The thing is getting out of hand.

Now that Mr. Bennett has solemnly told the world that we in British Columbia are closer in sentiment to Japan than to Canada it surely is time to ask him where he is going and to ask ourselves if we intend to follow.

"I want to be known abroad and at home as a Canadian," said the governor-general, one of the nation's truly big men. Mr. Bennett listened to his guest, but did he understand him?

MARKED for READING

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

I do not think very much harm is done by bad pop music, or by bad novels, unless the institutions built on these are such as to prevent the good work getting around . . . This only becomes a serious problem when the amount of money that can be made by satisfying quick needs like that is such that more energy goes into that kind of work—all the social organization is set up for it—than into the other kind. No society can live on stuff that satisfies it for a day.

British author and university lecturer, Raymond Williams.

FOR TENSE RELAXATION

By TONY EMERY

Looking for Escape Reading?

EVERYBODY has his own idea of "light" reading, and I don't suppose we should all agree on what constitutes the pleasantest form of literary escape from the daily preoccupations of our lives. For many people the detective novel fills this need, but I must confess that for me these are almost the most boring of all novels: I would prefer, almost, to tackle Alfred Whitehead's favorite bedside book, "The History of the Council of Trent," by that fiery Venetian monk, Paolo Sarpi. (It has to be said, too, that Sarpi worked at least one of his readers up to the point where he made a spirited, though unsuccessful, attempt to assassinate the author, in 1607. What mystery story writer can boast as much?)

Emery

Last year when I was staying in England with some relatives, one of whom was a James Bond admirer, I read all the works of Ian Fleming, which I found taxed my perseverance to sagging-point. I felt rather like Sidney Webb, who in his last illness was discovered in the act of reading the novels of Walter Scott, at the rate of one a day. His visitor asked him if he was enjoying this stodgy diet, and Webb said, "No, But I had never read them, and I thought that perhaps I ought to before I died."

Motivated by a similar sense of duty, I ploughed through the adolescent fantasies of Fleming, from foreseeable capture, through routine torture, to predictable escape and mandatory sexual rewards. What a grisly bore, and how inferior even to the equally adolescent—but "clean-limbed," and "decent"—fantasies of the late Lord Tweedsmuir.

I do not mention the novels of Simenon in the same breath, because Simenon is, after all, a novelist; his novels deal frequently with crime, it is true, but his treatment of crime is adult and realistic: his criminals are not the superhuman masters and monsters of the Fleming imagination, but the ordinary human wreckage that fills our antiquated jails to overflowing.

Rebecca West wrote a perceptive essay some 30 years ago, which she entitled "The Tosh Horse," and in which she pointed out that in order to be a successful purveyor of literary garbage, you have to be a sincere believer in it yourself. Even your most feeble-minded reader will be able to detect the fraud if you try to churn it out with your tongue in your cheek. Fleming, contrary to what the reviewer in Life magazine evidently supposes, clearly does believe, in a Pickwickian sense, in the antics of Bond and Goldfinger and whoever is the Tearsheet on duty for the operation in question.

More Exciting than Fiction

It is not likely that Bond addicts will be easily persuaded to put down their lightweight Berettas in favor of Jane Austen's needlepoint or Henry James's rather baggy knitting, but it does seem to me that the human need for participating vicariously in thrilling adventure is much more rewardingly fulfilled in well-written accounts of actual feats of endurance, hardship and survival through skill and judgment.

I cannot remember anything in detective fiction as exciting as Miles Smeeton's account of being dismasted—twice—off Cape Horn when he and Beryl, his wife, and John Guzzwell were sailing from Melbourne to England. Or if you want a story of protracted hardship of a kind that makes Bond's two-hour sessions of torture look like amusing relaxation, try Alfred Lansing's book "Endurance" which tells how Shackleton, caught with his crew in the polar ice-pack that crushed his ship, dragged and pushed the ship's boats to open water, and sailed 600 miles—to windward, in freezing seas and an open boat—to land on the "wrong" side of South Georgia Island.

He then led his small party, unequipped with mountaineering gear of the kind used recently when a party of climbers duplicated his route, over the mountains and down the glacier to a whaling station which was within a few days of closing down for the season. If that isn't a story of suspense, a drama of real-life derring-do that makes the efforts of the cheap thriller-writer look pretty thin, then I must be easily thrilled.

I was delighted to find in the Book Exchange the other day a paperback copy of a book I have been trying to get hold of for a long time: Adrian Seligman's "The Voyage of the Cap Pilar." This is not in the same class for palm-moistening excitement as the two chronicles I have just mentioned, but it is a well-written book, worth reading.

It tells how Seligman invested a legacy in an old 150-ton barquentine he found in St. Malo, and how, with only one other hand who had any deep-water experience in sail, he skippered a motley crew of adventurous young landlubbers (who paid 300 dollars for the privilege) in a two-year voyage round the world, returning to the sensible, sane world in time to join in the Second World War.

It may be—it undoubtedly is—"escape" reading, but it is not, like much detective garbage, an insult to one's intelligence. If you are too big for Bond, and you don't care who dunit, let me recommend the Mariner's Library, or the wonderful books of H. W. Tilman.

The TV Color Standard

OTTAWA — There apparently is going to be no controversy in Canada over TV color standards such as that splitting Europe, where some countries prefer the French standard, the Germans prefer the German standard, and the British say the U.S. standard is best.

The reason: When State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne told the Commons on Tuesday that color is "go" for 1967, he also announced the department of transport would be setting a color standard for Canada. What he didn't disclose is that the DOT already has decided in favor of the U.S. standard.

The decision cannot be questioned on practical grounds—this being North America, and we being so intertwined with the Americans on industrial design and production. British endorsement of the U.S. standard suggests the decision is solid on technical grounds. But Mr. Lamontagne, in his role as chief protector of our fragile Canadian culture, must have been tempted to favor the French standard—if, of course, he had any knowledge of the cultural control level that was his for the grasping.

* * *

The U.S. standard, or method of telecasting color, is sufficiently different from the French standard that French TV sets could not pick up a U.S. telecast in color. So it follows that if Canada adopted the French standard, Canadian TV sets could not pick up U.S. color telecasts.

As Mr. Lamontagne pointed out to the Commons, "Better than 50 per cent of Canadian homes with television sets are within reach of direct television signals from the United States."

This is the main reason he gave for the government's decision to authorize color telecasting in Canada starting in 1967. While spokesmen in the broadcasting industry tell me there is no Canadian viewer demand for color, Mr. Lamontagne fears that when the U.S. networks begin heavy programming in color this fall a Canadian taste for color will develop quickly. He wants Canadian broadcasters to be ready to satisfy this taste, so that Canadian viewers will not desert CBC and CTV black-and-white telecasts in favor of U.S. color beamed across the border.

But what I believe Mr. Lamontagne doesn't know—maybe the DOT didn't tell him—is that the government could lower an electronic curtain at the U.S. border simply by adopting the French standard. If Canadian TV receivers were manufactured to the French standard they wouldn't be able to pick up U.S. color.

* * *

As the concierge of our cultural edifice, Mr. Lamontagne should have been titillated by this intelligence. His bete-noir is U.S. culture inundating us largely through U.S. films and TV. He could control the TV inflow and ensure that Canadians would watch only their own TV by putting Canadian TV on a different color standard—in a sense, like on a different broadcast band.

This wouldn't mean that the Canadian networks wouldn't be able to run selected U.S. color. They could rebroadcast it after converting it to the different Canadian standard. It would only prevent direct TV set reception of U.S. color. It would give the CBC and CTV a captive audience—and they'd be overjoyed. Besides, think what selection of the French standard over the U.S. standard would do for the government's image in Quebec!

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

'There Is More to Living . . .'

WE DROVE through the warm evening along the Old West Saanich Road and the hope stirred in me that the highway engineers never come this way.

Stott

The Old West Road is one of the few survivors of the leisurely drives that once lent charm to the southern part of Vancouver Island. The atmosphere has changed a little. A few modern homes, most of them tastefully set on roomy lots, have gone up along its length. But the scenery remains much as it did in an earlier part of the century.

Trees and fields and farms stretch back from the roadway as it winds through pleasant countryside. The curves are gentle, the grade noticeable but not harsh. You don't expect, and we didn't hear, the screech of tires or the "zut" of passing cars familiar on high-speed highways. Instead, you listen to see if the cicades are sending forth their monotone and you feel that the frogs would sing here in spring and the crickets chirk brightly in late summer.

A visitor from rural England would find a familiar air here, a pause in the rush of living, an invitation to stop and stare, that used to mark the backroads of his homeland and may still be characteristic of some of the less-frequented byways there.

Of course a good highway expert could fix this quickly. Removal of a few trees here, easing of a bend there, a cut to lower the grade in another section could speed the flow of traffic, and increase it, as a utilitarian route into town. It wouldn't take many modifications to reduce the elapsed time required to cover the Old West Road from end to end by at least five minutes. Figured on a hundred per cent increase in the number of cars using it, the five minutes could represent a substantial number of man hours for commuters.

In the process, of course, the quality which makes the Old West Road something distinct, something cherished, would be eliminated. And no doubt faster traffic on a straighter route would pile up new and impressive accident statistics.

Our drive carried us to an attractive farm home where a mother and daughter had invited us to pick strawberries. It stands on a rise in its own 14 acres of orchard and berry land, with cover crop holding down the fine soil in fallow. To the east lift the mountains of San Juan Island, to the west forest growth that climbs the high ridge separating it from Saanich inlet.

The early home has been preserved and additions made to it—a triumph of bringing convenience and elegance to the house in which a former Yorkshire cabinet maker established himself in a new and friendly land. Indoors fine furniture of his own making—chairs, a clock—reflect a love for craftsmanship and splendid chest and a magnificent grandfather's good taste. From the tap comes pure water drawn from the farm's own well, untreated, cold and clear.

To the home and farm troop real estatemen with a keen eye for subdivision.

"I'm afraid I'm sometimes rude to them," confesses the mother. "They often don't understand that there is more to living than making money by selling up a home. As long as I can use this," and she gestured with a stout walking stick, "I'll be able to hold them off." You wondered if the gesture was meant to convey the idea that she'd hold on to the farm as long as she could get around, or whether the cane was an instrument of discipline.

There is a sense of roots, of cherished memories of a husband and father no longer here. This is a farm and home, where the problems of the land still are matters of concern, their solution grounds for satisfaction. It complements the atmosphere of the Old West Road, strengthening the impression that while time is not to be wasted, existence is more than a rush and bustle to reach some destination quickly merely for the sake of speed.

'Experiment in Democracy' Deemed Failure in Morocco

By STEPHEN HUGHES

RABAT—After two years of petty politics and parliamentary paralysis, the Moroccan "experiment in democracy" has proved a failure. Like so many leaders in emerging countries, young King Hassan II has been forced to take a stiff line and adopt authoritarian rule for an indeterminate period.

Alone among Arab and African statesmen, the 36-year-old monarch gave his country a liberal constitution and a parliament elected by universal suffrage two years ago. Since then the political and economic situation has degenerated lamentably.

The four main political parties, each one split into factions, turned parliament into a farce with their "futile debates," as the king called them. The government, led by Premier Ahmed Bahnini, was constantly attacked, at times even by his own alleged supporters in the government coalition.

Casablanca Riot

Meanwhile, the economic situation deteriorated to a point where, at the end of March, thousands of discontented workers and jobless went on the rampage in Casablanca in an orgy of looting and rioting that caused more than 100 deaths.

The economic and political situation was serious but by no means beyond solution three months ago when the king called for "national union" and consulted the parties with a view to forming a broadly-based coalition to carry out a minimal program.

As the king said in a broadcast speech, the opposition parties made contradictory demands as the price of their participation in a coalition and he found it impossible to reconcile them. He then tried forming a new cabinet based on the parliamentary majority, but this also failed because the majority was deeply divided.

On the day the king announced his takeover the government was outvoted in Parliament when eight members of the majority defected to the opposition. In the preceding week Premier Bahnini himself resigned from his own party of which he was president. Disintegration appeared to be in full flood.

No Election

The king said he had decided not to dissolve Parliament and hold new elections because in the present atmosphere a return to the polls would only lead to "violent upheavals" and clashes between private ambitions or interests.

Instead he has formed a new government of technicians and plans to make radical changes in the constitution, probably to strengthen the executive, and ultimately to seek a verdict at the polls. In the meantime, he says, Morocco will have a "strong, just and stable government that will act with celerity and firmness."

Reactions to the royal takeover are surprisingly favorable. The socialist opposition party, National Union of Popular Forces, and its associates in the Moroccan Labor Federation applaud the promised changes in the constitution—provided they lead to popular government. Only the old-guard Istiqlal Party is critical although agreeing that the old constitution was not perfect.

The left's attitude seems to bode some measure of political peace and if the government succeeds in achieving economic progress, labor unrest also should decline. The outlook is for stability with no major changes in foreign policy.

There is a precedent for the decision to rule as well as reign. From 1960 to late 1963 the late King Mohammed V and then his son Hassan were prime ministers as well as chiefs of state. King Mohammed took over personally for much the same reason as his son today; he found rival politicos unmanageable. In late 1963 the country's first constitution was promulgated and power was transferred from the throne to Parliament.

Famous Last Words

Baron von Richtofen (1892-1918)

Germany's greatest ace in the First World War, he was credited with destroying 80 planes. On April 21, before taking off in his Fokker triplane and being shot down, a mechanic handed him a postcard to autograph: "What's the matter?" the baron asked, grinning: "Do you think I won't return?"

Robert R. Livingston (1746-1813)

He administered the oath of office to Washington and financed the Fulton steamboat. Before suffering a second stroke, he said: "I have always shared what I had with my friends. There is one thing that I wish I could share." "What is that, sir?" asked the doctor. "The peace that I feel," he replied.

An Unhappy Birthday for the UN

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — On its 20th birthday the United Nations finds its membership headed for a record high and its prestige at a new low.

But ups and downs are no new experience for the world organization, whose 51 founding members proudly proclaimed as its purpose the saving of succeeding generations from the scourge of war.

They pledged themselves solemnly also to live together in peace with one another as good neighbors.

Since the signing of the UN charter in San Francisco on June 26, 1945, another 63 nations have joined the organization and agreed to abide by the terms of the charter. With the expected admission of Gambia in September the total membership will be 115.

Only one nation, Indonesia, has ever quit the United Nations.

As its 20th birthday approached Secretary-General U Thant warned that the United Nations is going downhill. If the trend is not reversed it may turn into a mere debating society, he said.

He was mindful of the paralysis which gripped the last session of the General Assembly due to inability to resolve the crisis over peace-keeping debts.

He was concerned also over the war in Viet Nam and the situation in the Dominican Republic. In the former the United Nations has been bypassed completely and in the latter it played only a subsidiary role.

Others have not taken so dim a view. They include U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, who has described the present difficulties of the United Nations as growing pains.

Like wine, the United Nations has had its good and bad years.

If 1964 and 1965 were marked by frustration over finances and bitter East-West debate, 1963 could be described as a good year. It was marked by the signing of the nuclear test ban treaty—a step long advocated by a majority of the UN membership.

But 1960 and 1961 were bad years. The United Nations was in deep trouble over the Congo and faced with the tragic death of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold in a plane crash while on a mission to the Congo. The Soviet Union demanded a three-man executive—instead of a single secretary-general—a move successfully opposed by the majority of the membership. U Thant, a Burmese diplomat, was named to succeed Hammarskjold.

The dramatic growth in membership is due mainly to the emergence of new nations. Most are from Africa. Even so the United Nations does not represent all the nations of the world. Communist China is still on the outside, along with the divided nations: West and East Germany, North and South Korea, North and South Viet Nam.

The General Assembly is comparable to a parliament, but on a global scale. Each nation, no matter how large or small, is entitled to one vote. It takes a two-thirds vote to approve an assembly resolution.

The 11-nation Security Council is the main political organ of the United Nations and, under the charter, its most powerful arm. Under charter amendments headed for ratification Security Council membership will be boosted soon to 15, and the Economic and Social Council from 18 to 27.

This will not affect the veto power in the Security Council of the five permanent members—the United States, Britain, France, Nationalist China and the Soviet Union.

With the expanded membership it will take nine votes to approve council action instead of seven at present. But a Big Power veto can kill any resolution. The Soviet Union is the champion veto caster—103 to date. The United States has never used the veto.

THE GALLUP POLL

Integration View Shift

By The American Institute of Public Opinion

In the space of just two years—a period of intensified activity on the civil rights front—a dramatic change has taken place in the views of Southern white parents on school integration in the United States.

A Gallup Poll survey in 1963 found a solid majority of Southern white parents, 61%, saying they would object to sending their children to a school where a few of the pupils are colored.

Today, 24 months later, white parents in this region of the U.S. have done an about-face, with 37% saying they would object, and 62% expressing no objection to sending their children to a school where only a few pupils are Negroes.

However, there is still considerable opposition from white parents (68%) about sending their children to a school where half the pupils are colored. And even stronger opposition (78%) if more than half the pupils are Negroes.

The question: "Would you have any objection to sending your children to a school where a few of the children are colored?"

	1963	1965
Yes, would object	61%	37%

Charles Dickens In the Far East

The BBC London Letter

Many people who have seen the one-man performances of readings from Charles Dickens given by the famous Welsh actor-playwright, Emlyn Williams in many parts of the world have the uncanny feeling that they have seen the great Victorian novelist himself, so complete is the identification of the actor with his model. This year Emlyn Williams has realized an ambition he has had ever since he began these presentations thirteen years ago—he is touring Asia and the Far East.

Shortly before he left, Emlyn Williams discussed his projected tour with one of the BBC's Indian broadcasters, Ali Hasan, in an interview broadcast in the BBC World Service weekly magazine program "Here and Now," and expressed his confidence that audiences would enjoy the richness of Dickens' language and imagination. He did not assume, he said, that people had read the books from which he presented extracts, and he had adapted items very carefully for an audience new to the performance.

Childhood Love

He traced his love of Dickens back to his childhood in the country, when he had no theatre to go to, and this intensely theatrical writer fostered his own inherent theatrical interest.

Emlyn Williams hoped that his performances would give audiences a renewed love of the English language, and a feeling that they understood the English character and temperament through a great writer, whose humor, dramatic sense and satire were universal.

Dickens' satire seemed to him completely international, with its criticism of "money grubbing" and the persecution of the poor. But he was touring Asia as an entertainer, not a propagandist, and believed that was much the better way to create friendship.

Gifted City Actor To Seek Career

BLAIN FAIRMAN
. . . turning pro

Victoria is losing one of its bright theatrical talents.

Blain Fairman, whose many stage successes have included two of Canada's highest drama awards—best actor in the B.C. Finals and best actor in the Dominion Drama Festival Finals, left for the mainland last weekend and a summer of professional theatre, before entering university in the fall.

The new Vancouver Summer Stock Company, brainchild of Tom Kerr, with whom Blain has had much of his theatrical training, is presenting a full season of professional theatre at the Metro Theatre, Marpole.

Tom Kerr is directing one of the plays himself—"Billy Liar"—in which Blain has the title role.

Jack McCreath, of Edmonton, who recently adjudicated the B.C. One-Act Finals in Vancouver, directs the other play—"Hay Fever"—in which Blain will be reunited on stage with two other well-known personalities who have made guest appearances in Victoria's Bastion Theatre productions this past season—Sam Payne (Father in "Life With Father") and Daphne Goldrick (title role in Bastion's last hit, "Nina").

Concurrently with rehearsals and performances, Blain will write examinations, preparatory to entering Simon Fraser University in September, with hopes of becoming involved in that university's progressive plans for its drama department.

Meantime, Bastion's artistic director, Peter Mannering, has already asked Blain Fairman to consider a guest appearance in Bastion productions scheduled for the 1965-66 season.

Music Festival Concludes Year Showing Profit

Annual meeting of the Greater Victoria Music Festival Association, held this week, revealed that the organization had once more shown a profit on its annual operation, though many B.C. music festivals regularly show deficits.

New president is Harold O'Donnell, who replaces Miss Ulah Jacobson who joins the executive as past president.

Executive members are Mrs. H. P. Mickelson and Lloyd Main, vice-presidents; Dr. English, treasurer; Mrs. V. Berringer, corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. B. Campbell, recording secretary, and Mrs. English, festival secretary.

The board of directors consists of Mrs. Betty Alexander, Dr. H. G. Anderson, Harry Bigsby, Mrs. J. Dunn, Mrs. H. M. Evans, Miss Nancy Ferguson, Mrs. G. Gayfer, Mrs. Helen Green, John R. L. Hayes, H. The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Ever since the edict was made known from the High Command of the Dominion Drama Festival, concerning the re-zoning of the provinces with respect to participation in the finals, I've been wondering why the executive bothered about pussyfooting at all.

Why the patronizing nod in the direction of the Maritimes and Western Canada?

Why not have the guts (or should I say, gall), to make a simple and factual statement: "We—Ontario-Quebec and the eastern portion of Manitoba—being fully conscious of our superiority and self-sufficiency, have decided to X the rest of you out."

We would have received the statement without shock. We're all too accustomed to the role of the far-out and unloved cousin.

It's been happening to us here in the west ever since I can remember, politically and every other way. The plums go where the votes are. And where the people already have an orchard full.

Suppose Ontario and Quebec do have many more active and proficient theatre groups than the combined provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Maritimes.

So room must be made for greater participation by these groups in fairness to them and to the standard aimed at by the Dominion Drama Festival.

But is it fair, at the same time, to be totally unfair to the rest of Canada?

It is quite clear to me that in a short while even the single representation grudgingly accorded the west and the Atlantic provinces will become rarity when DDF officials have had time to dream up a reason for making it so.

Admittedly, the three western provinces have sometimes failed to come up with a suitably high standard of production. But over the years the record isn't all that bad and in 1964, British Columbia had the runner-up spot in the finals and the best actor award.

And where were Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba this year? On the outside, watching Nova Scotia walk off with the big prize.

Let's Split Canada in Half

Suppose we accept as valid, the need to allow all good work being done in the eastern zones a chance to appear in Canada's drama showcase; then we have to admit that something has to go.

The ship is topheavy so heave the super cargo overboard.

But wouldn't it be wiser to whistle up another ship and divide the overload?

In other words split the festival into eastern and western divisions; after which never the twain shall meet for years and years, until on some future great occasion—such as the Canadian bi-centenary—when winners of the eastern and western divisions could face each other in an all-out battle of giants.

Specifications for such an event should require that each team present a comedy and a drama or tragedy, one of the two to be classic and the other, contemporary.

This would occupy four nights of the epic meet, the rest of the week to be accounted for by presentations, eulogies, expressions of good will between outermost Canada and innermost Canada, panels, seminars, discussion groups, workshops and finally, a meeting of official minds at which it could be decided that Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlottes, Prince Edward Island and Baffin Land, being the extreme perimeters of civilization, would no longer be eligible to participate.

After which these territories could get together and form a Canadian Continental Fringe Festival, thus thumbing their noses at the eastern and western divisions.

But whatever happens in the future, the effect of the current zone change will be to harden the already excessive cultural stratification, and narrow and diminish the original concept of the Dominion Drama Festival.

In fact, after the coming year, when we are committed to entertaining the DDF finals in Victoria, I doubt whether the West will bother about entering at all.

So the organization will have actually forfeited the right to the title "Dominion." Perhaps we should think up a new one; something like, "The Onque (Ontario-Quebec) Drama Festival."

But no, perhaps Onque is a little too like oink to be a tactful suggestion.

New Format for Noon Shows

This week—on Friday to be exact, when soprano Adele Lewis and pianist Joan Bulmer gave a recital of Spanish music—phase one of the McPherson Playhouse lunchtime concerts concluded.

From Wednesday to the end of June there will be an interval while some unfinished business is taken care of in the matter of cutting access from the Playhouse stage into the new scene loft and rehearsal room.

When the concerts resume on July 2, founder-director Ken Gravenor will try out a new format. Instead of two concerts of 40 minutes each, starting at 12:10 and 1:10, there will be one continuous performance running from 12:10 to 1:15 with frequent two-or-three-minute intervals.

This arrangement will allow audiences to come and go as they please. It will be ideal for late comers and people who have to hurry back to work.

When the McPherson has its projection equipment installed, probably sometime in August, Mr. Gravenor expects to be able to show National Film Board shorts dealing with art and music subjects at each concert.

After 41 noon shows plus two Sunday afternoon concerts, Mr. Gravenor has learned a lot about Victoria.

He knows, for example, that many city business men are interested and willing supporters of the undertaking. Not only do they buy blocks of tickets for the shows assistance in the matter of pianos and other things is forthcoming.

And he knows too, that there is much more excellent quality talent in this community than most of us realize but that the weakness lies in repertoires which are limited and repetitive.

Greed Could Spoil Everything

On the other hand, much of this weakness can be blamed on the fact that up to now there has been little encouragement or opportunity to demonstrate a repertoire of any kind.

This is just one of many valuable things about the lunchtime concerts.

I have already talked about the lift that has been given Victoria artists.

But I should also like to point out that the concerts have done much to popularize the McPherson Playhouse and develop a public interest that could grow into a demand and a strong theatre-going habit.

That is why I am alarmed when I hear rumors that admission price changes are in the offing.

I don't think anyone would mind a jump from 25 cents to 35, in fact I think it is logical, but I hope that it will stop there and that no civic covetousness will step in and spoil one of the most useful ventures ever promoted here.

The beauty of the idea, apart from anything else, is its availability to all and the fact that anyone can afford to attend two and three times a week.

Double the present admission fee and you immediately begin to whittle away the audience potential.

Thousands of people who might never have passed through the theatre doors in two or three years, are now regular visitors.

Let's keep it that way and sustain the important function the concerts are providing for everyone.

Preparing for Firebird role in Rank film, The Royal Ballet, Franklin White (also inset), in 30 minutes flat, has built a gargantuan nose, painted lines, added a huge beard, wig and eight-inch nails.

FORD SCHOLARSHIPS

Full Registration For Dance Course

Registration is now closed for the full six-week course to be given by Royal Ballet star, Peter Franklin White, in Victoria this summer.

Forty-eight students as well as a number of teachers from many parts of Canada and the United States, have registered.

Two of the students are coming on Ford Foundation Scholarships, and the Department of Indian Affairs is sponsoring an Indian dance student from Kamloops.

Mrs. John Wade is in charge of arrangements for the sessions which are being sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Victoria School of Music.

She announces that there are still a few vacancies for advanced pupils in the evening classes.

Mr. White is at the moment teaching and giving lecture demonstrations at Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, and will give short dance seminars in Banff and Vancouver before coming to Victoria July 11. The course opens in the Wynne Shaw Dance Studio, July 12.

In August, Mr. White will be presented in a dance recital at McPherson Playhouse as part of Festival Theatre Society's Show Parade 1965.

Immediately afterward, the noted dancer will fly back to London to rejoin the Royal Ballet which he left at the conclusion of its recent New York engagement.

Brilliant Theatre Men Coming From U.S. and U.K.

Top-flight talent and experience from the worlds of British and American theatre will be combined shortly as the University of Victoria Renaissance Festival plays go into production.

Arriving in town at the end of June will be director Richard Digby Day from England, and costume designer Douglas Russell from California.

Mr. Day is coming especially to direct Twelfth Night and Mr. Russell will be designing lavish costumes for both the Shakespeare play and for Robert Bolt's A Man for All Seasons, which will be directed by Carl Hare.

In addition to their festival activities, both will be teaching theatre courses in the University Summer Session program.

Of particular interest is Mr. Russell's two week non-credit course in costume designing to be given from August 3 to 13.

SPECIAL FIELD

Mr. Russell is not only one of the most distinguished experts in costume designing in the United States today, but is also an outstanding scholar and teacher in this special field at Stanford University.

He was given a Fulbright grant for study at the Shakespeare Institute, Stratford-upon-Avon in 1954-55. For 13 years he was costume designer for the Oregon Shakespeare Festival at Ashland, and has also designed for Actor's Workshop in San Francisco and for the Shakespeare Company of San Diego.

Richard Digby Day comes from a very active year of engagements with the Sadler's Wells Company, London; the Everyman Theatre, Cheltenham, and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

A graduate of the latter school, he has directed plays in the Edinburgh International Festival, at the Middlesbrough Little Theatre, the Nottingham Playhouse and Everyman Theatre in Liverpool.

At the ripe age of 23, he promises to be one of England's most outstanding theatre directors.

OPEN SHELF

By John Mika

A brace of academic volumes have come on the market that will help you understand your continental past and some of the forces now at work shaping the future of the north half of this land mass.

The past is explored in The Oxford History of the American People written by Samuel Eliot Morison, a Harvard historian, who is fully aware of the existence of Canada.

Selling at $13.50, the 1,200-page volume is both a political and social history of the United States intended for the general reader.

The author describes his work as "a legacy to my countrymen after studying, teaching and writing the history of the United States for over half a century."

He sweeps forward from the pre-historic period of the American continent to the tragic November day that President Kennedy so suddenly became history instead of a living man.

U.S. History Continental

Mr. Morison paints the big picture, dealing not only with the wars and the political crises but also the popular sports and recreations of the day, developments in the arts and sciences, the viscitudes of the Indian and the second American revolution (changes in sexual mores).

However, briefly, the author does describe the corresponding currents north of the 49th parallel and this—to my way of thinking—should make the book invaluable to a Canadian. I firmly believe that United States history, per se, is of immense importance to Canadians but so few of us bother to read it because it appears too far removed.

Yet the history of this continent is largely the history of the United States and in that sense is partly our history too because many of the incidents of our past were reactions to events south of the border—the colonization of what is now British Columbia and its inclusion in Confederation being a case in point.

Thought, Discussion First

So a chance to read a book that does not make the usual mistake of viewing North American history as either an exclusively United States or a Canadian event is most welcome.

The other book deals solely with the Canadian scene but in the context that it is inextricably involved with the friendly giant next door.

Entitled, Prospect of Change, Proposals for Canada's Future, it has been published by McGraw Hill.

Sixteen teachers at the University of Toronto, all of them members of the University League for Social Reform, have contributed essays on a full range of Canadian topics from politics to the arts.

It would seem to me that reading Mr. Morison—who, by the way was the official U.S. Navy historian in the Second World War and went to sea to watch history in the making as well as rise to the rank of Rear Admiral—first would lay an excellent foundation for considering the points raised by the reformers whose overall message, I take it, is that Canadians must think and talk more about their problems before lasting solutions can emerge.

After 200 Years in Deep Freeze Quebecois Enter 20th Century

THE STATE OF QUEBEC. Peter Desbarats, McClelland and Stewart, 1965, 188 pp., $4.95.

Reviewed by Anne E. Olsen

As the sub-title of his book indicates, Peter Desbarats has presented "a journalist's view of the Quiet Revolution" in Quebec.

A newspaperman of distinguished background, of French and English descent, the author has a unique vantage point from which to view his native province. His careful research of pertinent facts and figures and his logical interpretation of the rapidly changing scene on all levels—social, religious and economic—has produced a timely and informative "running report" on the current developments in Quebec.

Canadians everywhere are concerned about the restless ferment in la belle province. There is a growing realization of its crucial effect on the nation as a whole.

English Canadians can no longer afford to be merely impatient with French-Canadian aspirations. A re-examination of outdated opinions and a candid re-evaluation of emotional attitudes between the two Canadian cultures is dangerously overdue.

'THERE WAS NO OPPRESSION AFTER THE CONQUEST'

Peter Desbarats' current book is a valuable contribution to a realistic understanding of both sides of the problem.

It is an interesting surprise to discover that the author, in many interviews with representative business and professional people in Eastern Canada, found much evidence of stereotype attitudes everywhere.

For example, the president of a large Canadian corporation is quoted: "The reasons behind the unrest in Quebec are education, religion and inherited characteristics.

"The French-Canadians have had equal opportunities. But they weren't interested in business. . . . For two hundred years, the Anglo-Saxon has tried to give Quebec what it wanted.

"There was no oppression after the Conquest . . . Now, all of a sudden, the French Canadian expects someone to hand them everything on a platter. They claim they have been depressed and held down. I would like to know—by whom? They've had every democratic right that every Canadian had."

How many English Canadians continue to function with at least some of these opinions fixed solidly in mind?

The author maintains that they are at variance with the views of practically every French Canadian in the country, in his straight-forward journalist's style, he assembles fresh facts to draw a clear picture of French Canadian aspirations at this time.

He points out that, for two centuries, the French Canadians adopted a closed approach in their fixed determination to survive with their national identity intact.

They came to believe that they would remain inferior economically but that they were already superior in religion, art and human values. Their philosophy was the classical version of the good and true in the spiritual sense.

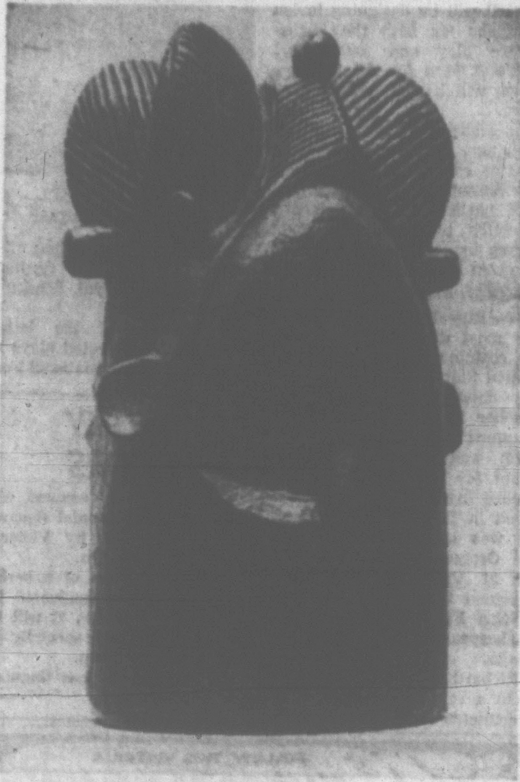
The English Canadian, however, has always been a pragmatist, believing that the good and the true is the expedient — that which really works in a practical way.

In Canada, the results of these two diametrically opposed attitudes toward life have been more formidable than the language barrier.

Desbarats informs us that exciting changes are rapidly developing in Quebec. After two hundred yeas in a deep-freeze, it has suddenly emerged into modern times.

Now largely an urban population, the French Canadians are taking an astonishingly realistic look at themselves. They have discovered the power of government. A new spirit of pragmatism has produced a government and civil service that uses and talks the language of the twentieth century.

For a lively, timely and informative report on present day trends in relationships between the two cultures, and for the tone of optimism implied, this book is a must for all Canadians.



WOMEN'S SECRET SOCIETY MASK of Liberia is part of Victoria Art Gallery's collection of primitive art, now being shown at the gallery in its entirety for the first time. This interesting carving was the gift of the late Mrs. Richard E. Craig. The exhibition is running concurrently with the exhibition of cartoons.

Moving Novel 'Most Original'

THE DESERTER. Douglas Le Pan. McClelland and Stewart, Toronto.

Revised by G. V. Downes

This novel is the most original piece of fiction I have seen for years. The mixture of violence and lyricism, of realism and surrealism, of brutality and poetry, makes it a unique contribution to the literary scene — not the Canadian scene, but that of Western literature generally.

Let me be specific about its place in the field of the novel, a term which can mean anything from Pilgrim's Progress to The Plague. It is not by accident that Bunyan and Camus come to mind, for Mr. Le Pan's work is also, in spite of its passionate and sensuous realism, an allegory, a vividly conceived image of modern man confronted by society and the universe.

The hero, Rusty, is an army deserter who becomes a fugitive, and the book is concerned with his search for reality and his own identity. He is trying, as his friend Mark points out, to contract out of human society, but finds, through the murder of an innocent, that you do not cease to be responsible merely because you avoid the usual conventional patterns.

The town in which he deserts, after the war, is neither Montreal nor London nor Ottawa. It is the City, the modern city whose ugliness and beauty Baudelaire first explored.

Scenes describing Rusty's wandering around different quarters are so brilliantly handled by Mr. Le Pan that the City seems in the end to have more personality than his Everyman.

There is a Palace, a Plaza, a foreign district, a tidal harbor or an estuary, and a magical Covent Garden flower market.

There are also the ever-present police, military and otherwise, diplomatic missions, informers, and a complex underworld of crime and violence.

It is the author's control of different kinds of language, and his transitions from one to the other, which held my attention from beginning to end.

He slides easily from the surrealism of Rusty's drunken or delirious dreams to the brutal, casual conversation of crooks, or the swift narrative of the terrible manhunt through the night that ends in murder.

The only weakness, and it is a natural one in an allegory, is that Rusty and some of the other characters are occasionally too articulate, too like their creator, to be always credible at the realistic level.

The other people in Rusty's world include, of course, women, and among others, the prostitutes on the borders of the criminal world he almost inevitably drifts into.

The author uses what Pamela Hansford Johnson recently called "The Compulsory Sex Scene" with skill and frequency, and since the novel is also a fable, each woman has her symbolic role to play as well.

"The Deserter" should be read by everyone interested in serious literature, not for its shock value, which is considerable, but for everything else.

Mobile Tri-Service Force Best Solution for Canada

STAND ON GUARD: The Search for a Canadian Defence Policy, Andrew Brewin. McClelland & Stewart, 1965. 140 pp. $3.95.

Reviewed by Major R. H. Roy

As far as I know, this is the first book ever written by a member of parliament on defence policy. Since Canada has been spending between one and two billion dollars annually on her armed forces, it is astounding that so little has been written regarding the policy directing the roles of the three services.

Mr. Brewin, an NDP member of parliament, was also a member of Special Committee on Defence established in 1963 by the Pearson government.

Although having only a limited military background himself, one would gather he became intensely interested in defence policy, and used to the full the opportunity presented by his membership on the defence committee to get [illegible] information as he could from authorative sources so as to make his own decision as to Canada's military role.

In essence he concludes that "Canada should concentrate on a highly mobile conventional tri-service force (akin to the U.S. Marine Corps) available for peace-keeping services throughout the world and also available as a mobile reserve for NATO." The author assumes that a nuclear war will not—or probably will not—occur.

Both the Russians and the Western allies are so well equipped with nuclear bombs and the ability to deliver them that they cancel each other out.

The greatest danger is that a small war might escalate into a longer war when, despite the awful consequences to both sides, some idiot might trigger an ICBM with a warhead—and away we would go, literally.

Canada's task, therefore, is to reduce her commitments in now obsolete areas (aircraft support of NORAD, for example), and put her efforts into making a tri-service force mobile and ready to answer a call from the UN or NATO.

There is a great deal to be said for Mr. Brewin's ideas, and indeed, one can discern some of them already taking shape. Certainly he is to be congratulated for making his conclusions available to the public, for the Canadian citizen is paying more than ever before in peace-time to maintain a large military establishment.

Mr. Brewin would have done his readers a service if he had included an index and up-to-date bibliography in his book. Despite this lack, Stand on Guard represents a major contribution to thinking on Canadian defence policy.

One can only hope there will be more of the same from other informed sources.

Mower Safety Tips

Injuries from power mowers are becoming a major problem in Canada, according to Gay McLaren, general manager of the National Safety League of Canada.

Mr. McLaren suggested:

- Before mowing, check the grass for debris that could become a dangerous missile if hurled by the blades.
- Warn bystanders away so flying twigs and stones will not harm them.
- Wear heavy shoes to protect toes.
- Keep in step with the mower's progress so complete control may be maintained.
- Cut hilly areas and banks from side to side, not up and down.
- Shut off the motor before making any adjustment.
- Never allow children to operate a power mower.

"Keep it helpful, not harmful," Mr. McLaren said.

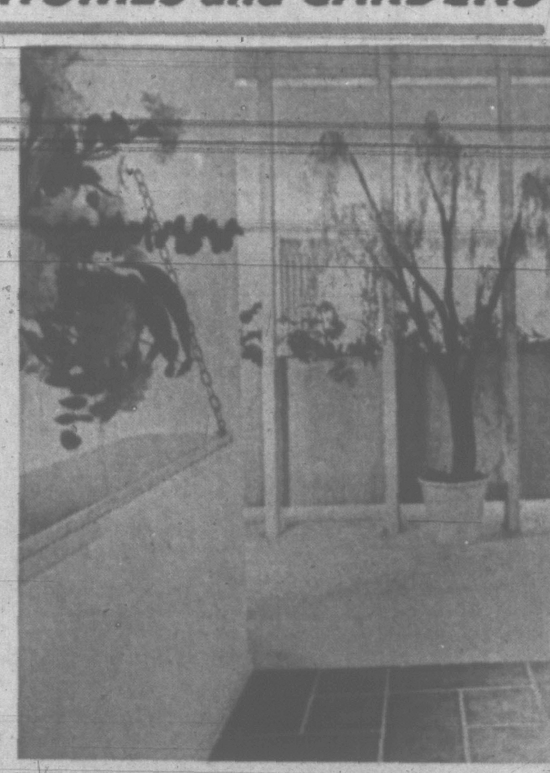
HOMES and GARDENS



THE ENTRANCE to a home can be a picture by itself and effectively protect living room privacy with a well-designed divider and plants to add softness.

BEASTALL ADVISES:

Perennials Must Be Split To Get Healthy Blooms

Jack

It is well known among chrysanthemum growers that larger blooms result when only one flower is allowed to develop on a stem. That is the reason for the practice called disbudding.

The same principle can be applied to herbaceous perennials, especially those which need lifting and dividing but so far this year have not received this attention.

Plants in this condition will often produce dozens of growths, all of which are depending on the root system for moisture and food. Unless the soil has been well enriched each year, the roots are unable to supply a sufficiency of food and the flowers show their hunger.

A temporary solution is to remove a goodly number of the growths at soil level, leaving the strongest to produce the best flower they can from the food the roots can supply.

This is a stop-gap measure designed to improve the garden display until such time as the plants can be given proper treatment.

Incidentally, it is used by seasoned exhibitors to improve the quality of material for the show bench, even on relatively young plants.

Here is a tip for owners of windswept gardens who would delight in the autumn glory of the taller perennial asters (michaelmas-daisies).

Although some types naturally grow to five or six feet in height, they can be kept much lower by removing the growing tip of each stem at a height of about 18 inches.

This stops upward growth and develops side shoots or laterals, all of which seem to break into flower together giving a mound of color compensating for the slight delay caused by removing the central growth. If this method is followed by the middle of June, the plants will be scarcely more than a day or two later in blooming, and their foliage is often far superior than of those not treated in this way.

When thinning carrot seedlings be sure to gather those removed and bury them in the compost heap, or in the soil.

This applies also to the tips if the roots are large enough to use in the kitchen.

The carrot rust fly is attracted to the crop by smell and discarded thinnings lying around is a sure-fire invitation.

After thinning a row, push the soil close to the remaining plants, banking it slightly over the crowns and gently firming with tool or foot.

While young carrots are an excellent addition to a salad, or as a cooked vegetable, the tops of young beet thinnings make a delicious substitute for spinach having far more flavor and many more of the vitamins we need for gardening activity.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Shrubs and trees put in this spring or last fall will need frequent watering at the roots.

Sow the seeds of perennials, and keep seedlings growing in a partly-shaded spot during summer, to plant out into rows in vegetable garden in September for their first year bloom.

Pick sweet peas regularly—twice a week is quite usual in order to keep the vines producing abundantly.

Save the seed of certain choice plants which come true from seed, such as Maconopsis baileyi, Gentiana acaulis and many worthwhile seedlings from Helianthemums (the Sunroses). Sow as soon as ripe. Germination will be rapid and prolific.

Feed the true lilies with weak fertilizer, and see that they get sufficient moisture at the roots.

If geraniums from small pots are not growing vigorously after being planted out, feed lightly with liquid fertilizer. Remove old blossom heads promptly.

Prune the brooms which have blossomed.

Thin vegetable seedlings. Dusting old soot along rows of onions, leeks and carrots is beneficial.

Moisture in the root area of all growing plants is essential and inspection of the soil at the various levels should be made frequently by the individual.

First Impressions Lasting So Beautify Your Entrance

By PAULINE GRAVES

The entrance to your home creates a first impression, and of course you want that impression to be as favorable as possible.

To open the front door and see the entire living room is not good. You want privacy when strangers come knocking at your door.

When friends come, however, you should be proud of what they see. The problem then is to achieve privacy attractively.

Here is an entrance hall that solves the problem. No one, standing at the door, can see into the home, yet the view is pleasant. The depth of the hall narrows the view, and a divider effectively blocks off the living room.

Instead of solid panelling, the divider is a planter about three feet high. It has a light look because the bottom is five inches from the floor.

For design, and to break up the space, 3x6's at 20-inch intervals extend from floor to ceiling. And they support the planter.

Focal point of the whole scheme is the tree centred at the end of the entry hall. Its branches and foliage help screen the opening above the divider, but it has extra importance because the walls, ceiling and floor function as a frame. The tree is the first item one sees when the door opens.

Ideally, a live tree is best. Purists deplore the widespread use of artifical plants so popular right now.

Sometimes a tree or plant will not grow where the greenery is needed, and too, proper watering and drainage present a problem.

So the choice of live plants versus those that are artificial is up to the home owner and her immediate situation.

Travelling Double Is Safer, Cheaper But It's No Fun

Summertime is vacation time. And for the average single working girl—it's the time to escape from routine and the people she sees every day, and to sally forth for fun, adventure and possible romance.

Unfortunately, say Arlene Cary, director of reservations for the Aristocrat Inns of America in Chicago, the average single working girl won't find the adventure and romance she's looking for on her vacation because she usually travels with a girl friend.

Miss Cary's advice to young girls is—"travel alone."

With 10 years of hotel-motel-resort experience from which to draw her conclusions, Miss Cary fully understands why most single girls travel in pairs.

MORE FUN

"Sure, it's cheaper splitting your room cost two ways. And being with a friend gives many girls a certain sense of security. But, even if you're the shy type you'll have more fun traveling alone," contends Miss Cary.

"A swimming pool is the best place to meet people," she points out. "And, at most resort facilities men are more apt to approach a girl who is sitting alone at the swimming pool than they are to talk to two girls who themselves are usually busy chatting with each other. And, even if the men are traveling in pairs, they're not as concerned with their buddy's plans as is the average bachelor gal with her travelling companion's plans for an evening."

FOLLOW OWN PLANS

Miss Cary also feels that the girl travelling alone "doesn't have to contend with another person's sleeping habits. If you want to get up early or sleep late, you have only your own plans to be concerned with. And, that applies to sightseeing and shopping as well."

Miss Cary guarantees that even the shy girl can't remain insulated if she travels alone.

ALWAYS ENTERTAINED

"I remember the first time I went on a vacation alone—I was fairly young, shy and right out of college. I vacationed in Florida, and strolled out to the pool my first day there. In no time at all I was adopted by three elderly gentlemen — as their fourth for bridge. But, before we even finished playing the first game they began introducing me to every eligible bachelor at the hotel and arranging my evening entertainment for the whole week.

"I'll never vacation with a friend again—unless of course the friend happens to be a husband."

Two Liners To Appear Off Victoria

A treat is in store for Victoria waterfront watchers Sunday and Monday.

The 29,000-ton Orsova will be first to pick up pilot off Brotchie Ledge Sunday at 11:30 a.m.

She will leave Vancouver Monday at 5 p.m. for California ports, Hawaii, the Orient and U.K. via the Suez Canal.

Next to appear will be the 30,000-ton liner Arcadia which will pass Victoria about 11:30 a.m. Monday, according to the Pilotage Authority.

She sails out of Vancouver Tuesday for the U.K. via the Panama Canal.

The two vessels will cross bows in Vancouver harbor Monday at 5:15 as a prelude to the mainland city's sea festival.

It will be the third time two P&O ships have been in the same port in the last 11 years.

RURAL RUSSIA

An Unchanged Land

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

MOSCOW—To North American eyes, the 19th century begins 10 miles outside Moscow.

Moscow, which became the Russian capital only after the 1917 revolution, is a lusty, bustling 20th century city.

But a few minutes drive from the city limits, there lies a world of old villages, of peasants and horsecarts and mud-choked streets that Dostoevsky and Gogol knew.

The Soviets have improved village life immensely, "old Moscow hands" say. The revolution brought a cultural rebirth to the villages—schools, libraries, electricity, radio, none of which existed before.

But a first-time visitor to Russia, driving from Brest to Moscow, gains the impression of an unchanged and unchanging land of peasants still caught in a bleak past.

The area, never self-supporting, is notoriously poorer than other Soviet districts. A comparison between its small towns and the villages and towns of the American midwestern farm belt mocks the boast that Russia will overtake the United States economically in 10 years.

These villages have television, but often only one set in the village club. The unpaved streets are seamed by years of rumbling, horse-drawn wagons carrying grain and peasant families.

Running water is rare. At morning, the villagers trudge along the road carrying two metal buckets—one for water from the well, the other for milk from the village store.

That store sells cheap sausages, eggs and bread to the old women in black—the grandmothers who shop while the young women work in the fields. The few luxuries are dear. A 25-cent bar of chocolate (at American rates) costs 90 cents.

The people dress warmly but colorlessly in quilted jackets and blue or black work clothes. Men wear cloth caps, women wear scarves.

The villages, like many of their people, are old and worn. Unpainted wooden houses, some swaybacked, others sturdy, stand behind whitewashed picket fences. Chickens and children play together in the yards and streets.

Amid the general dullness there is nevertheless a touch of charm and beauty — a beauty more delicate and somehow more poignant than anything found in Moscow.

The slatting of some of the wooden houses is arranged in diagonals, so the entire house is graced visually in geometric patterns. Many village homes have carved wooden window frames of the most intricate and fascinating design.

Occasionally, too, the window frames are painted a bright blue and their brilliance must give joy to the dwellers within as they give delight to the eye of the visitor passing by.

SCOTCH WATER FOR SCOTCH

Scotland is exporting drinking water to New York but the movement has nought to do with the Empire State's current shortage of aqua pura.

It's due to the fact that discerning New Yorkers have now discovered what canny Caledonians have maintained for years: to get the full benefit of Scotch whisky it must be taken with genuine Scotch water.

So Hendry's of Glasgow have bottled a goodly supply of the city's ordinary drinking water, which comes from Loch Katrine, and shipped it to New York in the Cunard freighter Andania.

The shipment comprises 14,400 bottles of "sparkling Scotch water" and 3,600 bottles of "crystal clear Scotch water."

HOLIDAY ALL THE WAY WITH Canadian Pacific

TRAINS / TRUCKS / SHIPS / PLANES / HOTELS / TELECOMMUNICATIONS . . . WORLD'S MOST COMPLETE TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM

All Decked Out . . . And Stacked!

The vital statistics department of the Cunard Line is often asked why a ship is referred to as "she." To set the record straight here are 15 reasons:

She's all decked out and often well-stacked. She has a waist and stays and requires a lot of rigging. There is usually a lot of bustle around her and she always manages to show her superstructure to advantage.

Bows and bells are standard equipment and sometimes she wears a bonnet. She has pleasing lines from stem to stern and there's usually a gang of men around her.

It's not the initial expense that breaks you—it's the upkeep. It takes a lot of paint to maintain her best appearance. In some parts of the world the man who takes care of her needs at home is known as her husband but she leaves him at home when she goes out.

She always knows her destination and her watchword is caution. When entering port she heads immediately for the buoys. And when you want to attract her attention, a whistle is the appropriate signal.

As soon as she gets home all her lines are busy. On a balmy day or a moonlit night she can make any tired businessman forget his troubles.

And once you get to know her you never want to leave her.

Boat Races Galore Along With Fishing

Yacht races, big game fishing or outrigger canoe regattas, Hawaii has them, one and all, during the summer and fall months!

Traditionally one of the Pacific area's most exciting sports events, the biennial Transpacific Yacht Race will wind up their festivities at Waikiki Yacht Harbor in mid-July.

Starting on July 4 at San Pedro, California, the Transpacific Yacht Races have more than 65 entries this year and first arrivals are expected to cross the Diamond Head finish line around July 14.

Gala post-race festivities hosted by Oahu island's three yacht clubs will include everything from champagne parties to beach parties and a presentation banquet.

A highlight, too, will be the Waikiki-Hanalei Race which is expected to have several hundred participants. The Hanalei Yacht Club on the north shore of Kauai will be the centre of post-race activities.

The Big Island is also the locale of the Hawaiian Canoe Racing Association's annual regatta which is held in Hilo Bay on the north shore of the island.

One of Hawaii's oldest championship water sports, canoe races are held throughout the state during the year. The regatta, which will be held August 7, is the highlight of the season.

The two other major races which are held in the fall include the annual Molokai-Oahu races which kick off Aloha Week festivities on Oahu island on Oct. 17 and the coastwise race which is held off the west coast of Mauri during the Lahaina Whaling Spree Oct. 29 to Nov. 6.

SHOPPING IN ORIENT

Always Compare Prices

Shopping for cameras and wrist watches at bargain prices and treasure hunting in out-of-the-way curio shops are part of the fun of a trip to the Orient.

Even travellers who do not intend to buy anything enjoy seeing the remarkable variety of products—from antiques to zori—in cities from Tokyo to Singapore.

Listening to the story of the carved Buddha before purchasing it, or examining the workmanship of a doll's kimono, add to the enjoyment of the experiences.

If you do plan to buy you might note these suggestions gathered from representatives of Japan Air Lines stationed throughout the Orient.

COMPARE PRICES

Whether travellers are buying hand-tailored suits in Hong Kong, strings of pearls in Tokyo or gems in Bangkok, they should buy only from reliable dealers or stores and remember that they get the quality they pay for.

A good rule is to start slowly, comparing prices and quality before making any purchases.

It's easy to buy such unusual items as a Siamese cat or a handsome brass gong in Bangkok, but exotic purchases sometimes lose their glamor after they are brought home unless imaginative new uses can be found for them.

Japanese woodblock prints by well-known contemporary artists, on the other hand, can be of lasting value as well as lasting beauty. They are available at a number of shops in Tokyo at reasonable prices.

Genuine antiques — articles produced before 1830, according to the accepted definition—may be brought into Canada duty free, except for Chinese antiques, which may not be imported at all. Some countries in the Orient restrict export of their antiquities, and only copies may be shipped home.

Big Change Predicted For Fruit

Dean E. D. McPhee, the man who headed the royal commision investigating the Okanagan fruit industry several years ago, said Friday a major revolution is in the making in the interior.

In an interview following his address to the Certified General Accountants of Canada at Oak Bay Marina, the Dean said last winter's disastrous frosts would foster the revolution.

"With such a major loss it means that entire areas will have to be reconstructed," he said. "Some fruit growers may re-plant and carry on but I can see many of them changing their whole way of life and ripping out dead trees and turning to other fields of endeavor."

FINAL TALLIES

The fruit crop loss, already totalled at $10,000,000, could be much higher when final tallies are made next year "and even the year after that" Dean McPhee said.

Asked if he thought the government plan granting fruit growers up to $1,000 to replant destroyed trees was sufficient, Dean McPhee said he didn't think so.

"It isn't really much good, is it he answered. "It takes eight years before a peach tree bears a commercial crop. I would think they need help right now."

Earlier, in his speech, the Dean urged accountants to work harder to educate the public to their skills.

"You have come a long way since you founded this association," he said. "But you still haven't convinced the people, especially the politicians, that you are a professional body."

He said that the future would see the accountant come into his own as a professional.

Lower Duty On Chinese Goods Seen

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The federal government may assist the importation of Chinese textiles, M. J. Solloway of Montreal said here Friday after conferring with Revenue Minister E. J. Benson.

"I received a most sympathetic hearing and I am convinced that something will be done by the Canadian government to end the discrimination that now exists against mainland Chinese textiles," said Mr. Solloway. He is a member of the firm of Sollowary and Policoff Limited of Montreal.

The Montreal importers said he had provided the minister with copies of affidavits he had obtained from experts in the field of textiles. Mr. Solloway said the affidavits stated that Chinese textiles are not comparable to the Japanese products on which the appraised values for duty are based.

Mr. Solloway said he understood there would be meetings between [illegible] and Commerce Minister Mitchell Sharp and Industry Minister C. M. Drury over the question. He understood from Mr. Benson that an early decision on his request would be made.

Stockbrokers Fined $1,000

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange has fined stockbrokers T. A. Richardson and Co. Ltd. $1,000, the exchange said Friday.

The fine was laid after the exchange's board of governors ruled that a former partner, without the firm's knowledge, had carried out a proceeding or trade "which was inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trading."

Under exchange rules, however, the brokerage house is responsible.

Neither the exchange nor Richardson officials would identify the partner involved nor when the incident occurred.

PHONE RATE HIKE DENIED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Bill Rathie charged and the B.C. Telephone Co. denied Friday that telephone rates in B.C. will soon increase.

Mr. Rathie said Thursday a review of the company's operations scheduled for October might pave the way for an application for a rate increase.

But J. Ernest Richardson, company president, said the federal board of transport commissioners' review will be into the company's profit and loss structure and will not deal with telephone rates.

In a statement, Mr. Richardson said it was the board's decision not to include the telephone rates within the terms of reference.

* * *

"We have no knowledge of what the long-term picture is, but certainly an application for increased telephone rates is not planned."

Mr. Rathie said he will suggest city council join the provincial government in representation of the review to protect the public's interest.

The review was ordered after the company announced its profits had risen to $10,900,000 in 1963 from $4,100,000 in 1958.

Canners Seeking Aid For Peach Orchards

PENTICTON (CP) — Representatives of canners and other processors Friday voted to ask the British Columbia government for aid in saving the Okanagan's peach economy — the backbone of the fruit canning industry.

The decision that is connected with the disastrous soft fruit situation in the Okanagan this year was made at a special meeting of the Western Food Processors Association.

The request will be sent to Agriculture Minister Richter.

Cannery spokesmen said that peaches carry the soft fruit canning industry and the processing of such fruits as cherries and apricots would be in jeopardy without it.

But there was some anxiety for the entire fruit canning industry because of the latest figures on this year's soft fruit crop—wrecked by the unusually cold winter.

These figures indicate there will be no peaches compared to a 35,000,000-pound crop last year. About 40 to 50 per cent of the fruit processed by canneries is peaches.

PLANTING LESS

At the same time pears will total about 1,000,000 pounds compared to 42,000,000; cherries 1,000,000 compared to 15,000,000 and apricots 75,000 compared to 19,000,000.

James Rankin of Vancouver, association manager, said not only is the peach cannery in jeopardy because of the winter destruction but orchardists are planting less peach trees. Peach trees pulled out were being replaced by some other kind of tree.

In the normal year canners process about 7,500 tons of peaches, Mr. Rankin said. Requirements had been increasing year by year.

"With growers pulling out peach trees and not replacing them with peach trees, the question canners are asking is 'Where is the future peach tonnage to come from?' "

Growers were not fully aware of the situation.

"They should be increasing their peach plantings to take care of the substantially increased demand indicated," he said.

The cannery men decided to present a brief to Mr. Richter outlining the importance of the processing industry to the Okanagan fruit growers and the need for long-range planning to ensure the continued existence of the processing outlet for fruit in the valley.

MUST ORDER

Mr. Rankin said if growers wish to obtain peach trees of the proper varieties for planting in 1966, orders for nursery stock must be placed within the next week or 10 days.

CPR Places Orders

MONTREAL (CP)—Two CPR subsidiaries have placed $4,200,000 worth of orders with 16 Canadian manufacturers for new highway transport equipment, the railway announced Friday. The orders, placed by Canadian Pacific Transport and Canadian Pacific Merchandise Services, includes double trailer units for use in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

GNP GROWTH RATE SLOWS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's top economic adviser says the United States economy is advancing during the current quarter at an annual rate of five per cent and should continue to rise in the months ahead.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the council of economic advisers, said:

"As anticipated, the economy is not repeating the giant steps of the first quarter when GNP (gross national product) surged ahead at an unusual nine per cent annual rate. But it is moving decisively forward, and the advance of our national product in the current quarter is now expected to show a five-per-cent annual rate.

Index Takes Big Drop During Week

By SEAN FINLAY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Industrial prices zig-zagged in light trading on Canadian stock exchanges this week in a range that included a 1965 low for the industrial index at Toronto and a partial recovery later in the week.

Industrials, in a state of decline since mid-May, appeared to reverse their course and begin the slow climb to higher levels.

The 87-stock industrial index at the Toronto Stock Exchange hit a 1965 low of 164.94 at noon Tuesday. Its high was reached May 14—178.32.

After touching the low, the main list zipped higher, and posted gains for the next three trading-days. Prices fell slightly Friday. On the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, prices also recovered, then backed away.

INDEX DOWN

The Toronto industrial index closed at 167.88, down .36 on the week.

Atlantic Acceptance dropped 13⅞ to 6¾ in heavy trading—147,205 shares—after President C. P. Morgan said the firm was unable to meet some of its short-term obligations early in the week. The company entered receivership Thursday.

The possibility of sweeping changes at the Toronto Stock Exchange was also announced this week. Chief among them is that Lt.-Gen. H. D. Graham, president, will get more power in his post. A special department is being set up to examine floor trading, members procedures and the listing of new firms.

Pipelines and utilities paced the industrial advance, with fractional gains predominant. Chemicals and textiles, papers and metal working issues were lower, while other groups were mixed. Banks, hardest hit in the decline, recovered only part of their losses.

Actively traded issues included Massey-Ferguson, Consumers' Gas, CPR, Abitibi, Atlantic Acceptance, Stelco, Aluminium, Interprovincial Steel and Pipe, Canadian Breweries and Weston B.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Merritt Diamond Sale Considered

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Merritt Diamond Mills Ltd., one of the largest lumber producers in the B.C. interior, may soon become a part of the giant Weyerhaeuser empire.

Hume

Weyerhaeuser, with head offices in Tacoma, Wash., is already deeply committed in B.C. with the building of a 250-ton-a-day pulp mill near Kamloops. The move into the lumber business will give them the diversified operations they desire.

No deal has been signed as yet but Weyerhaeuser has taken out a 90-day option to check the business out and the betting is that they will buy Merritt Diamond outright long before the option period runs out.

The Canadian firm has operated in the Lumb, Merritt and Avola areas since 1950.

I. H. McDiarmid, president of the lumber company, says he's in favor of the sale of the price is right. "The merging of interests would provide both the necessary capital and the experience to utilize more efficiently local forest resources to the benefit of the company's employees, their communities and the province as a whole."

Weyerhaeuser already has Canadian plants at Sault Ste. Marie, Mattawa and Princeville, all in Quebec and all in the hardwood business.

MERGERS IN AIR

Maybe it's just spring, but mergers are in the air everywhere.

Earlier this week Alcan announced that it had purchased outright Morfoils Ltd., of Toronto.

Morfoils manufacture rigid aluminum foil containers.

"The purchase of Morfoils provides Alcan with an excellent opportunity to aggressively seek a growing share of a growing market," is the way R. T. Hyland, vice-president of Alcan puts it. "It is a further step by Alcan, Canada's largest primary aluminum producer, to integrate forward and increase its share of the domestic market."

Which, with the gobbldygook trimmed away means: "We noticed that Morfoils was getting a hefty chunk of the business we wanted so made them an offer they couldn't turn down."

No price was disclosed for the deal.

Western Gypsum Products Ltd., is trying a new switch in customer services.

Instead of sending prospective customers gaily colored brochures displaying their wares they are sending a huge trailer truck, loaded with gypsum products, on a tour of the west.

The truck and its cargo, primarily aimed at building contractors and architects, will be at the Mayfair Plaza June 21-22.

Western Gypsum, better known for its Westroc wallboard, feels that taking the mountain to Mohammed is one way to improve sales.

They could be right.

Pulp Workers Okay Contract

VANCOUVER (CP)—Workers at three pulp mills in B.C. agreed by a 60-per-cent majority to accept a proposed one-year contract containing a 15-cent hourly wage increase.

The Pulp and Paper Workers Union of Canada (CLC) said Friday members at one of the mills—Rayonier (Canada) Ltd. at Woodfibre near Vancouver—had turned down the contract.

The vote by workers at the Celgar mill at Prince Rupert and the B.C. Forest Products mill at Crofton on Vancouver Island, however, brought the over-all total to 60 per cent in favor.

The contract also provides for establishment of an industry-wide pension plan and increased vacations.

BURIED WEALTH

In the early days BARKERVILLE was known as "THE GOLD CAPITAL OF THE WORLD." The historian Bancroft states, "So rich were the concentrations on the bedrock of the old channels, that drifting for them was indeed profitable to a degree probably never equalled in any other gold mining country. They lay in heaps at the angles, and in the crevices and pockets, on the bedrock of the ancient streams."

For this reason the virgin extension of the buried Heron channel near Grouse Creek, just 4½ miles from Barkerville, is of intense interest. Government geologists have reported that the Heron channel was probably "one of the richest—if not the richest—for its size ever found in the Cariboo."

The gold was concentrated in a payseam 2 inches thick and 4 feet wide, 18 inches above the bedrock. $1,500,000, at present valuation, was mined from 400 feet of this channel by less than a dozen men using hand methods in 1867.

The Company has located the downstream extension of the Heron channel. Seismic, drilling, and ground surveys indicate the existence of approximately 4,400 feet of unmined virgin channel ground.

We have overcome the difficulty which defeated the Heron miners. By means of a shaft and crosscut tunnel we have reached the bedrock gutter of this famous buried channel.

We have intersected it some 735 feet downstream from where the Heron miners were forced out of the payseam from which they had been averaging 10 lbs. of gold to the running foot.

After the winter shutdown, our miners are now tunnelling along the bedrock gutter in the direction of the Heron workings. THEY COULD AT ANY MOMENT ENCOUNTER THE RICH SEAM OF NUGGET GOLD.

TIME RUNNING OUT FOR CENTENNIAL PROGRAMS

GOVERNMENT ALSO BLAMED FOR UNCERTAINTY

Indecision of Sports Groups Irks Federal Authorities

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal authorities say they are fed up with the indecision of sports governing bodies on their 1967 centennial programs.

And at least one of the men in charge of amateur sports has replied that the uncertainty can be blamed on government agencies for not revealing how much money is available for special events.

Both viewpoints were aired Friday at the opening of a two-day conference called by the Centennial Commission to discuss and co-ordinate sports programs for 1967.

Arnold Charbonneau, head of the centennial sports program, told about 100 delegates representing most Canadian amateur sport bodies that he doesn't know what they want to do.

Roger Dion, head of the government's fitness directorate, said the time has come "for hard and fast plans."

James Worrell, head of the advisory committee for the fitness council, also warned that time is running out.

Fred Oberlander of Montreal, chairman of the Amateur Athletic Union's wrestling committee, said the government wasn't saying how much money was available to sports to put on their special shows.

Mr. Worrall replied that the time to talk money would come when final plans were submitted.

Delegates divided into four separate workshop after the pep talks. They were instructed to bring back firm recommendations for a 1967 sports program at today's meeting.

In other business the conference was told that planning for the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg in 1967 was ahead of schedule. An international inspection team had filed a glowing report on the work accomplished.

In addition, television networks around the world were bidding for rights to show the Games. A contract would be signed in September.

George Lebrecque, an officer of the first Canadian Games at Quebec City in 1967, announced that 20 sports will be invited for the competition between provincial teams. The games would start in early February and last about 10 days.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh presented Mr. Lebrecque with a cheque for $350,000 as part of the federal government's contribution towards the cost of staging the Games. Another $350,000 will complete the government's commitment.

NEW YORK (NEA)—What happened to the Yankees' farm system which enabled the New York club to dominate the American League for more than 30 years?

For the first time since Col. Jacob Ruppert established the chain in 1932, a dearth of talent definitely was exposed when Ralph Houk had to deal for Doc Edwards, a catcher, and Ray Barker, a lefthand hitter, neither exactly household names.

GEORGE WEISS

For years bright young stars came to the Yankees in clusters. They actually had to wait their turn.

When it was necessary for the Bombers to go out of the organization for a standout performer, such as Roger Maris, they not only had the cash but the players with which to swing the transaction.

So what happened to deplete the Yankees' bank account of reserves? Johnny Johnson, vice-president in charge of minor league operations, the man in best position to know, gives you two principal reasons:

1. George M. Weiss, then general manager, flatly refused to compete with other major league outfits for the most-sought-after kids during the protracted bonus binge.

2. Weiss made multiple trades, using farm products. At one time there were 57 men playing in the big leagues who were originally signed by the Yankee organization.

Johnson, who has been close to the situation for 19 years, is actually saying that Weiss' aversion to huge bonuses finally caught up with the Yankees. And with the numerous multiple deals they ran out of tradeable farm hands.

★ ★ ★

"Weiss was more positive that it was utterly ridiculous to give an untried kid a king's ransom," elaborated Johnson, "after Ed Cereghino, a $70,000 pitcher; Frank Leja, a first baseman who got $45,000, and Tom Carroll, a shortstop who was paid $50,000, failed to get anywhere. George was right, of course, but the way things were going a club either had to bid or see top candidates go elsewhere."

Johnson listed Bill Freehan of Detroit and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston as players the Yankees lost with this attitude.

"We went to $30,000 for Yastrzemski," recalled Johnson. "The Red Sox gave him $110,000."

President Dan Topping plunged into the bonus business with the departure of Weiss after the 1960 World Series. It is ironical that the highest bidder against the Yankees was Weiss. George felt entirely different about throwing Mrs. Joan Payson's money around when he took over the New York Mets.

★ ★ ★

The Yankees to date haven't had any success since belatedly entering the spending spree.

Jake Gibbs collected $100,000; Howard Kitt, a lefthand pitcher, banked $65,000. Gibbs was switched from third base to catching, but about all he has to show for it is broken fingers. Kitt is still trying to locate the plate.

Now the Yankees, one of four clubs who voted against it, are confronted with the free agent draft, which is similar to that of professional football.

"We'll keep trying, of course," concluded Johnny Johnson, "but about all we can do now is sit back and pick the best of what is left when our turn comes around."

GUIDE $150 EXTRA

Licence for Muskox Will Cost You $500

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Northwest Territories has about $100,000,000 in game and fish resources, but only $4,000,000 is being harvested annually, Paul Kwaterowsky, territorial game superintendent, said Friday.

He said six times the current harvest can be taken without endangering game stocks. Lack of knowledge about game movements in the territories' 1,000,000 square miles and a limited population has held the harvest down.

The Territorial Council, now in session, increased the number of game zones to 36 from six and established specific quotas and seasons in each.

On Kwaterowsky's recommendation, council also approved opening Queen Elizabeth Island, lying north of the 75th parallel, to muskox hunting by both Eskimo and visiting hunters.

HUNTERS' PARADISE

Kwaterowsky said the area could become a rich hunters' paradise, with hunters flying in from southern areas. The Muskox licence will cost $500 and cost of an Eskimo guide and dog team would range to $150 daily.

"Muskox still are extremely rare, found only in Greenland and northern Canada, with a few herds in Alaska," he said. He estimated the muskox population at 7,500 on Queen Elizabeth Island.

He added this was sufficient to support a small, annual kill involving hunting trophies and food and hides for native hunters.

Council asked the northern affairs department to prepare a detailed sports hunting plan in the island which would ensure residents would have control over the herds, perhaps through a co-operative.

Council also approved opening moose hunting in an area extending from Fort Smith, near the Albert-N.W.T. border, north to Great Slave Lake and west to Hay River.

11th Straight Win

Les White won his 11th straight game as unbeaten Shepherd's Dairy defeated Yarrows 18-4 in Industrial Softball League action at Macdonald Park.

In other games, Orphans clipped Victoria Plywood 12-10 while Bapoos beat RCMP 13-10.

ARNIE'S GOING HOME

Former king of fairways, Arnold Palmer was sad swinger Thursday after failing to card 10-over-par total of 150 in first two rounds of U.S. Open golf tournament at St. Louis. He missed qualifying for final two rounds and said he was "heading back home" to Pennsylvania.

Pet Pitching 'Pigeons' Ruffled By Mr. Stuart

By UP International

The first order of business for the Los Angeles Dodgers this weekend should be to re-evaluate their "book" on Dick Stuart.

Everybody knows the Dodgers have the best pitching in the National League—everybody, that is, except the Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman who has been a pigeon for other NL staffs. But it's obvious that somebody in the Dodger high command "goofed" in writing the book on Stuart because when he faces Los Angeles pitching he's almost as good a hitter as he says he is.

SHORT WINS

Stuart, acquired in an off-season deal with the Boston Red Sox, has hit only nine home runs this season but five of them have come against the Dodgers. He connected for No. 5 Friday night and it was the blow that brought Chris Short and the Phillies a 4-2 victory.

The win squared the Phillies' season record at .500 and prevented the Dodgers from opening up a 4½-game lead over the Milwaukee Braves, who suffered a 5-4 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Cincinnati Reds downed the Chicago Cubs 3-1, San Francisco Giants defeated the New York Mets 3-0 and the Houston Astros scored a 5-1 victory over Chicago Cubs in other NL games.

In the American League, New York Yankee power routed Minnesota 10-2, Chicago edged Boston 4-3, Washington nipped Baltimore 2-0, Cleveland tripped Los Angeles 3-2 and Detroit topped Kansas City 3-1.

NO FAVORITES

Stuart plays no favorites when it comes to Dodger pitchers. He's clipped Don Drysdale for two homers and Sandy Koufax for one. Stuart whacked his second of the season off Johnny Podres Friday and drove in two other runs with a single.

Short, a problem child since the start of the season, went the route with an eight-hitter to win his fourth straight game against the Dodgers and raise his record to 7-6. The loss squared Podres' record at 3-3.

The Cardinals ended a three-game losing streak when Bill White homered in the 10th-inning to snap a 4-4 tie.

Four-Hitter By Burns Helps Juniors Climb

Wade Burns propelled Morrison juniors into fifth place in the Senior Men's Softball League.

Kingpin of Lew McCorkall's pitching staff, Burns checked in with a four-hitter Friday night as Morrisons edged Carlings 4-3 at Heywood Park.

One of the four hits was Mike Gallo's solo homer in the third inning.

A three-run outburst in the top half of the third, featured by Ken Jackson's double and a single by Dave Bowie, gave Burns the necessary margin.

Vicettes Play At Vancouver

Idle for the past three weeks, Victoria Molsons Vicettes swing back into action Sunday at Vancouver.

The defending Western Canada women's softball champions face Vancouver Texacos at 2:30 and meet Mount Pleasant Legion at 6:30.

Vicettes have won three of four games this season.

AT OAK BAY, RACQUETS CLUB . . .

Aldeguer Eyes Double

Ray Aldeguer is ready to volley for a unique tennis double.

Entered in the Victoria Racquets Club and Oak Bay Tennis Club tournaments, the ambitious Aldeguer reached the men's singles finals at both clubs.

He breezed into the final at Oak Bay with a 7-5, 6-0 victory over Warren Cameron Friday night. He'll meet either Ivor Goodmanson or Ian McLeod in the final.

Aldeguer was to play youthful Roger Skillings in the Racquets Club finals this afternoon.

Skillings picked up his berth with a 6-0, 4-6, 6-1 victory over veteran Gordon Hartley.

All finals in the Racquets Club tournament were scheduled to be played today.

Gill Thomas upset top-seeded Nancy Hill 6-2, 6-4 to move into the ladies' final against Marg Naysmith.

Gary Doesn't Care For Leader's Role

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Little Gary Player out front, big Jack Nicklaus 10 shots back and sturdy Arnold Palmer on the sidelines.

That was the picture in the U.S. Open championship today as the surviving field of 50 golfers teed off in the third round over the long Bellerive course that proved too much for Palmer and 99 others.

But it wasn't too tough for Player, who shot a methodical par 70 in the second round for a total of 140—even par—at the halfway mark.

That gave the 29-year-old South African a stroke lead over another international star, Kel Nagle of Australia, and Mason Rudolph, a touring U.S. pro.

Two strokes off the pace came amateur Deane Beman while Frank Beard was three strokes behind Player with a 143. Former U.S. Open champion Gene Littler and Raymond Floyd were four strokes back at 144.

STRANGE PICTURE

It was a strange picture with Nicklaus so far back, but still hopeful, and Palmer failing to make the cut.

It took 150 or better to qualify for the final two rounds of play today and Sunday and exactly 50 players made it. PGA champion Bobby Nichols, former PGA champions Lionel Hebert, Jackie Burke and Dow Finsterwald, former U.S. Open champion Ed Furgol and such name pros as Phil Rodgers, Don January, Jay Hebert, Bob Goalby, Bob Charles, Dave Ragan, Mike Souchak, George Bayer, Jacky Cupit, and U.S. amateur champion Bill Campbell were among those who joined Palmer on the sidelines.

Still in the running, however, were Australian Bruce Devlin, Rex Baxter and Gordon Jones, all of whom had 145, and British Open champion Tony Lema, former U.S. Open king Billy Casper, and the 53-year-old Sam Snead, all deadlocked at 146.

'STILL IN IT'

A stroke back came Julius Boros, another former Open winner, and Tommy Jacobs, while Bob Rosburg, another former PGA champ, was in the 148 group.

"I'm still in it," Nicklaus said, hopefully. "On a course like this you can pick up six strokes in a round."

He probably will have to do just that for there are 36 golfers ahead of him.

Player wasn't especially happy that he was leading the field.

"I've never been particularly keen about being in front," Player said, adding he though he played better golf on Thursday than he did Friday. He had only one birdie on the second round and one bogey. That gave him his second straight even par round over the rugged 7,191-yard course.

NAGLE SLIPS

Nagle, the first day's leader with a 68, slipped to a second-round 73 while Rudolph shot a 72 to go with his opening round 69.

Beman, who thought he played just as well Friday as he did Thursday, had a 73. Like Rudolph, he had an opening round 69.

Palmer lost his chance to make the cut when he bogeyed the 17th hole.

"I knew then I had had it," he said later.

"Maybe it was time I missed, but I still feel I can shoot this course," Palmer added.

When he shot his second consecutive six-over-par 76 round, giving him a total of 152 — two away from the qualifying limit — it marked the first time in 52 official tournaments that Palmer had failed to win any money. He had failed to make the cut in the Crosby earlier this year but that tournament is not on the official schedule.

It also marked the first time since 1957 that Palmer failed to qualify for the final rounds in the open.

Dejected, Palmer said he definitely would compete in the St. Paul Open, the British Open and the PGA. After that, he has no plans.

CASSIUS WILL GET CREDIT FOR RECORD

LEWISTON, Me. (AP)—The time of the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston bout here May 25 apparently is going into the books as record for a heavyweight title fight despite the widespread dispute over its accuracy.

Clay knocked Liston out in the first round in the announced time of one minute. Ringsiders contended the bout lasted longer, and stopwatches used to time the video tape replay read from 1:45 to 2:11.

However, George Russo, Maine Boxing Commission chairman, said Friday the commission did not expect to change the time.

Flood of Money Aids Cup Plans

By JIM CONWAY

LONDON (CP) — The 1966 World Cup — international soccer's glamor competition — has taken a major step toward becoming Britain's biggest sporting event since the 1948 Olympic Games.

Sports Minister Denis Howell handed the Football Association £500,000 to help bring the seven grounds staging the tournament up to international standards.

Together with the FA's own contribution of £150,000, the money will be spent on improving facilities at Birmingham, Manchester, Sheffield, Middlesbrough and Sunderland and at London's famed Wembley Stadium.

Some of the improvements will be temporary but others will permanently enhance British soccer facilities. The government will pay 90 per cent of the cost of such temporary accoutrements as increased seating — 39,000 extra seats are needed to bring the accommodation to World Cup standard—more parking space and improved arrangements for the press.

MATCHES ON TV

It will also underwrite the cost of such permanent improvements as bars, restaurants and reception areas for overseas visitors.

The seven grounds will be subsidized to the extent of one-third of the cost of improving existing amenities.

In return for the government's financial help, Howell made one request—that all England's matches be televised and that no other match be played at the same time.

But the government will benefit in other ways. It's trying to ensure that facilities for tourists will be first-rate and is counting on them leaving a considerable amount of cash behind.

The government is also trying to get local chambers of commerce to take advantage of the influx of visitors, especially those involved in business, to arrange trade discussions.

But these matters are secondary to soccer buffs. They're concerned with what may be the greatest soccer show of the century. And they're also interested in the possibility that the effects will be felt long afterwards—in greater comfort, perhaps improved attendance at league matches and possibly even a better brand of soccer.

Third Seniors Triumph For Toronto's Hevenor

VANCOUVER — George C. Hevenor of Toronto topped a record field of 134 golfers Friday to become a three-time winner of the Canadian seniors golf championship.

The 60-year-old golfer promised to "try to win it as long as I can." He won in 1962, the year the championship was started, and again last year.

Hevenor toured the soggy Capilano Golf and Country Club course Friday with a seven-over-par 79 to finish with a 229 total in the 54-hole tournament. He shot a 76 his first time out and 74 in the second round.

John Richardson, Vancouver, who trailed Hevenor by only two strokes after Thursday's round, went to pieces with two out-of-bounds shots at the start of his third round and finished the day with an 83.

His three-day total of 235 put him into a second place tie with Monty Hill of Vancouver, the first day's leader. Hill shot an 85 Thursday but recovered Friday with a 77.

Steve Brynjolfson, Powell River, B.C., finished fourth with a 237, two better than fifth place Andrew Morgan, White Rock, B.C.

William Martin, Brantford, Ont., the only other golfer ever to win the championship—in 1963—finished 11th with his 243.

The 6,538-yard Capilano course, perched on the side of a mountain in West Vancouver, proved a tough one for the seniors—all over the age of 55.

Hill's one over par 73 on the first day was the closest any golfer came to par.

The seniors interprovincial team championship went to a British Columbia foursome with their low aggregate score of 946. Ontario, last year's winner of the championship against Quebec, finished second with a total of 989.

One Victorian managed to crack the prizes. Colwood's Larry McCooey won low net honors in "C" class (for golfers 65 to 69) with a 224.

Top gross marksman among the Victorians was Dr. George Bigelow, who put together rounds of 84, 81 and 76 for 251.

SOGGY TRACK SLOWS CLARKE

TAMPERE, Finland (AP)—Ron Clarke of Australia, running on a soggy track in a cold drizzle was timed in 13 minutes, 40.8 seconds for 5,000 metres Friday night. En route to the finish, he was caught in 13:31 for three miles.

Both times are well over the listed or pending world records.

Clarke, whose 28:14 for 10,000 metres at Turku last Wednesday is the fastest ever recorded, started at a near-record pace but slowed down under the adverse weather conditions.

RANCHMAN'S
LONDON
Dry Gin
distilled from select western grains and imported botanicals to our celebrated English recipe
ADL

THE GIN THAT WON THE WEST

When Englishmen first came to their Western Canadian ranches their taste for LONDON DRY GIN came with them.

What more natural thing to do here — where fine grain and glacial water produce splendid spirits — than to import botanicals, such as juniper, coriander and other exotic flora, and begin distilling gin in the LONDON DRY tradition?

From this heritage comes RANCHMAN'S — the western gin with the English accent.

Next time, ask for RANCHMAN'S GIN . . . in any accent you like.

Medical Meet Dominated By Medicare

HALIFAX (CP)—The Canadian Medical Association ended its 98th annual meeting here Friday on the note it began Monday—opposition to compulsory, tax-supported medicare.

The subject crept into almost all the discussions during the week-long convention and Tuesday the CMA's general council approved a policy statement opposing a universal, compulsory scheme.

Ending the convention Friday, three speakers touched on it. Dr. G. E. Wodehouse of Toronto reiterated the association's stand; R. B. MacPherson, an economist with Du Pont of Canada in Montreal also supported the stand.

The only dissenting voice was from Dr. J. M. Beveridge, president of Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S., who said he was in complete agreement with the Hall royal commission's recommendation of the compulsory scheme.

SEEKS WAGES LINK

Mr. MacPherson urged a plan based on the ability to pay.

"Once the government controls an important sector of an individual's income, it is not too great a distance to control of the individual himself."

Canada needed a health program concentrating on training personnel and expanding facilities rather than on income assistance to a population in which the majority could afford its own medical bills.

"I have more confidence in my physician when I pay the bill myself than when a government agency introduces itself into the doctor-patient relationship," he said.

Mr. MacPherson outlined a plan in which the individual would be responsible for medical expenses up to 3 per cent of his net income. Over this, up to 8 per cent, the individual and government would share the cost.

STATE COULD HELP

Medical expenses exceeding 8 per cent of net income should be considered a catastrophe for the individual and the state should then assume a larger responsibility.

When medical expenses exceeded the amount of tax payable the individual would be entitled to a refund.

This was similar to suggestions made by several doctors during meetings of the CMA's general council. They favored medical insurance for everyone, but on a voluntary basis. Those who could not afford high medical expenses should be aided by the government. This case would be decided by the amount of income tax paid.

Russ Premier Reunites Couple

VANCOUVER (CP)—With an assist from Russia's Premier Kosygin a Vancouver man was reunited with his wife and daughter Friday after a separation of 21 years.

Henry Dueck, an employee in a plywood mill, had a tearful meeting with his wife, Margareta, and daughter, Maria, who had lived in Siberia since the Second World War.

The Duecks were German Mennonites living in the Ukraine at the outbreak of the Second World War.

They moved to German-occupied Poland. In 1944 Dueck was sent to a labor camp along with all the other men in his area.

After the war the Russians sent Margareta and Maria to Siberia as punishment for leaving Russia. Dueck eventually came here and started the long hard job of getting his wife and child back with him.

He said he wrote to Premier Kosygin personally and believes that the premier interceded on his behalf.

Hirt Blows Hot Horn To New Fanfare Fame Saturday 7:30, 7, 12

"Professional Loudmouth" Jack Webster In 20/20 Eye-Opener Sunday, 3:30, Ch. 2

"Fanfare," starring Al Hirt, the new summer musical variety series which will be presented for 13 weeks on the CBS television network, premieres Saturday at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12 with an all-star cast including Eydie Gorme, Errol Garner, Eddy Rambeau and Shari Lewis.

Al Hirt, the bearded, 282-pound trumpeter from New Orleans, will serve as host.

In addition to vocalists, instrumentalists and dancers, the program will also highlight comedy and novelty acts. However, some aspect of music will be a part of every performer's routine.

Hirt will play the trumpet each week with his own musical group. There will also be a full orchestra for the show.

"Fanfare," starring Al Hirt, will be recorded on tape at Studio 41 in the CBS Broadcast Centre in New York, marking the first time that a series with a studio audience has been presented from there.

The setting is described as "television in the round," with the audience on three sides of the studio. There will be performing areas in the centre of the studio, on the fourth side and also within the audience locations.

Miss Shari Lewis and Al Hirt will be seen as children in a duet version of "Real Live Girl" from the stage musical "Little Me." Rambeau will sing his hit version of "Concert in Clay."

Eydie Gorme will sing a solo version of "Shall We Dance?" from "The King and I" and duet with Hirt. Leonard Rose, classical cellist, will play "Allegro Appasionata" by Saint-Saens. The Travellers Three vocal and instrumental group will present "Come With Me to That Land," and trumpeter Carole Reinhart will play "Etude in E" by Goedke and "Bugler's Holiday" by Leroy Anderson.

He calls himself a professional loudmouth.

Others call Jack Webster a fraud, louse, and a stentorian vulgarian. Listeners to his daily radio shows in New Westminster, B.C., call him often.

Jack Webster, a newspaperman of the old school, is subject of a 20/20 program Sunday at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

Glasgow-born Webster doesn't report events, he attacks them. He is tough, gruff, with a sense of humor and his daily radio shows are the most listened to on the West Coast.

When B.C. Penitentiary inmates rioted in 1963 they called for Webster to act as negotiator. They said he was the only man they could trust.

Recently in Toronto, a gang of teenagers wielding bicycle chains and baseball bats attacked a group of youngsters out on a picnic.

The story of the vicious attack was carried in all the local papers and once again the reputation of the teenager was impugned.

"This kind of thing is unfortunate," says the Rev. Brian Freeland, assistant supervisor of religious programs at CBC.

"When teenagers get in trouble they make the headlines. But, anyone who has worked with them knows the level of seriousness of many of these young people."

Seven Teens, a two-part program to be shown on Heritage, Sundays June 20 and 27 at 3:00 p.m. on Channel 2, gives viewers an opportunity to see a small group of teenagers tackling important problems and vital questions—What are you looking for in life? Should teenagers drink? What is the role of the church in modern society?

FANFARE . . . Al Hirt and Eydie Gorme

One of the most difficult problems facing today's teen-ager is conformity. Their main contention is that they are branded rebels if they don't conform, and "square" if they do. "You've got to be part of the group, and yet an individual . . . and it's hard," added one of the boys.

During a discussion of the meaning of prayer, the seven teen-agers showed their individuality. "Prayer is everything we do," offered one young man. "Yes, I agree," added one of the girls. "It's not just kneeling down and folding your hands."

There was a dissenting voice: "But isn't prayer kind of a false hope?

Another young man tried to sum it all up: "Prayer is directly related to your belief in God, and however shaky that belief is, so is your belief in prayer."

Juliet Prowse, Soupy Sales, the Dave Clark Five, Cab Calloway and Totie Fields headline "The Ed Sullivan Show" Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channels 2, 6, 7, 12.

Miss Prowse will sing "Sometimes I'm Happy" and dance to the song with the program's choreographer, Hugh Lambert.

Soupy Sales, a popular comedian with America's teenagers, will offer a humorous routine.

Other guests are Arthur Haynes, British comedian, who will appear in a sketch with Nicholas Parsons and Leslie Noyes; the Malmo Girls, 16 Swedish gymnasts who have been booked on this show as a result of their enthusiastic reception last Sunday (June 6), and Elizabeth and Collins, knife throwers.

AL HIRT

'The Beard' Hits It Big But Big-Big

Al Hirt, who has made a specialty out of appearing on other people's television programs, now is host of his own show, "Fanfare," a new summer musical series.

In this new role, Hirt will be spotlighted as he really is—jovial, genial and with just a hint of mischief.

It was, as a musician, specifically a trumpeter, that Hirt rose to prominence. The bearded, 282-pound showman from New Orleans is one of the record industry's "hottest" artists. This year alone he has had six albums in the top 50 on the charts, a feat unequalled by a singer and unheard of for an instrumentalist. His version of "Java" is one of the all-time instrumental best sellers.

NEW ORLEANS

Hirt grew up in New Orleans, where he was born Nov. 7, 1922. He left there, temporarily, in 1940 to study, on a scholarship, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, now part of the University of Cincinnati.

Second World War interrupted his education, and he entered the army in October, 1942. Just before going overseas he married Mary Paturea, daughter of his high school algebra teacher. He was discharged in 1946.

Ironically, it was a job outside the entertainment field that started Hirt on his way to show-business stardom. While working as a pest control salesman in 1957, he was introduced to his employer's father-in-law, who owned the Pier 600, a local night club. The owner, impressed by Hirt's trumpet playing, hired him to work on weekends. It wasn't long before he was appearing full time at the club with his own musical group.

Hirt's increased local popularity over the next few years resulted in his first big nightclub booking outside of New Orleans—at the Empire Room of the Palmer House in Chicago, in 1959. Although a success, the engagement failed to bring him additional job offers, and he returned to New Orleans discouraged.

LAS VEGAS

In November, 1960, Hirt was booked into the lounge of the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas. This time he was a solid success, with the critics as well as the audience. Television appearances with Dinah Shore and Ed Sullivan followed quickly, as did a number of night club offers, including Basin Street East in New York. Within a year he had a major recording contract.

As his career skyrocketed, Hirt found himself making concert appearances (including Carnegie Hall), playing club dates and being booked for television guest shots. Meanwhile, he has kept New Orleans as his home base. He will commute from there to New York for his television show.

Hirt has also continued to work at the Pier 600. He bought the club in 1962 and last year changed its name to the Al Hirt Club.

"Everybody was calling it Al Hirt's Place, anyway," he says, "so we decided we might as well change the name officially."

Hirt is the father of eight children: Mart Lee, 21; Gretchen, 19; Rebecca, 14; Bridgid, 13; Rachael, 11; Stephen, 9; Jennifer, 7, and Jefferson Davis, 5.

Peace-Keeper Canada U.N. World Sentinel Story Wed., 2, 6

Jack Paar's Farewell Recalls Great Times Friday at 10 p.m. on Channel 5, in Color

Postmark U.N.E.F., a half-hour visit with Canadian soldiers serving the cause of peace in the Middle East will be featured Wednesday at 10:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

The film, produced by the National Film Board of Canada, is a report on the United Nations Emergency Force, particularly the work and activity connected with the daily routines of Canadians stationed at three of the world's trouble spots.

Along the Gaza Strip, Canadians patrol the dividing line between Israeli and Egyptian forces. The UN force in Jordan is alert for possible violence which may erupt anytime between Arabs and Israelis.

In Cyprus, where tension is always at its peak, Canadians police the land of the Greeks and Turks maintaining order between two bitter factions.

For the UN soldiers there is little excitement involved in patrolling these areas of friction but the threat of a sudden outbreak of hostility is ever present. The daily routine of constant vigil could be sharply interrupted by open aggression from either side.

Postmark UNEF combines a report on United Nations activities in these areas with visits to three ancient cities of the East—Cairo, Jerusalem and Salamis, toured by three Canadians during leave from duty.

Great moments with Jonathan Winters, Beatrice Lillie, Richard Burton and others will be featured in the farewell show of "The Jack Paar Program" Friday, at 10 p.m. on Channel 5. For his finale, Paar will be in the studio without an audience to introduce each segment.

The segments to be presented have been selected from Paar's three seasons in his hour-long, prime-time format. He also will offer segments of "Some of the Things That Went Wrong" during the series.

"The Jack Paar Program" debuted Sept. 21, 1962. During the three years, Paar has presented such internationally-known figures as Dr. Albert Schweitzer, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, former Vice-President Richard Nixon, former Senator Barry Goldwater, Lord Mountbatten, Dr. Billy Graham, Bishop Fulton Sheen and Senator Everett Dirksen.

A novel feature of the series has been the presentation of film sequences taken throughout the world, many by Paar. The remote areas visited via film included the South Pacific (for a retelling of the PT-109 incident in the life of the late President Kennedy and the story of the Bounty mutineers), East and West Africa, and the Amazon River.

Paar has filmed (from a helicopter) London, Rome, Athens and Jerusalem. Paar has also done more shows from England than any other U.S. star.

VD Control Plan 'Checking' Disease

By AB KENT

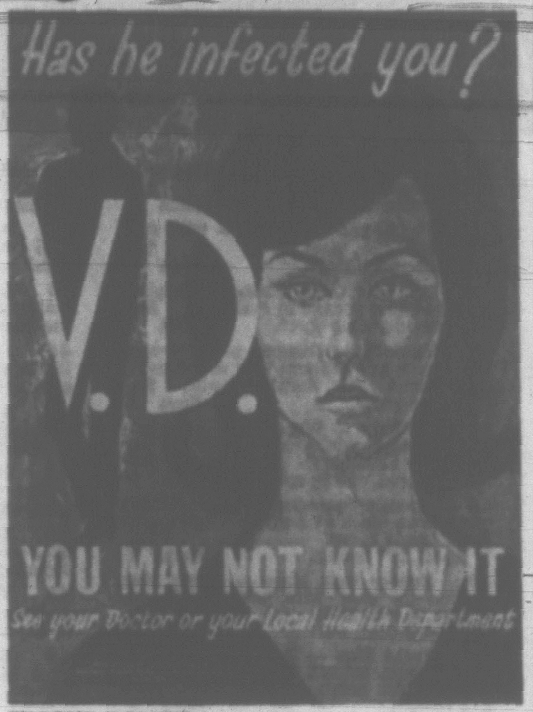
A group of B.C. civil servants is building a secret file on the sex life and habits of promiscuous young women.

The undercover work was disclosed Friday by Health Minister Eric Martin and his director of the division of venereal disease control, Dr. Harold Kennedy, of Vancouver.

The "black book" on young women is being compiled in an effort to trace the spread of gonorrhoea.

"We think we've slowed the increase," Dr. Kennedy said, referring to the decline in cases since 1956.

But gonorrhoea remains a difficult disease to fight, partly because its early symptoms in women go virtually unnoticed and symptoms in men don't show until between two and seven days after infection, the director said.



Has he infected you?
V.D.
YOU MAY NOT KNOW IT
See your Doctor or your Local Health Department

SECOND POSTER in the B.C. health department's anti-VD campaign was unveiled Friday by Health Minister Eric Martin. The first poster, showing a seductive redhead leaning against a lamppost, sparked criticism from groups who wondered why women were being blamed for spreading the disease. The new poster displays a sad-eyed brunette with a man in the background.

33% DROP

The campaign against gonorrhoea presents a "completely different problem" to efforts to control syphilis, which has showed a 33 per cent drop in the past year, Dr. Kennedy said.

There are about 500 women with the disease in B.C., he said. Vancouver has about 100 and another 60 appear centred in the booming construction area of Prince George.

Victoria has virtually none, and in fact shows relatively low incidence of VD generally — only 170 cases last year.

ALL CASES REPORTED

Dr. Kennedy said Prince George has been prominent in the VD picture because its doctors are keen and report every case that comes to their attention.

Mr. Martin described the girls on whom his department is concentrating as "pickups." They consist of local and area residents and transients.

The habits and movements of as many pickups as possible are recorded. VD fighters check beer parlors, hotels, local doctors and contacts, frequently phoning ahead to the next town's public health office to "head off" the quarry.

A treatment in time will save the risk of further infection or permanent damage to victims and costly, time-consuming detective work by VD fighters.

The problem is complicated by the fact that the Prince George area has about 3,000 unattached construction workers.

Sometimes, Dr. Kennedy said, a man will take a couple of girls through a logging camp, infecting many occupants who don't realize they have the disease until the girls have left.

90% CUREABLE

Dr. Kennedy described gonorrhoea as 90 per cent cureable, but treatment is hard when transients are involved.

Treatment is free — penicillin shots are the most effective, unless a patient is allergic — and most girls sought out by the department are aware of it. However many are unconcerned or ignore the slight symptoms, the doctor said.

In the first four months of 1965 there were 2,471 cases recorded and officials expect 5,929 by year's end. Last year there were 5,821 cases.

There have been 67 primary syphilis cases so far this year and another 100 are predicted.

INTENSIFIED APPROACH

Mr. Martin described the last year of work in the VD field as an "intensified approach" using epidemiological methods.

With syphilis, all contacts and associates are given a penicillin shot, whether or not they have symptoms of the disease, which take up to three months to show.

Dr. Kennedy figures there are four contacts per case and 80 per cent of them are found. Treatment is 100 per cent effective, provided it is given early, and takes only eight days to complete.

With syphilis, 40 per cent of cases are severe, and more dangerous than polio. "But because of the nature of the way it is contacted there is a tendency to keep it hushed up," Dr. Kennedy said.

'Quiet Old Victoria Humming'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Victoria may have a reputation for stuffiness, stodginess and nightlife that adds up to zero, but "quiet old Victoria is humming," says the capital city's Mayor R. B. (Dick) Wilson.

Mayor Wilson defended his city's reputation in a letter to the Vancouver Executives' Association outlining how Victoria rejuvenated its downtown area with "people space" and "pedestrian environment."

"We, like you, have enjoyed the jokes about Victoria," the mayor said.

"The stories that we roll up the sidewalks every night . . ."

"We don't bury the dead, they just walk around . . ."

"A dog chasing a cat and they were both walking . . ."

"These jokes were some of our best publicity," said Mayor Wilson. "But quiet old Victoria is humming."

The mayor said increased ferry service to Vancouver Island is having a tremendous impact on Victoria's economy. Rejuvenation of the downtown area coupled with a $3,500,000 Centennial Square is turning the capital into an aesthetically beautiful city.

"Victoria is never going to be an industrial city like Vancouver," he said. "So we decided to relax and not try to copy you."

Douglas Visits Quebecers

By MALCOM REID

ST. JOSEPH DE BEAUCE, (CP) — T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, a veteran of rural politics in his native Saskatchewan, walked down Palace Street in this mixed farming town of 4,000 south of Quebec City Friday to timid greetings from its French-speaking citizens.

"I think Tommy Douglas has fallen in love with the Beauce," said the NDP chief's Quebec "bras droit" (right-hand man), Robert Cliche, a St. Joseph lawyer.

Politics was played down in Mr. Douglas' first visit to rural French Canada, but he did tell the two dozen parish dignitaries gathered in St. Joseph's combination cinema and city hall, he hopes they will send Mr. Cliche to Ottawa "as French Canada's spokesman in the New Democratic Party."

But he doesn't expect them to have the chance for another year, he told reporters, since it will take that long to redraw the ridings of Canada on the basis of 1961 census figures. Beauce is represented by Creditiste Gerard Perron in the present House.

CRITICIZES LESAGE

Mr. Douglas Friday criticized Premier Jean Lesage's recent attack on international trade unions.

DOUGLAS
. . . bonjour

"I think the first thing Mr. Lesage should realize is that finance and industry in Canada are international," he said on arrival in Quebec before motoring to St. Joseph with his deputy. "Unions like my own typographers' union need the backing of United States members to make their pension plans solvent."

The premier's outburst against U.S.-affiliated unions, most of which belong to the Canadian Labor Congress and hence are close to the labor-oriented NDP, sprang from discussion this week of the Quebec pension plan, which Mr. Lesage said would be fought with a general strike if it touched union officers' funds held in the United States.

At city hall Mr. Douglas exchanged prepared bilingual speeches with Acting Mayor Adrien Cote and received a hand-turned teapot from ceramist Jacques Garnier, 31, head of the craft-exporting Beauce Ceramics Syndicate.

Buy Chevy II on the exciting 'save now–save later' plan!
Some cars are built to pass everything on the highway except gas stations. Not Chevy II. Oh, Chevy II's no laggard when it comes to moving out in style, but you don't need an interest in an oil well to run one. Thank Chevy II's standard 120-hp Hi-Thrift Six for that. Mind you, you can be even thriftier (with the Four) or even peppier (there are three V8s!) And being a gas-miser isn't Chevy II's only help to your budget; we'll just mention here self-adjusting brakes, flush-and-dry rocker panels, Delcotron electrical system and an extended life exhaust system. Which pretty well takes care of the 'save later' part of the plan. As for the 'save now' part, your Chevrolet dealer will be just the man to show you how you can do that — especially right now during his Trade 'N' Travel Time. See him soon.

OAS Takeover Of DR Economy Under New Plan

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The Organization of American States, hopeful of an imminent political settlement of the Dominican civil war, is drafting a plan to take temporary control of the Caribbean republic's economy.

Reliable OAS and U.S. sources said the target date for the plan is at the end of this month. By that time the OAS hopes the Dominican rebels and the civilian-military junta both will have accepted a peace formula the organization proposed Friday.

The OAS called on the warring factions to end the fighting, agree to the formation of a provisional government and allow elections in six to nine months under OAS supervision.

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker of the United States, a member of a three-man OAS peace mission, said he is "encouraged by the reception" of the proposal by both sides. Formal replies from the rebels and junta are expected in two or three days, other OAS sources said.

Under the economic plan now in outline form, the provisional government would surrender all its revenue to the OAS, which then would make all budget expenditures until the country gets back on its feet.

Because Dominican revenues are inadequate to cover expenditures, the United States would pump at least $10,000,000 a month into the country through the OAS, the sources said.

An OAS official said: "The result would be decisive control of the Dominican economic system. Normally, the government is the nation's biggest employer and biggest spender."

STUDEBAKER MOVES AHEAD

VICTORIA (DM)

Studebaker announces that it will introduce its 1966 line of automobiles with all new interiors and front and rear exterior restyling.

Gordon E. Grundy, President of Studebaker's Canadian-based Automotive Division, said the 1966 models will feature improvements to increase the comfort, durability and utility of Studebaker automobiles.

The 1966 line will continue to include sliding roof Station Wagons, two and four-door sedans in the Commander, Daytona and Cruiser lines of Studebaker cars.

One major feature of the 1966 Studebakers will be across-the-board use of a new ventilation system as standard equipment. The new system provides a constant flow of fresh air through the passenger compartment, even when all window vents are closed. It eliminates the tendency toward fogging of interior glass surfaces.

The 1966 models are scheduled for early public introduction in dealer showrooms by late September.

The Hamilton, Ontario, factory will close for model changeover and vacations during July. This plant, which employs more than 1,000 salaried and hourly personnel, recently signed a three-year agreement with the United Auto Workers of Canada.

The 1966 model changes will not affect Studebaker's announced policy of providing customers with mechanical running changes during the model year, Grundy added.

During the 1965 model year, for example, Studebaker began installing Transistorized Ignition as standard equipment on one model, the first North American auto manufacturer to do so. The improvement also was made a low cost $42.50 option on all other Studebaker cars.

In addition, the Company recently announced addition of three new "running change" safety features on 1965 cars. These included safety door latches, a new accelerator pedal and a safety change in rear axle design.

Studebaker soon will introduce a new air conditioning unit, available on all its cars for the balance of 1965 and through 1966 as well as other utility and convenience improvements.

Grundy declined to discuss details of the 1966 models except to say that the new interiors will be the "most luxurious ever to appear in a Studebaker automobile." He said the 1966 model announcement was an indication of Studebaker's determination to continue its pattern of steady improvement in its automotive product.

The Corporation was pleased to report to the press on April 13 that their first quarter operating profits were up 74 per cent over the first quarter of 1964. This is the fifth consecutive quarter of profits for the Corporation which earned $8,064,934.00 during all of 1964.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1965 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

At our house, as in many another throughout British Columbia, we are once more enduring the whips and jingles of examination time.

It's a rough go, especially since these aren't just any old exams but a full set of Grade 12 brain-busters and there are moments wher we wonder if we'll last the course.

True, experience is on our side since we have already travelled the rocky road of the would-be matriculant with our son. But there are aspects we had forgotten until the second of our hostages abandoned her happy-go-lucky ways and started cramming.

There is, for instance, the rule of silence; and as one accustomed to being noisy around the house, I find it particularly trying. Television and radio are muzzled so that only a whisper emerges. I can't sing, whistle, drop ashtrays or bang things, and the other day I got chawed out for sneezing.

★ ★ ★

Much worse, though, in the plodding journey from Latin to English to French to mathematics is the moment when the student checks in after each wrestle with an examination paper.

With us, it goes something like this:

Student walks down driveway, head bent and shoulders drooping. Closes door softly behind her, instead of giving it customary slam. Sits down, to stare at opposite wall, a picture of quiet tragedy.

She: Well. I guess that takes care of that.

We (anxiously): Was it a hard one?

She: Hard? Whoever thought up those questions was a fiend. An absolute fiend!

We: You'll feel better about it later. After all, it's one of your favorite subjects.

She (darkly): They'll have to upgrade everybody! If they don't, it will be a complete wipeout. Even the brains couldn't get anywhere with it. (Goes out for a cookie, returns to stand by window, munching.) I didn't even touch the last question, and it was worth 40 marks!

We: You mean you didn't write anything on it? Nothing at all?

She: Oh, I made a few wild guesses. I suppose they might give me a mark or two for them. As a matter of fact, the first part wasn't as bad as I expected . . .

★ ★ ★

By this time, experienced parents have read between the lines, and can venture a sigh of relief.

Translated, the tragic melodrama offered above boils down to this:

"It was a pretty hard paper, but I think I passed it."

It seems to be a fact of life that, to the conscientious student, no examination is easy. These incline to hair-splitting. They fret and fuss over the minute details of each question. The minor lapse, the failure to achieve completely, is to them a disaster.

The worst moaner I ever encountered copped a lieutenant-governor's medal with an average that all but blew the top out of the academic thermometer.

If worry one must, the time is when the jouster in the examination lists fails to come home in a state of shock.

More times than not, the jaunty step, the carefree smile, the casual dropping of terms like 'easy,' 'cinch,' or 'nothing to it!' mask a nose-dive into failure.

So far, with us, the news has all been bad, thank goodness.

And we hope this happy state of gloom and woe will continue until the last exam is written!

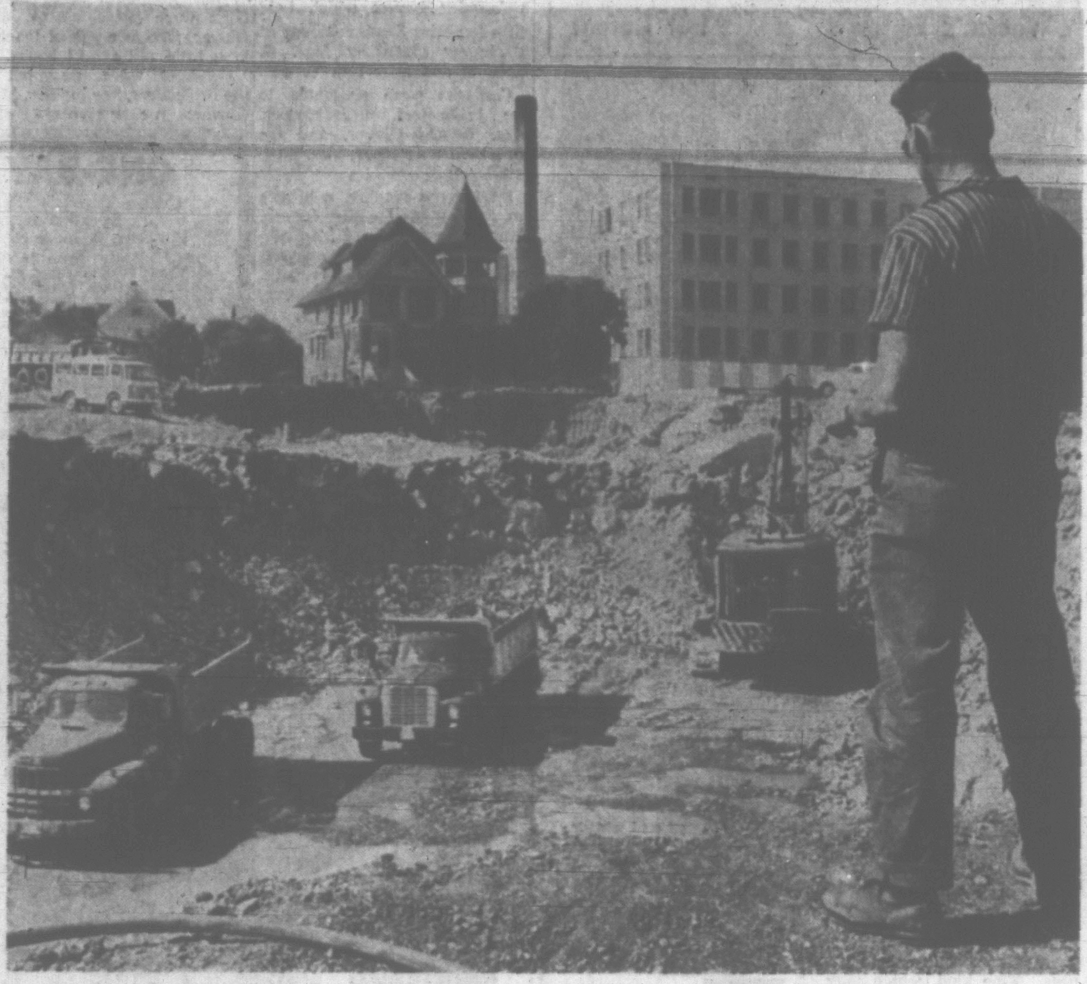
Home Zoning 'Ridiculous'

Residential zoning in Saanich is ridiculous, says municipal planner Tom Loney.

He pointed out in a report to council there are 16 residential zones with minimum floor areas ranging from 600 square feet to 1,400 square feet.

Sixteen zones are hardly needed and Vancouver only has nine, he said.

He suggested two zones which permit 600-square-foot minimums be eliminated because they are too small.



BIG HOLE in the ground today will have a big building when excavation ends and construction begins on new provincial museum. The $7-million structure, on Belleville Street, near the Legislative Buildings, is a provincial Centennial project. By the middle of August, 22,000 cubic yards of rock and 50,000 yards of earth will have been moved. Douglas Building is in background.

RECORD TOTAL FOR STUDENTS

Uvic Lists $22,000 in Prizes

Winners of a record $22,000 in prizes and scholarships for the 1964-65 session have been announced by the University of Victoria senate.

A jump from last year's total of $13,000 is mostly accounted for by $7,500 in new awards, called the President's Scholarships.

Several other new scholarships have been awarded this year.

Among top winners were Alexander Michael Dawes who took a $250 MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. award and a $300 President's Scholarship.

Frank Graham Sommer received the $500 1958 Centennial Scholarship, a Francis Jewelers gold wrist watch, the G. B. Stark Memorial slide rule prize and a book prize for German studies.

Full list of winners will be published Monday.

University Women's Club Rosalind W. Young scholarship of $200 went to Gabriele Johanna Seidel, as well as a $100 bursary from the Canadian Daughters' League.

Carolyn Gail Menzies was one of six students awarded special biology scholarships of $200, as well as a $300 Pearse science scholarship for biology.

Winners will receive their awards at a fall academic assembly, since many of the prizes require students to continue university studies.

Hundreds more students may receive a third to a half of next year's tuition fees under the provincial government's money-for-marks program.

The newly-established President's Scholarships, totalling $10,000, were announced earlier this year by president Malcolm E. Taylor.

Fifty students have been named to receive $7,500 of the awards, in amounts ranging from $50 to $500.

FIVE STUDENTS

The remaining $2,500 will go in $500 amounts to five students entering first year in September.

Government scholarships provide one-half of the year's tuition fees for first class students and one-third of the fees for students with a high second class average.

They must be applied for before July 1, and results are announced at a later date.

To be eligible for scholarships students are required to take a full course and must obtain a first class or high second class average.

PAIR TO FACE CHARGE IN PHOTO LAB CASE

A naval officer and a civilian employee of the RCN will be charged in connection with an alleged shortage of navy photographic materials.

They will appear in court Monday afternoon to face a charge, it is understood.

The court action is the culmination of a lengthy RCMP investigation into missing supplies from the photographic branch at HMCS Naden.

The investigation began after commercial photographers in the city complained to police. Last December police seized a quantity of material in a local studio.

The operator of the photography studio said he bought the supplies from a man who claimed to operate a supply business as a sideline.

WHAT BATTLE? ANSWERS FULTON

If there's a battle on for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, E. Davie Fulton says he hasn't heard about it.

In a telephone interview from Vancouver's International Airport this morning, Mr. Fulton once again denied that he was seeking the leadership of the party.

"I have stated before on many occasions that all I am interested in at the present time is being elected to the House of Commons in the Kamloops riding," he said.

"My position remains unchanged."

Asked if he would welcome the news that Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba had entered the leadership race, Mr. Fulton replied: "I'm not aware of any race for the leadership of the Conservative party."

Mr. Fulton was interviewed en route to Victoria where this afternoon he addressed the annual meeting of the Certified General Accountants Association of Canada.

He told the accountants that many of the basic principles applied in accounting could be used in politics to advantage.

"The principles of factual honesty could well be used in Canadian politics to the betterment of the nation," he said.

Mr. Fulton gave his address at the Empress Hotel a few minutes after arriving in the city.

Thieves Hit 2 Firms; $10, Cigarettes Taken

Thieves overnight Friday broke into Ames Paints, 1821 Douglas Street, and then chopped through an adjoining door and got into Lee's Produce, 1823 Douglas.

They stole $10 from the paint shop and 10 cartons of cigarettes from the grocery store.

Dealer Defends Tires Used On Japanese 'Bike'

Not all Japanese motorcycles have hard tires with poor traction, a city dealer said today.

Charles Mullins, who sells Yamaha machines, said they use a well-known North American brand of tire.

This motorcycle has won five international safety awards for tires, steering and general safety, he said.

Earlier this week, another city dealer called for government tire inspection to eliminate machines which have poor-quality tires.

The comments came after the Motor Vehicles Branch indicated changes in legislation covering licences and testing for motorcyclists.

TAKING A SNEAK PREVIEW of the cairn and plaque which will commemorate 100th anniversary of Esquimalt Harbor's establishment as a naval base are HMC Dockyard secretaries Anne Williscroft and Betty Marr. Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele will unveil the plaque at a ceremony June 26, attended by Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, and Dockyard Commodore H. A. Winnett.

Campbell OK's 400-Home Plan In N. Saanich

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The green light has been signalled for a controversial 400-house subdivision on the slopes of Mount Newton in North Saanich.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said developers of the subdivision near John Dean Park have agreed to six conditions set by him.

His department now is completing zoning regulations incorporating these conditions.

The minister said he believed the site to be a good place for residential development provided it is fully serviced and the public not burdened with excessive servicing costs in the future.

The subdivision was strongly opposed at public hearings last year and in January by planners and residents.

They said approval of the scheme would be a break with the capital region development plan and create sprawl with pockets of building, rather than an orderly growing of existing population centres.

HALF-ACRE

Developers had sought half-acre lots in the area where the present restriction is two acres, an effective curb on subdivision.

One of Mr. Campbell's conditions gives the minimum lot size as half an acre and the minimum house size 1,200 square feet.

His five other conditions are:

- Quality control, rather than the policy of minimum standards;
- For this purpose, a comprehensive residential zone will be created;
- The agreement must be binding to the land and can include a phasing program so builders need not embark on the whole program immediately;
- Each lot must be served with a guaranteed water supply; there must be approved sanitary sewage disposal; all roads must be paved, have storm drains and street lights;
- Five per cent, or 20 acres, of the gross area must be set aside for parks.

One of the initial problems facing developers will be water supply.

WATER FOR 120 LOTS

Reeve R. Gordon Lee has said the Central Saanich waterworks can only guarantee at present water for 120 lots.

The company developing the subdivision is Dean Park Estates Limited composed of four or five individuals. Denis Hagar is president.

He said this morning it will take about 1½ years to lay out plans before any subdivision occurs. The entire project is being built around a 10-year plan.

The estate will be "one of the finest in British Columbia," he said. The company will sell lots and individuals will arrange to have their homes built according to regulations.

He also said there is sufficient water in the next two years from Central Saanich and Sidney for 200 homes.

The capital region plan drawn up in 1958 foresaw a population increase to 250,000 by 1981—about 90,000 more than at present.

The plan saw these additional people being accommodated through an orderly and logical progression outwards from present populated areas.

It warned against spot development which would cause sprawl, offering no advantages that can't be provided more economically, raising taxes, prematurely increasing the value of land and disturbing agricultural development.

Planners and residents said approval of the Mount Newton plan would set a precedent that might allow similar projects.

However, it likely will be the only such development in North Saanich, which could become a municipality by August or September.

Liquor Level Highest Ever

Ray Padgema, 28, of the Kings Hotel, had a blood alcohol level of .35 per cent when tested at the city police station Friday night.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said this morning in court it was the highest reading he ever heard of.

Padgema, who pleaded guilty to having the care of a vehicle while drunk, was given a 15-day jail sentence.

Mr. Birkett said police found Padgema trying to start a car on Store Street near Johnson shortly after 6 p.m. Friday. When he was asked to get out of the car he fell out, said Mr. Birkett.

Padgema was unable to stand without support and he told police: "I was just going to drive home."

REACHING TO THE SKY is this 400-square-foot mural being painted at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory by artist Juan Greuer of Ottawa. Called Eulogy to the Stars, the mural was inspired by Greek mythical tale. The painting, now nearing completion after two months, uses acrylic paint applied on a special cement plaster. PLANNER RAPS MINISTER

'Leapfrog Development' Under Fire

Approval of the Mount Newton subdivision drew strong criticism this morning from the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

Branch president Mrs. B. Levitz Packford criticized the decision for three reasons:

- North Saanich is about to become a municipality and it should decide the matter;
- The subdivision is "at "complete variance" with the Capital Region Planning Board report;
- The move "flouts every sound planning principle" by allowing leapfrog development.

She said this will prove "very, very expensive" with the provision of water, sewers, lights—and then schools, fire protection and so on.

The proposed action by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell "negates all his fine sentiments about planning," she said.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you give me the specific name of what we call flying ants? V.C.

A. Provincial agriculture department advises there are dozens of species of ants which have wings at one time during their life cycles.

But the one which is seen most in this area is a large, black ant with a wing-spread up to three-quarters of an inch.

It is a wood burrowing pest and is known as a carpenter ant.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

In Step With Style

ACCESSORIES ARE THE KEY

MONTREAL — The extremities can make or break the total fashion picture. A hat which is becoming, en tone and seasonably correct could be the focal point of your entire costume.

Damaske

Shoes, correctly fitted and suitably styled for the occasion, can mean the difference between a relaxed, well-postured woman and a woman who slips untidily out of her shoes — even at public functions!

Shoes, millinery, furs, gloves, handbags, hosiery and jewelry were an important part of the recent National Collection Show, arranged by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in this city's Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Each costume was a complete picture of Canadian design. We can be proud of our Canadian manufacturers and we can certainly "think Canadian" when we look for good style and fine workmanship.

Next fall and winter's look in millinery is one of motion, in line with the whole fashion picture. Hats which pitch back are in the forefront. Tossed toward the nape of the neck, they're usually finished with a mobile bow.

The fashion concept for the coming season is slanted to the "young look" and millinery falls most engagingly in line.

Head-hugging, tied-under-the chin wool bonnets, shaped velour helmets, tweed schoolboy caps and tossed-back velvet tams all emphasize the young carefree look.

The very newest shape is the enveloping, dome-shaped "space hat." Usually, the only hair that escapes from these hats is a heavy, eyebrow-meeting fringe of bangs.

FUR CHAPEAUX

The Spanish influence, seen in suits and dresses, has passed as far as millinery is concerned. Fur hats will be the most important for dead-of-winter wear.

Millinery colors are vibrant with the accent on rich vintage shades, emerald green and turquoise. Blacks and browns are pushed into the background.

The "young look" is also the magic phrase in the 1965 footwear fashions. This season, the Canadian manufacturers have given every woman a chance to get the shoe of her heart's desire. Materials are soft, light and made to move. Styling is gracefully feminine, flattering the foot.

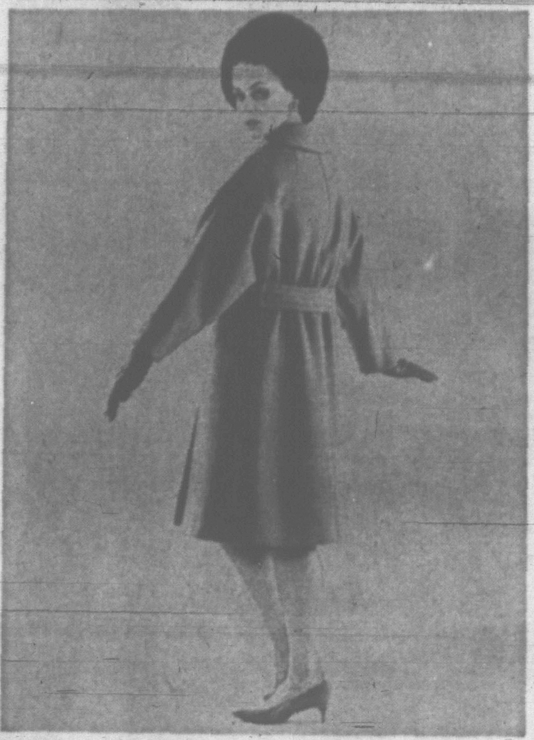
Suede, in its rich elegance, is playing the lead after many years in the wings. Reptiles race repeatedly through the shoe story.

For the fashion gourmets, there is snake, alligator and lizard in all their glowing richness. Fine kind, which may be cut and manipulated to fashion the new string-strap afternoon shoes, is here in the most subtle of shades.

Toes still tend toward more roundness and heels are falling from their toppling heights, settling for illusion length or lower. Ties . . . bows . . . buckles, you'll find them everywhere.

Women

Women's Editor Put Dufour



Fur hats, like this one, will be big news in fall and winter fashions. The Spanish influence is seen in the coat of camel gabardine that has deep-set sleeves, outlined in welt seaming. The coat is by Berger-Swartz of Toronto and made its debut at the Montreal show.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Furniture that's a joy to behold . . .

It was a renewed pleasure to visit The Gallery at Home Furniture the other day, after an absence of several weeks . . . A lot of lovely new pieces have been arriving from here and there . . . As you know, most of this fine furniture is imported, and is absolutely unique in Victoria . . . We noticed several strikingly beautiful secretary desks . . . One little charmer is called an escritoire . . . Tall and narrow . . . looks like a chest of drawers, two of which pull down to form a delightful little writing desk . . . Very feminine . . . A large secretary desk . . . of rich mahogany veneer banded and inlaid, with genuine leather 24k gold tooled top . . . Others in various sizes . . . A lot of new decorative chairs . . . A beautifully grained mahogany lowboy with small utility drawers . . . would make a fine serving table . . . Some charming curio cabinets in fruitwood or mahogany . . . And new to complement your maple furniture, are colonial standing clocks . . . 5' 6" high . . . with 8-day movements and little shelves for knick-knacks . . . Two or three different designs in these, and they actually look like little grandfather clocks . . . without the pendulum . . . You'll find a lot to excite you at The Gallery at . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

It was inevitable . . . First came Op art; then Op fashion. Now it's Op make-up, blending an array of unlikely colors.

Cashmere sweaters and matching skirts . . .

Every year about this time Wilson's get their big shipment of Ballantyne cashmeres . . . suits, dresses . . . a wonderful array of sweaters to which worsted skirts . . . straight or pleated . . . are perfectly matched . . . It's an event many smart Victoria women wait for eagerly . . . so we're happy to tell you the time is here and now! . . . Colors are lovelier than ever . . . styles more varied . . . New shades include Pheasant Blue . . . Heath . . . Green Brae . . . Ballet Pink and Blue . . . an unusual curry shade . . . Cardigans come in waist length, as well as the new longer length . . . Stunning, too, are the 3-piece cashmere ensembles . . . skirt, pullover and cardigan . . . trimmed with bands of subtly blended, harmonizing colors . . . Heath, Pheasant Blue, Green Brae . . . you can even get cashmere hats and gloves to match some of these! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Anne Fogarty's white pique skimmer has rows of wide lace ruffles descending from bustline to hem.

Pomanders to bring back memories . . .

Plus ca change, plus c'est la meme chose! . . . When we were a little girl our mother kept a fragrant potpourri jar on a living room table . . . and Grandma slipped dried oranges stuck with cloves into linen closets and drawers to imbue everything with a wonderful spicy fragrance . . . We'd forgotten all this until we saw the Pomanders and ginger jars in Sydney Reynolds the other day . . . Pomanders date back to medieval days when they were carried by gallants and ladies of the court . . . They're perforated round pottery balls filled with dried flowers and spices . . . deliciously fragrant . . . lovely for drawers . . . By far the biggest collection of Moorcroft in town at . . . Sydney Reynolds, 801 Government St., EV 3-3931.

No less than 24 hairpieces were worn by the six models who appeared in Evening of Elegance on Friday night.

A new dimension in hair styling . . .

We weren't joking when we told Danny Hajnal at the House of Glamour last week that he's the "Alexandre of Canada" . . . and if you were one of the lucky people who attended Mr. Hajnal's fabulously successful "Evening of Elegance" at the Grouse Nest on Friday night . . . and saw his New Dimension in Hair Styling . . . we think you'll agree . . . The secret's out now . . . and the promised new dimension is Ringlets for Evening . . . Danny's creations are absolutely stunning . . . the acme in youthful sophistication . . . and it's our prediction we'll all be wanting to wear those flirtatious flattering ringlets for our big evenings, come fall! . . . Meanwhile, for carefree summer wear, Danny is advocating short cuts . . . He and his staff are creating the cutest little cuts you've ever seen . . . very short, curly and sweet . . . hugging the head behind the ears, which are partly covered . . . nestling close to the nape line in back . . . Hair so artfully cut that you can swim . . . ride in a convertible . . . play a fast game of tennis . . . and need only flick a brush through your tresses to emerge looking like new . . . If you'd like such a cut, call . . . House of Glamour, 658 View St., 386-6188.

Black Chantilly lace shell top over pure silk chiffon with floating skirt, makes an elegant late-day dress for summer.

The whole gamut of browns . . . through cafe-au-lait to near-black . . . wonderful foil to sun-tanned skin.

When it's time to shop for weddings . . .

Seems like an awful lot of us are going to be shopping for wedding gifts from time to time this summer . . . and if this includes you, we recommend that instead of wearing yourself out browsing here, there and everywhere . . . you head for Little & Taylor and see their fine selection of silverware . . . It's really choice, and not so vast as to be confusing . . . We were just thinking the other day how much we'd enjoy owning a silver gravy or sauce boat . . . which no one thought to give us for our own wedding . . . and which we understand many brides also long for . . . L & T have some beauties . . . and not too expensive . . . A silver champagne glass "To Toast the Bride" . . . engraved with names of the happy couple, is an unusual gift, at only $7 . . . All kinds of trays, from small to large . . . Entree dishes, hors d'oeuvres trays . . . Gorgeous tea sets, hand-engraved Sheffield plate (One very choice set in sterling silver) . . . Rose bowls, in a variety of sizes, make welcome gifts . . . There's a graduated trombone candlestick for slender tapers which is most unusual . . . And you can find some delightful pieces in the $5 range . . . like the silver jigger which doubles as an egg cup! . . . Little & Taylor Jewelers Ltd., 1209 Douglas St., 385-4431.

The sleeveless mode calls for firm, well-rounded arms . . . to attain which, Vogue advocates lessons in Flamenco dancing.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder . . .

We all need a fresh viewpoint from time to time in order to see things as they really are . . . instead of what we think they are . . . So while we were sojourning in Southern California recently . . . and daily viewing delightful homes and locations . . . we wondered how we'd feel about Christie Point upon our return . . . Well, we assure you that Christie Point looks just as good to us . . . maybe even better, in fact . . . than it ever did! . . . We're completely satisfied that, as far as apartment developments are concerned, Christie Point is unique! . . . This 15-acre landscaped peninsula surrounded by the placid waters of Portage Inlet, is almost too beautiful to be true . . . Tall trees, lush green grass, colorful gardens . . . And since man can't live by Nature alone . . . bright roomy apartments and townhouses with all the amenities . . . Plus heated swimming pool, boat dock, secluded playground areas for the children . . . And all this a mere 10-minute drive from downtown! . . . WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Condition of Your Teeth Influences Your Health

The condition of our teeth influences our health as well as our appearance. Diseased teeth are a dangerous source of infection and missing teeth may lead to malnutrition because of the difficulty of chewing.

Lowman

Naturally beautiful teeth add to the charm of a smile. Missing teeth can change the contour of a face. If all of us cannot have beautiful teeth at least we can take care of those we have.

From middle age on, more teeth are lost because of gum trouble or disease than because of tooth decay. Dental authorities agree that the gums need stimulation for best condition. Unless they get this they may become soft. Many feel that the electric toothbrush is helpful. You can use your finger to massage your gums.

Everyone should have his teeth cleaned professionally once a year (twice is better). During these sessions the tartar is removed from the teeth. If this is allowed to accumulate the gumlines may loosen, pockets may form and food will be deposited in the pockets. This paves the way for pyorrhea and loss of teeth. It may also be a factor in unpleasant breath.

It is important to remove any particles of food from between the teeth. The brush does not reach these areas. Dental floss is one answer. You can also buy little pliable wooden stimulators for this purpose. These are flatter and wider than toothpicks and the wood is softer. These stimulate the gums as well as remove the food particles.

Vitamin C has a direct influence on the gums. A deficiency in this vitamin will lead to spongy bleeding gums.

Researchers all over the world have been working on the problem of tooth decay. Here are some of the latest ideas. A diet which is high in carbohydrates and low in Vitamin B1 may promote tooth cavities. Fluoride is put in toothpaste and mouthwashes rather than in the public water supply in some places.

Take care of your gums as well as your teeth, especially if you are past 30.

BE SMART—

You could fritter away a whole summer in this charmer, and never ask where it went! Tiers of ruffles burst from a cool, bare, completely feminine little dress of bright-colored silk or cotton, young enough to be fun . . . mature enough to be interesting.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Even 'Diaper Set' Is Adopting Bare Look

By Penny Saver

Babies must be the biggest "hams" in the world! At the beach last Sunday afternoon, I spent an hilarious half-hour watching the antics of one young man who had obviously just learned to walk. With diapers at half-mast, he waddled down the beach, straight to the edge of the water and sat down in a muddy little pool of water. By the time he finished exploring, practically every square inch of him must have been covered with sand and mud. Even though his mother was slightly angry at him, it didn't bother him a bit, as he regarded the beach with a beautific and soiled grin.

This little charmer reminded me of some of the sweetest items in baby beachwear I have ever seen. Let me tell you about them.

Fashions for women this year have really been cut down to the bare essentials. Bikinis are now "the thing" in beachwear, whether you are in the age 14 to 25 age group or size two to six bracket.

Now for the younger miss is a new elasticized nylon combination for swimming.

The short halter-top, trimmed with white about the scoop neckline, leaves lots of sun-tanning room between it and the pants. Pants are slim-fitting yet stretch enough to fit snugly over a diaper. Prices range from $2.95 to $3.95.

Young men who are beach-bound will love the new bathing trunks and beach-coat set which I discovered, selling at $2.98. Trunks are of elasticized nylon which stretches to fit over diapers, and beach-coat is of terry-towelling. The coat—in combinations of red and white, yellow and white, or turquoise and white—is styled with a hood and three-quarter length cuffed sleeves.

Selling at the same price, $2.98, are similar outfits for little girls—a two-piece bathing ensemble in gay summery colors trimmed with white. Beach-coats are hooded and multi-colored.

Going swimming? Ask Mom to give Penny a call at 382-3131 so you will be properly outfitted for the occasion!

DEAR ABBY . . .

Act for Him!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns my husband. He and his friend hunt bobcats with their dogs, and in order to train their dogs to follow the scent, they use house cats to practice on. Three months ago they went to the pound and brought back a cat. She was old and mangy, but I didn't like the idea of their letting the dogs kill her. I argued and fumed, but it didn't do me any good. Yesterday they went to the pound again and brought back two of the cutest kittens, only about a month old. They plan to keep them until they are full-grown, train the dogs with them, and then let the dogs have them as a reward. Right now these kittens are in our shed.

Abby, I can't believe my husband could feed them and watch them grow and then let the dogs kill them. He's naturally a very kind person—it's his friend who's bloodthirsty. I have a hunch my husband won't admit it, but he really doesn't want to kill domestic animals this way, but he's afraid his friend might say he's "chicken" if he doesn't go through with it. Have you any suggestions on what I might say or do to save those kittens?

MRS. P.

DEAR MRS. P.: Don't ASK your husband, TELL him that if he uses those kittens, or any other animal in this manner, you will notify your local SPCA. There is nothing to prevent someone from going to a pound and adopting kittens without disclosing his plans, but animals are NEVER given out for this inhumane purpose. If you can't persuade him, report him!

DEAR ABBY: I was glad you advised "One Hat Hattie" to wear a hat in church. But I was surprised that you said, "I'm quite sure that God couldn't care less—as long as she's there." God DOES care as He tells us in the New Testament through His apostle Paul. I quote I Corinthians, chapter 2, verse 5:

"But every woman who prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered, dishonors her head."

Respectfully,
R.B.

DEAR ABBY: There are several couples in our neighborhood who get together very often. We go places together or just visit. Our problem is one of the wives. She is undeniably attractive and always seems to dominate the conversation carried on by the men. They direct their remarks to her as though she were the only woman in the room. We other wives just sit there and provide an audience for this woman and all the men. Naturally the men enjoy talking to an attractive, vivacious woman so they don't find her obnoxious, but we women are getting fed up with her. Should we butt into the conversation and talk as much as she does? Or should we leave the room and carry on our own conversation? (We'd never be missed.) Don't suggest that we exclude this woman and her husband from our gatherings. Our husbands would never let us get away with it.

STUCK.

DEAR STUCK: The woman whom you resent is more than "attractive and vivacious." She has something worthwhile to say, and she says it well. A plain woman who has something of value to contribute to a conversation is a welcome addition to any company. But she who "butts" in for the sake of diverting attention to herself is woefully obnoxious. Sharpen your minds, girls, and pull in your claws.

DEAR ABBY: I like this boy a lot. We are supposed to be going steady but he hardly ever calls me. He tells me he "loves" me, but you know boys. I see him only on weekends and it always winds up in a big necking session. I am seriously thinking about dropping him. Any advice?

DIANE.

DEAR DIANE: Yes. Quit "thinking" about it—and drop him.

Six outstanding models were flown over from Vancouver to present the high-style clothes at Friday evening's show in the Grouse Nest at Sooke. Here, they're seen on the patio which features a mosaic portraying a huge shell. They are, left to right, Celeste Machard, Bernice Cook, Jackie Houston, Valerie Manson, June Watt and Anna Maria Feliceellan.

Social Set Goes Out-of-Town to Grouse Nest

Victoria's social set went for a country drive, Friday evening, en route to one of the most gala affairs on this season's party calendar. The occasion was an evening at the Grouse Nest at Sooke, arranged to raise funds for the Conquer Cancer Campaign.

For most, it was their first visit to the European-owned resort and all, even those who had been there before, were enthralled with the elegance of its trappings and the jewel-like setting.

Beginning with a cocktail hour, the program lived up to its title, "An Evening of Elegance."

Highlight of the evening was a fast-moving fashion show which featured clothes from Mr. Josef of Montreal, flown in especially for the occasion, and evening gowns, designed and made by local couturier, Ursula Redwood.

Anything but conventional, the styles teased the imagination with their color and unusual designs. Colors ran the gamut and as commentator Helen Beirnes explained, "These styles are for the daring—this is the season of the sexy look."

Provocative as an ingenue, many of the shifts and hostess gowns gave more than a glimpse of the models' suntanned thighs, featuring side-slits reaching almost to the hips.

Harem pants added excitement to an unusual hostess outfit. Another eye-raising ensemble in white had a demure middy teamed with a saucy pair of pants that had a Calypso ruffled bottom hem, trimmed with a veritable garden of embroidered flowers.

Hair styles were by Danny Hajnal, who, together with Helen Beirnes, was responsible for the novel evening. Jewelry was from Henry Birks Limited.

Even resort manager, Jack Ehrensperger agreed that the flowers donated by Norma Fitzsimmons almost outshone the sparkle and brilliance of their surroundings. Each of the tables was centred with creamy-toned vases, filled with scarlet roses and fern while huge arrangements of other blossoms seemed to bring the outdoors in.

The menu was designed to drive a gourment to ode-making, featuring lobsters flown in from eastern Canada, sea foods of every description, meats for every taste and a selection of salads that seemed to have stolen the colors of the rainbow.

Champagne flowed freely and no one seemed to mind that the dance floor was small . . . there was so much to see and admire, to take turns at "tripping the light fantastic" enabled the guests to tour the resort and admire its beauty.

And, when the evening ended, the long drive back to the highway along private roads, edged with magnificent trees, gave an extra bonus. It was truly a night to remember.

Jennifer Botterell Bride In Chapel Wedding Today

The Lady's Chapel of Christ Church Cathedral was the setting this afternoon for a lovely summer wedding, when Elizabeth Jennifer Joan, daughter of Mrs. Hugh E. Botterell, 533 Transit Road and the late Mr. Botterell, became the bride of Peter House, son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter K. House of Halifax.

Rev. E. Gilbert officiated at the ceremony.

Entering the chapel on the arm of her brother, John F. Botterell, the brown-haired bride was a picture in a gown of white crepe flowing to floor length. The empire-waist dress was enhanced by a scoop neckline and wrist-length sleeves. The skirt swept to a chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil misted from a headpiece of crepe petals. She carried a prayer book topped with white roses and wedgewood blue streamers.

Wedgewood blue dresses in crepe were worn by maid of honor, Miss Nan Dufour and bridesmaid, Miss Susan Lort, Seattle. The afternoon-length dresses were styled on the same lines as the bride's gown. They wore headdresses of white chrysanthemums and carried matching bouquets.

Best man was James Richardson, Vancouver. John Lort and Tim Richardson ushered guests to their pews.

W. McIntyre proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed in the Union Club.

Later, the newlyweds left on honeymoon to an undisclosed destination.

They will make their home in Halifax, where the groom is completing studies in medicine at Dalhousie University.

To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Durden, 1625 Hampshire Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Georgina Lynn, to Mr. William Keith Jackson, eldest son of Mr. Albert Bernard Jackson, Victoria, and the late Mr. Jackson. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 26, at 7 p.m., in Victoria Truth Centre with Rev. Emma Smiley officiating.

His Honor To Open Tea

Both His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will attend the annual garden party and strawberry tea of St. Dunstan's Anglican Church at Gordon Head. His Honor will open the affair at 2 p.m. next Saturday. This year, the party will be at "Strangewood," the home of Mrs. S. L. McMullen at 1800 Ferndale Road.

In charge of arrangements are Mrs. N. C. Powell, Mrs. D. Latimer and Mrs. H. O. Watkins.

[illegible] of the afternoon will be stalls of home cooking, sewing, garden plants, shrubs, flowers, antiques and miscellaneous items.

A program of games will also add to the afternoon's enjoyment.

Accents of Orange Blossoms

WEARS HEIRLOOM SANDALS

Clusters of orange blossoms accented the hand-made satin bridal sandals, belonging to her mother, which fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Marilyn Heather Lawson this morning, when she became the bride of Allan Glen.

The skirt of her floor-length gown was styled with soft, unpressed pleats, slightly en train. The bodice was of lace and featured a scalloped sweetheart neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her scalloped-edged double cathedral veil misted from a coronet of orange blossoms. Pink roses were in her crescent-shaped bouquet.

Arrangements of white and pink carnations and white peonies decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when Dr. J. Lewis W. McLean heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Lawson, 2852 Gorge View Drive, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Glen, 206 Menzies Street. Mr. Lawson gave his daughter in marriage.

Soloist Mrs. D. G. Born sang "O Perfect Love" and "Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven" during the ceremony.

Gowns of blue lace over taffeta, similar to the bride's, were the choice of maid of honor Miss Susan Watson, bridesmatron Mrs. N. F. Wilkinson, and bridesmaids, the Misses Maureen Lawson and Anona Glen. Headpieces were coronets highlighted with sequins, banded with blue flowers and edged with toning veils. They carried colonial bouquets of white feathered carnations.

Best man was David L. McLean. Ushering guests to their pews were Charles A. Scott, Norman F. Wilkinson, and John C. Craig.

A three-tier wedding cake, topped with a silver vase of pink roses and surrounded by pink tulle and toning rosebuds, centred the bride's table for the reception following in the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club. Pink and white carnations and white peonies completed table decorations.

Jack Caddell proposed the toast to the bride.

Following a honeymoon trip to Washington and Oregon, the couple will make their home in Victoria.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Glen chose a white serrano sheath-style dress, topped with a sleeveless jacket.

Hear Vows

Several Winnipeg residents travelled to Victoria to attend the Glen-Lawson wedding this morning. They include Mrs. R. Frew, the Misses Eileen Frew and Lana Jasen. Other out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. Sutcliffe of Kelowna; Mr. A. S. Walker, Richmond, B.C. and Mr. J. P. Wiley, Vancouver.

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

That's My Dad

Sunday is Father's Day and several church ministers are planning to refer to the occasion in their sermons.

That's My Dad will be the subject of Rev. Albert E. King in Metropolitan United Church. He will emphasize some of Dad's responsibilities to his family — and the family's responsibilities to him.

At this service, Thiman's anthem, Christ Hath a Garden, will be sung by the Sanctuary Choir, conducted by Dr. James Gayfer.

In the evening the choir will sing Mozart's famous Jesu, Word of God Incarnate.

Mrs. Margaret Hurdon Keifer will be soloist and Eric Boothroyd's organ solos will be Largo, Allegro, Aria and Two Variations (Festing).

* * *

Celebrating the 25th anniversary of her ministry this Sunday is Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, minister of Victoria Truth Centre. She will speak at the 7:30 p.m. service on Life is Movement. In the morning, the speaker will be Robert D. Ferguson.

* * *

Jacqui Court will be soloist with the Youth Choir in First United Church Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

At the 11 a.m. service, Betty Buchan will sing He Shall Feed His Flock (Handel) and the senior choir will render the anthem O God of Bethel (Orlington).

At the evening worship a quartet will sing O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go and O Come Ye Servants of the Lord (Tye).

Rev. Robert J. D. Morris will preach at all services.

* * *

"Much of our 20th century thinking ridicules the claims of Christianity," says Bishop Denys Rankilor of the Church of Our Lord.

"Modern teachers in Canadian universities claim that man is the product of evolution and the universe is merely a cosmic upheaval."

Bishop Rankilor will deal with these questions in his Sunday morning sermon in the Church of Our Lord.

* * *

Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, will speak on Formosa — Christian Centennial at a service to be broadcast over CJVI from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday evening.

At the morning worship, the junior choir, directed by William McColl, will sing The Shepherds (Mendelssohn) and Surely The Lord (Mueller).

In the evening the senior choir will sing Bach's anthem, Now Let Every Tongue.

* * *

The document on the proposed union between the Anglican and United churches will be discussed in a dialogue sermon at Centennial United Sunday evening.

Archdeacon E. Maddocks will speak for the Anglican Church and Dr. Samuel Parsons for the United.

* * *

At the 11 a.m. service in Emmanuel Baptist Church the guest speaker will be Rev. Lawrence H. Janssen of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies.

Rev. A. C. Hamill's evening topic is entitled That Besetting Sin. The choir will be under the direction of Mrs. Otto Niedermann, with Henry Pluym at the organ.

Church choirs, big and small, have often been called the backbone of a nation's music. They raise the morale of the service and keep up the tempo of the singing. Every Saturday, The Times will publish a picture of a Victoria choir.

ESTABLISHED IN 1897, the boys' and men's choir at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church, has maintained a high standard of singing over the years and is an integral part of the 9:30 a.m. high mass on Sundays. Now directed by organist Jack Lenaghan (rear left with back to pillar), the choir is seen in the gardens of the rectory with Rev. W. H. Bullock, the musical rector of the cathedral, in black clerical garb.

Major and Mrs. Lorne W. Jannison, for the past five years superintendents of the Salvation Army Social Service Centre on Johnson Street, will leave the city next week to take up their new appointment in the Salvation Army's public relations department in Montreal.

Succeeding Major and Mrs. Jannison will be Major and Mrs. Arthur Hopkinson from Regina.

Major and Mrs. Jannison expressed thanks to their many friends and business associates who have made their stay in Victoria so enjoyable.

"Many and varied have been the changes at the Johnson Street Centre, and through them all the public has been most kind and understanding," Major Jannison said.

Outspoken Anglican Cleric To Mark 30 Years in B.C.

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Most Rev. Harold Sexton — rugged, outspoken Anglican Archbishop of British Columbia —will complete 30 years of service to the diocese on June 29.

An Australian—he was born at Adelaide on May 14, 1888—the archbishop launched a fierce controversy in 1945 when, in a sermon from the pulpit of Christ Church Cathedral, he said:

"Let us drink like ladies and gentlemen—not in washrooms or behind trees!"

At that time hard liquor could only be purchased in government liquor stores and consumed in private. B.C. now has legislation allowing cocktail bars and licensed restaurants throughout the province.

LOT OF ABUSE

"I received a lot of abuse for this," the archbishop recalls, "but in general the system has worked out pretty well. And I'm happy to see that so many of our beer parlors are being cleaned up and renovated."

IN LONDON

Before coming to Victoria in 1935, the archbishop was for seven years, vicar of All Saints', Upper Norwood, London.

Later he was assistant chaplain to the House of Commons in London and, in this capacity, became friendly with Sir Winston Churchill and many other public figures.

MOST REV. SEXTON
. . . anniversary June 29

On Feb. 27, 1935, he was elected coadjutor-Bishop of British Columbia by the synod of the diocese of British Columbia.

He was consecrated in Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria, on June 29, 1935 and succeeded Bishop Schofield on his death on June 28, 1936.

In 1952 he was elected Archbishop of British Columbia.

After his ordination at Christmas in 1911, he served two curacies in the diocese of Adelaide. In 1916 he went overseas as a chaplain with the Australian Imperial forces.

After the war he studied for a year at Keble College, Oxford, and from 1920 to 1923 he was vicar of St. Martin's, Hawksburn, in the diocese of Melbourne, Australia.

In 1924 he went to England and for a year, acted as a deputation speaker for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

The diocese over which Archbishop Sexton now presides was founded in 1859 and originally included the whole of British Columbia.

Four other dioceses now occupy the territory on the mainland, and the British Columbia diocese consists of Vancouver Island and adjacent islands.

Almost half the population of the Island claims to be Anglican.

NEW MINISTER at St. John's Anglican Church, Victoria, is Canon Graeme Baker, priest and organist at Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver. He will take over from Canon George Biddle, who is retiring after 25 years' service in Victoria.

City Student In Middle East

Don Peden, a student of zoology and biology at the University of Victoria, is one of six Canadian students now spending the summer with the Middle East YMCA Leadership Training Centre serving Arab refugees in Jordan, Lebanon and the Gaza Strip.

Mr. Peden is a member of St. Philip's Anglican Church, Oak Bay.

With him at the YMCA centre will be Cam Shields, a student at UBC, of St. Thomas's Anglican Church, Vancouver.

JAMES MANLY—A NEW BREED WHO BRINGS GOD TO THE JOB

By BOB DONAHUE
Times Staff Reporter

PORT ALICE—Meet James Manly.

A man of God of a new breed.

But for this community's only United Church minister he behaves rather strangely —he works for a living as a pulp tester in Rayonier's cellulose plant.

And it has been that way since the 32-year-old minister was ordained eight years ago. His bunkhouse ministry began in a logging camp where he worked just after he was ordained at the University of B.C.'s Union College.

* * *

"I'm not a very religious man," he says in a quiet voice.

"And perhaps I'm not very effective, but I am out there with the men as one of them."

Rev. Manly believes this is the only way for the church to "get back to the people."

"It is something that a great many ministers are seriously considering," he said. "You might be limited in the amount of actual church work you can do, but it provides a much greater contact with the people.

"It brings the church back to the men who are otherwise passed over—the loggers, the bushmen.

"And it doesn't only apply to small towns —it could work as well, perhaps better, in larger city parishes.

* * *

"Generally the church is out of touch with the working man and if it is to reach them the ministers must also earn their living."

Rev. Manly's parish is small; 15 to 20 persons are an average attendance figure at his Sunday services which are held in a rented hall.

They are planning to build a church in the near future at the new townsite, Rumble Beach.

Rev. Manly's bunkhouse ministry was recently recognized in Pierre Berton's controversial book, The Comfortable Pew, in which Mr. Berton praised the minister's work in this tiny Northern Vancouver Island community.

Free Medical Service For Indians Appealed

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers said in the Commons Friday a court decision that all Saskatchewan Indians hospital and medical services from the federal government is being appealed because of its "far-reaching implications."

Citizenship Minister Nicholson said, however, the Indian Affairs branch in his department is willing to provide "outstanding counsel" to ensure the Indians' rights are safeguarded.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh noted all Indians had not been included in Saskatchewan plans and the issue should be taken to a higher court "so it can be settled once and for all."

The federal government pays the provincial premiums for Indians on reserves and Indians who have lived off reserves for less than 12 months. But it considers Indians taking up residence off reserves should pay their own premiums after a year.

Two Victorians To Be Ordained

Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, will confer holy orders June 26 on two young Victoria men.

Joseph Gubbels and Frederick Magee attended St. Louis College together, then entered the Oblate seminary in Ottawa. They are now scholastic brothers of the missionary order.

The joint ordination will take place in St. Andrew's Cathedral at noon.

U.S. Student Artists Given Brush By Law

Victoria city council is expected to deal Thursday with an application by two American students wanting to use the Causeway as an open air studio.

Jerald Bentley and Samuel LeBaron set up easels and began sketching portraits Thursday, not realizing they needed council permission as well as a $30 trade licence.

Police, acting on complaint from a local art group, moved them along.

They took their problem to city hall, discussed the licence with inspector Bill Wallis and the policy with city manager Dennis Young.

The summer season seems to bring out unusual bids to conduct off-beat businesses, Mr. Wallis indicated, resigned to the problem.

"There'll be more before the summer is out," he said.

CAUTIOUS ATTITUDE

In the past, council has been cautious about granting sidewalk and pedlar permits, although an art guild has had permission to display pictures on the Causeway as a tourist attraction and enterprising school girls have been granted a shoeshine licence.

The Americans were told they should write a formal letter of application.

"I do want to do art work here," said Mr. Bentley. "I worked on the Loop in Chicago. The licence costs $10 there."

A student in Madison, he also has sketched on the streets there and earned his master's degree in philosophy.

Mr. LeBaron attends Stanford University and came to Victoria with the idea of playing jazz for the summer.

PRIMATE SETS ISLAND VISIT

Most Rev. Howard Hewlett Clark, primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, will preach in St. Peter's Church, Port Washington, North Pender Island, Sunday at 11 a.m.

On his first visit to the Gulf Islands, the primate will join islanders in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of St. Peter's.

DESERT CLAIMS 5

Last Days Recaptured On Films

CAIRO (AP)—The German woman lay down on the desert, pillowed her head on her dress, covered her face against the searing sun and prepared to die.

"Our water is running short. We are in a very critical condition."

These were the final recorded words of five West Germans who died of thirst in the Egyptian desert last week as revealed in the pages of a tattered notebook. Photographs taken by one of the victims showed the group gradually collapsing.

The notes, written by Gunter Wanderschtek, a technician at Egypt's jet aircraft factory, were obtained from the Egyptian police after the bodies were found in the Siwa Desert last Friday and Saturday.

The five had set out on a holiday trek across an unmarked 300-mile track to Siwa Oasis June 5.

The two cars bogged down and were abandoned in the sands, and the group split up.

Parliament To Debate Beatle MBE

LONDON (UPI)—The burning question of why the Beatles were installed in the Order of the British Empire will be debated by both Houses of Parliament, it was announced Friday.

Questions about how candidates for such high awards are chosen were submitted by two members of Commons for answer July 20 and by a member of the House of Lords for June 29.

In the Lords, Lord Colwyn, whose name and whose banker-father's name was Fred Smith before the latter was created the first Baron Colwyn in 1917, was to ask the government:

Why was the singing quartet honored by the Queen when "there are many distinguished entertainers who gave their services voluntarily during the war in conditions of great hardship all over the world, without the award of any honor?"

In Commons, Conservative MP Stephen Hastings was asking Prime Minister Harold Wilson if he will review the present departmental procedure for submitting names for the honors list.

Moderates Have Delicate Task Solving Quebec's Problems

Times City Hall reporter Ab Kent continues his report on the Union of B.C. Municipalities' goodwill visit to Quebec in this, the last of four articles.

The moderates of Quebec's "quiet revolution" must step carefully between radicals and reactionaries to keep peace and empathy with the rest of Canada.

This was one of the most cognent observations made following last month's Quebec mission of understanding by 150 Union of B.C. Municipalities delegates.

It came from Mayor R. B. Wilson, who played a large part in planning the mutual exchange begun last fall by Union of Quebec Municipalities guests in B.C.

Virtually all the westerners had praise for the visit to Quebec City and Montreal areas, many of them seeing the French-speaking province for the first time.

Differences

They learned some basic differences and noted many similarities in the daily lives of their urban counterparts.

All made new acquaintances, some found lasting friendships.

They are now in much better position to judge the sometimes bizarre happenings that occur in a resurgent society with historic and cultural implications unique in Canada.

Some visitors found the voice of the people, Quebecois in whose homes they were entertained, speaking less harshly than their political leaders in describing the aspirations of Quebec.

Great Success

At the same time, they found that the majority deplores the acts of hoodlumism and violence perpetrated in the name of nationalism.

"We went to see more of their province and to see some of their problems, and in this respect I think the trip was a great success," said Mayor Wilson.

"The moderates will have to walk a very narrow path for some years, because if the radicals go too far, the English-speaking people will probably get their backs up.

"We mustn't let the radicals or the reactionaries get the ball. It leaves majority caught in the middle.

"But problems do have to be solved and we have to get the English-speaking people to realize there must be compromise on both sides, with more understanding of each others' problems."

Mayor Wilson agreed with Le Devoir editor-in-chief Claude Ryan, who said "We are now sitting down and talking about these problems." There must be continued discussion, he said.

"But they are most concerned about language, and this, I think, is impractical for the rest of the country," the mayor said. He referred to a Quebec desire for bilingualism at public level in ordinary business and government such as banks, post offices and day to day government agencies.

When Governor-General Georges Venier was here last week he said:

"All we have to do is get to know one another. We all have the same conception of life. We have no problems really (except) some little problem over language."

Senior Victoria Alderman M. H. Mooney observed:

Same People

"To my way of thinking, the people have no intention of breaking away from Canada. They are the same people as we are; they wear the same clothes, have the same goods, have the same sights, the same kids on the streets—they just have a different language.

"We need a great deal more travel between the provinces of Canada. I would like to see state-paid holidays enabling people to know the rest of their country."

Ald. A. W. Toone:

"The trip was most worthwhile. Among my most valued associations are those with people in the same position as myself, and senior municipal officials.

More Visits

"But exchanges should be broadened to draw in people from other provinces, perhaps through the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities."

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox was impressed that the Quebec visit to Victoria and Vancouver last year had had an obvious impact in Quebec.

"All were very anxious to repeat the cordiality on an individual basis. This exchange is the right idea and now it is up to individual people to follow it up," the reeve said.

Coun. Frances Elford, Oak Bay:

"They went out of their way to extend hospitality and a feeling of friendliness."

No Co-operation

Daryl Elford, the councillor's husband, found a feeling that people of east and west are not trying to co-operate. He said Quebec "seems keenly interested in co-operating with the rest of Canada."

Saanich Councillor Ed Lum:

"I think the visit created better understanding between east and west. We couldn't keep up with the people who invited us to their homes.

"Several tried to explain the Quebec situation . . . most hoped the visits would continue and further the understanding."

Girl Relates Meet With St. Michael

SAN SEBASTIAN DE GARABANDAL, Spain (AP) — A 16-year-old farm girl, who claimed to have held regular conversations with the Virgin Mary in the past, said today she held a belated rendezvous with the Archangel St. Michael at midnight Friday night.

Her meeting with the heavenly messenger was witnessed by a crowd of religious experts and curious from Spain, France and the United States who gathered in this remote mountain settlement in anticipation of a new holy visitation.

The girl, Conchita Gonzalez, daughter of a village widow, was in ecstacy for approximately 10 minutes, in a mountain grove outside this village. During that period a doctor checked her pulse and found it normal.

"When she regained consciousness she told us she had been speaking with St. Michael and that she had received a message which she would reveal later in writing," said a witness.

Nearly 1,000 visitors — more than double the normal population of this rural village—waited throughout the day for some fulfilment of the promise that one or more of the four village girls who claimed contact with the Virgin Mary would receive a new heavenly visit.

Despite an official ban on participation in the activities here by the Roman Catholic bishop of Santander, several priests were in the crowd.

Repeat Performance

Mayor R. B. Wilson Friday staged a repeat performance of the Victoria story in urban improvements when he spoke to a Vancouver service club at noon.

Accompanied by two members of the Capital City Club and special projects director Roderick Clack, Mayor Wilson gave a presentation similar to what he delivered earlier this month to a meeting of Confederation Centennial planners in Ottawa.

SOLOIST at the morning and evening services in Metropolitan United Sunday will be Mrs. Margaret Hurdon Keifer. In the morning she will sing How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings, and in the evening, The Prayer Perfect.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JIM JACOBY

Here is another hand from the Great Lakes Regional at Grand Rapids:

The four heart contract was normal enough so that almost every South player got there and it would be no problem at all in rubber bridge. South would win the diamond opening and proceed to play the ace of trumps and eventually lose a club and a diamond in addition to the trump trick.

Opening lead—♦ Q

In duplicate it is well worth while to play for an extra trick and several South players did play successfully for five odd.

Thus, when Grant Marsee of Dearborn, Mich., sat South he won the diamond opening and led a club toward dummy. East overtook the jack with his king and led a second diamond. Grant won the trick and led a second club to dummy's queen.

He got back to his hand by ruffing a spade and discarded dummy's last diamond on his ace of clubs. Then he ruffed his deuce of diamonds with dummy's seven of trumps and led the queen. East ducked and Grant let the queen ride. Then he returned to his hand by ruffing another spade and played his ace of trumps. When both opponents followed Grant conceded a trick to the king of trumps and made his overtrick.

There is nothing really complicated about the whole line of play, but it does show something about both skill and luck in duplicate. Grant's skill gave him a good score. The opponents had bad luck in that they had to defend the hand against him instead of against a man who would have settled for 10 tricks only.

CLOSES TONIGHT

Dazzling Display At Flower Show

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The Victoria Horticultural Society is doing its bit for international understanding—not with talk, proposals and ideas, but with flowers.

Even the "bikini" is being used as a symbol to promote mutual understanding between France and the English-speaking world.

This can be seen at the society's summer show at the Victoria Curling Rink, ending tonight at 9:30.

It's a magnificent show—artistically and horticulturally.

Taking European Understanding as their theme, members have concentrated on depicting landmarks and symbols with flowers and simple materials.

Judge Henry Eddie of Vancouver, one of B.C.'s rose experts, said the displays are "stupendous—out of this world."

The floral arrangements depict the gardens of England, the ruins of Italy, the wines of France, the Eiffel tower.

Among the arrangements, the Bikini of the Riviera captured the imagination.

One of the most stunning exhibits was created by Mrs. George A. Wiggan. Her girl on the beach made of driftwood and flowers came to life.

Some of the exhibits are humorous. One display, the beer of Germany, for example, depicts an empty beer bottle under a clump of flowers—just as you would find a discarded bottle on the roadside.

GLASS OF BEER

One exhibitor used a glass of beer as an accessory to his floral piece. A visitor was tempted to sip it.

Other sections of the show are equally as interesting.

A visitor can't help wondering how many hours it took Mrs. Pat Pierrt to arrange 1,500 red roses in the shape of a crown.

The roses were donated by Creeds' Nurseries.

On display in the place of honor is the best rose of the show entered by A. C. Setterfield.

It's a "Diamond Jubilee"—a delicate yellow bloom.

But there are hundreds of other roses in the show, almost as beautiful, perhaps more so, depending on personal taste.

The exhibition of the African Violet Club proved such an attraction that show officials placed a guard rail to protect the blooms from being damaged by the crowds.

CULINARY ARTS

The fruits and vegetables of the kitchen gardener are also well represented . . . and so are the herbs useful in culinary arts.

But one of the most noticeable improvements in this year's show are the commercial displays. They are not only attractive but do much to enhance the over-all appearance of the exhibition.

Mrs. Douglas J. Dakers, 3276 Quadra, Friday, was awarded the Dr. Gavin Chisholm challenge bowl for the highest aggregate in the rose classes.

Jail Sentence For Driver In Fatal Mishap

A Vancouver driver was sentenced in Supreme Court here Friday to three months in jail on a charge of criminal negligence.

Francis Henry Jones, 36, was convicted Tuesday in connection with a fatal accident on Salt Spring Island on July 16, 1964.

Sentence was passed by Chief Justice J. O. Wilson, who also suspended Jones' driving licence for four years.

The charge against Jones was laid after a three-car collision on a Salt Spring Island highway. Victor John Scholes of Ganges died almost instantly when his small car was met head-on by Jones' vehicle as Jones was passing another car.

Scholes' wife and Jones were critically injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haire, 2259 Dalhousie Street, Victoria, were in the third car which was knocked off the road in the crash.

15-Year-Old Pleads Guilty To 3 Thefts

A 15-year-old youth pleaded guilty in city court Friday to three charges of breaking and entering.

The youth, whose name cannot be published because he is a juvenile, was remanded to next Friday for sentence.

Juvenile officer Norman Galbraith said the accused and another boy stole watches, a necklace and a $240 radio last Friday after breaking into the home of Russell Sanborn, 2219 Blanshard Street. They gained entry through a rear window. Only the radio has been recovered.

On April 5 the accused entered the home of Dexter Ferris, 941 Bay Street, by an unlocked door and stole $1 in pennies. Five days later he broke a window at Bailey's Grocery, 2602 Government St., and stole cigarettes.

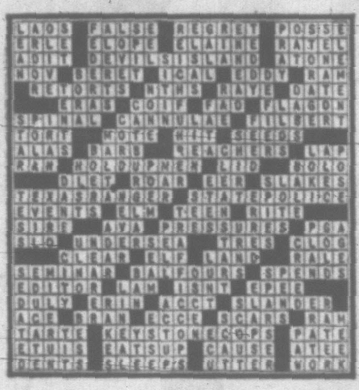
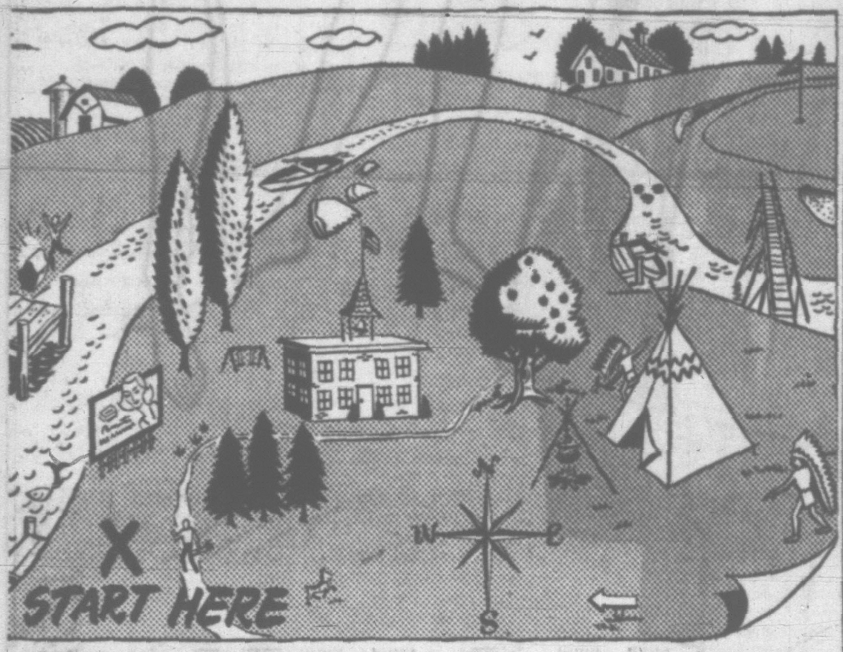
Answers to Previous Puzzle



Can You Follow Key Directions?



There's a fun trail across the map above that leads to a chest of gold. But you must be able to follow directions to find it—(1) walk in a northerly direction past billboard to poplar trees; turn right to lonesome pine; (2) walk past apple tree to southeast corner of teepee; consult Indian for path to dog; (3) follow dog to second Indian, who points way to golf course; cross bridge to edge of green; (4) consult wind direction for route to stepping-stone crossover; proceed due west to boat; (5) pick up treasure and row back to start.

FINISH THE RACE?

In a distance race at an international track meet, Australia's entry is 100 feet behind U.S.A.'s man. The latter is 75 feet ahead of Bolivia's runner. Bolivia's contestant is 150 feet behind Denmark's entrant, who is 30 feet ahead of a Japanese participant. Japan's man is alongside U.S.A.'s color-bearer.

Who won the race?

Answer: Denmark wins the race.

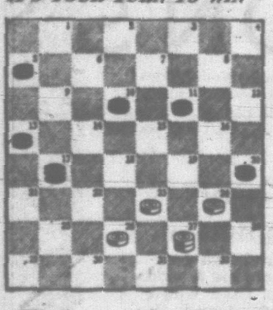
THIS TAKES SNAP JUDGMENT

"Your picture," said the photographer, "in this handsome frame will be just twelve dollars. But if you prefer to take it in a frame costing only one half as much as this one, the price will be just ten dollars." What was the price of a photo alone?

Answer: The price was eight dollars.

IT'S YOUR TURN TO WIN



The time to pick up the pieces is when the game is over. But Black might as well begin picking his up right now. White, moving up the board, to move first and win in eight moves is the challenge.

Long-time checker champ Millard Hopper provides his solution below. Check your answer with Hopper's when finished.

Solution: White 27-32, Black 30-27, White 26-22, Black 17-26-19, White 32-23-16-7-14; then 5-9, 14-5, 13-17, 6-9, 17-22, 9-14, 22-26, 14-18, 26-31, 18-25.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Phrases now in common speech testify how widely persons have listened to and perhaps have been influenced by certain men and women. But sometimes authorities differ, as you will discover in the quotations below.

"——is the universal language of mankind."—Longfellow.

"——is well said to be the speech of angels."—Carlyle.

The missing word is the same in each quotation. It consists of five letters. What is it?

Answer: The missing word is "music."

WORD STANDS UPSIDE DOWN

There is a four-letter word in the English language which, when printed in capital letters, reads the same inverted as it does right side up. What word?

Clue: The word denotes a high spot in the day.

No fair peeking at answer below.

Answer: The word "noon" is such a word.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Papua-New Guinea will commemorate the 6th South Pacific Conference with two special stamps (6d and 1s) on July 7. And the United Nations are marking International Co-operative Year on June 25 with a 5 cent and 15 cent, plus a souvenir miniature sheet embodying one of each of the two stamps.

New definitive issues, mostly running up to the £1 value (or equivalent) are on order for Antigua, Barbados, Malaysia, Montserrat, and St. Vincent. Ceylon will also issue part of a new series shortly.

In the case of Barbados, the projected 10 cent value will be dropped from the set, and a 15 cent substituted, due to a raise in postal rates. The series will put on display the tropical fishes found in the surrounding waters.

The 8 cent shows what appears to be a bewhiskered clam, but which is described as a "file shell." July 15 will be the date of issue.

By way of contrast, the Antigua set will illustrate the various public and other buildings of the island. The top value ($5) will show St. John's Cathedral.

* * *

The Malaysian issue promises to be very attractive, as it will feature the birds of the territory in natural color. Top value will be a $10 stamp which will show a brilliantly colored exotic thrush. (As the denominations are of course in Singapore currency, the $10 value is roughly the equivalent of £1 stg.)

Bermuda on July 24 will issue a rather handsome 2s stamp for the 50th anniversary of Boy Scouting. It will feature medallions showing the Scout emblem and the Imperial Crown.

* * *

On June 30, the day preceding Canada's national holiday, the Post Office will issue the special stamp honoring our new flag. The stamp will be printed in red and blue, the flag being, of course in red and white, flying on a mast in a moderate breeze, against a blue background.

* * *

Reminder to the Post Office Department: When shall we have the much-needed 40c stamp to take care of the registered letter rate?

CHALET ONLY OUTLET

'Wet' Vote Wins In North Saanich

North Saanich residents Friday voted "wet."

They approved in a plebiscite beer parlors, cocktail lounges, sale of beer and wine in restaurants and sale of spirits in restaurants.

The recently renovated Deep Cove Chalet is the only place in the unorganized district which now can make use of the liquor privileges.

Under the Liquor Act, it can only apply to sell beer, wine and spirits in a restaurant.

Beer parlors and cocktail lounges are only permitted in hotels and there is none in North Saanich.

"I'm satisfied," said Chalet operator William Cole, who initiated the plebiscite move. "I only wanted full dining room privileges."

About 640 out of 1,541 eligible voters cast ballots.

They approved beer parlors 345 to 229.

Sale of beer or wine in dining rooms was approved 482 to 91; full restaurant liquor privileges 493 to 30, and cocktail bars by 471 to 106.

Former Olympic Runner Trains Duncan Youth

DUNCAN—Young athletes of the Cowichan Lake-Cobble Hill district are being trained by a former Olympic runner.

Ton Hamilton, a Dutchman who ran in the 400-metre relay for Holland in the 1948 Olympics in London, spends three nights a week coaching 12 young people the rudiments of track work.

He is an employee of the B.C. Forest centre at the Duncan nursery.

32 Students From Boise Learning About Island

Thirty-two high school students from First Methodist Church, Boise, Idaho, have been working at Camp Moorecroft, near Nanaimo, this week.

Their main task was painting and cleaning the camp in preparation for its use by United Church youth later this summer.

Each worked on a study project. Student Stephen Boyer prepared a paper on Nanaimo totem poles; Donna McElravy, grade 11, studied Vancouver Island, its history past and present.

Sherry Vycital, grade 11, made a study of the city of Victoria.

Visiting Victoria Thursday, the group invited civic and provincial leaders, and Rev. and Mrs. Robert Morris of First United, to be their guests at a dinner in the Net Loft.

The youngsters are on a tour of the Pacific Northwest.

Reds Rap Plan

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW—Prime Minister Harold Wilson may be unable to carry out his plan for a Commonwealth peace mission on Viet Nam, Tass said today.

The official Soviet news agency, in a dispatch from London, said the mission "is beginning to take an unpleasant and unforeseen turn for London," as other Commonwealth premiers criticize the idea.

"One gets the impression," Tass said, "that the British government does not want to wash its dirty linen in public and is striving to soft-pedal the discussion of the question concerning the expediency of sending such a mission."

'SHOW THE CRITICS'

The Soviet press and radio earlier attacked the plan. Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the mission was setting out with first branding the United States as an aggressor. It said it was a "manoeuvre intended to show the critics of British policy that London is concerned about peace."

China remained officially silent on the proposed peace mission today, but newspapers in Peking featured attacks on the "peace hoax" of Americans and those who supported Viet Nam talks.

Navy Fails To Lasso TNT Vessel

Drifting South Off Wash.

By RON SUDLOW

Battling mountainous seas and howling winds, two naval craft today failed to secure a line to the abandoned Laymore, carrying 149 tons of obsolete naval ammunition.

Standing by to ward off approaching merchant vessels and fishing craft were HMCS MacKenzie and naval auxiliary vessel Clifton.

HMCS Stettler took cover Friday night in Barkley Sound.

The vessels, at press time, were hove to off the Washington coast 60 miles south of Cape Flattery and 30 miles from land.

Commander H. J. Wade of Mackenzie said they were battling northwest winds and an increasing waves.

"It looks like no tow connection can be made today," he radioed.

The Clifton, which rescued the Laymore's 17-man crew from 70 mph gales and 30-foot waves Thursday evening left Victoria Friday night.

RETURNS FOR REPAIRS

She replaced the navy's ocean-going tug Heatherton which arrived at Esquimalt at 8 a.m. today for repairs to a generator which actuates her towing winch.

Capt. Bob Hooper of the towboat said weather conditions when they left the Laymore were "pretty well the same as Friday."

Winds were steady at 45 mph and gusting and 25-30-foot waves still pounded the vessels.

50-DEGREE PITCH

"Laymore was still pitching 40 to 50 degrees to either side when we left," he said.

Heatherton crept as close as 200 feet to the powerless, rudderless munitions vessel Friday and also sighted the fluorescent orange life raft used by her crew for four hours Thursday.

HOOPER
. . . deck cargo gone

And Capt. Hooper today confirmed reports ammunition lashed to Laymore's decks had broken loose during the storm and was washed overboard.

DRIFTING SOUTH

By press time, Laymore had drifted 85 miles south of where she was abandoned because ammunition in the cargo hold shifted.

The ship is drifting against a northwest wind.

"During her drift she has crossed the approaches to most of the shipping lanes into the Strait of Juan de Fuca," Capt. Hooper added.

'NOT A MENACE'

But she is not considered a menace to shipping because navy vessels are standing by, transport department and U.S. Coast Guard officials said at noon.

ARMY COUP

Algerian President Ousted

ALGIERS — An army-backed coup carried out before dawn today ousted President Ahmed Ben Bella, 48, as a "diabolical dictator." By nightfall a revolutionary council that took over power was reported to be preparing charges of high treason against him.

Emerging as the strong man of the council, and signing its first declaration, was Col. Houari Boumedienne, vice-premier and defence minister.

The declaration said Ben Bella would "meet the fate of all despots." Besides treason, it accused him of abuse of personal power."

TROOPS PATROL STREETS

Most tanks which clattered into position before dawn had been withdrawn, although a few stood sentry outside some buildings. Troops units armed with sub-machine guns patrolled the streets.

COL. BOUMEDIENNE
. . . new strongman

The city was quiet and Algerians sat at sidewalk bistros sipping drinks. A few muttered dislike for Boumedienne and some said he had engineered the coup because of disagreement with Ben Bella's whereabouts, but Ben Bella on domestic matters.

Boumedienne, 40, an officer who had been associated with Ben Bella since the early days of Algeria's fight for independence, was said to have been trained either in Peking or Moscow. But The Associated Press reported one responsible source said Boumedienne "is definitely not pro-Chinese."

ADMIRES CASTRO

Diplomatic sources in Madrid said they had been informed the coup was accomplished by rightists within the Algerian armed forces. But Boumedienne is said to be an admirer of Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba and visited Havana last July.

Reuters news agency said Boumedienne, an ascetic, fervent Moslem, always has regarded the army as the core of a socialist society in his country.

A statement signed by Boumedienne and read over the radio said all power had been taken from Ben Bella. It added that Algeria would continue to honor all previous agreements and commitments with other countries.

PLEDGES FRIENDSHIP

Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika said in a statement that Algeria's foreign policy is non-alignment and friendship with all nations.

Blank Shot Proves Hot —24 Hurt

GLADEWATER, Tex. (AP)—A rodeo clown firing what was supposed to be a blank charge peppered spectators with bird shot Friday night, wounding 24 persons and creating pandemonium.

Investigators said it obviously was an accident but they had not determined early today how a live shell got into the shotgun.

Of the wounded, 11 adults remained in hospitals overnight but attendants said none suffered serious injury. The others were dismissed after emergency treatment.

Police said the clown, Ken Arthur Boen, 41, of Fort Smith, Ark., told questioners he noticed before the performance that his box of blank shells was nearly empty, and he would need to buy more.

Sheriff Doyle Johnson filed a charge of assault with a prohibited weapon against Boen. The clown was not in custody.

Father Held Knife Against Infant Son

A young man kept police at bay for 30 minutes this morning by threatening to use a knife on his five-months-old son if police made a move to get him.

Anthony Soulsby, 1142 Caledonia, was finally talked into coming out of his house.

He pleaded guilty in city court this morning to possession of an offensive weapon—a carving knife with an eight-inch blade.

Soulsby was remanded to next Saturday for a psychiatric report and sentence.

Constable Ken Horsman said he went to Soulsby's home at 1:50 this morning and found Mrs. Soulsby standing outside. She told him there had been a domestic quarrel and her husband was inside the house with their child.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby stood behind the glass door of his house and threatened police "If you try to enter I'll use this knife on the child and then myself."

The officer talked with Soulsby for 30 minutes before he let police inside. He stood behind the door holding the child in one arm and the knife in his other hand all the while he talked.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby had been drinking but was not intoxicated. The child was unharmed.

Magistrate J. A. Byers asked Soulsby for an explanation of his conduct.

Soulsby replied, "I just lose my temper and get like that. I wouldn't harm the child."

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Soulsby had a conviction for breaking and entering five years ago and also for impaired driving.

'Restrain War' Plea By PMs

LONDON (Reuters) — The Commonwealth peace mission tonight appealed to the warring factions in Viet Nam for "the utmost restraint in military operations" as a step toward an early ceasefire.

The appeal came in a statement from the British prime minister's official country residence, Chequers, from the four members of the mission—Prime Minister Wilson, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, and Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago.

Wilson launched his peace mission plan in the first major session of the current 21-nation Commonwealth prime ministers' conference Thursday.

The statement said the mission's function was to explore the circumstances in which a conference must be held to end the Vietnamese fighting.

SEEK GOOD CONDITIONS

"Meanwhile, in order to create the conditions in which the mission can carry through its work, the mission is appealing to all parties concerned to show the utmost restraint in military operations as a step toward a total ceasefire which the mission hopes will be established at the earliest possible opportunity."

It added the mission hoped to meet all the parties concerned in the Vietnamese dispute.

Conference sources said the mission was willing to meet the Viet Nam National Liberation Front (NLF), the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, as part of a North Vietnamese delegation.

In the past both Britain and the United States refused to have any kind of discussions with the Viet Cong.

Prime Minister Wilson mounted a weekend battle to avert collapse of his peace mission plan.

As the 21-national Commonwealth prime ministers conference went into a weekend recess, Wilson received his colleagues in groups at Chequers, his official country residence 40 miles west of London.

The visits provided Wilson with an opportunity for talks to convince the Commonwealth leaders to close ranks in support of the Commonwealth peace-seeking mission under the British prime minister's leadership.

A spokesman said Canadian Prime Minister Pearson, travelling to the country homes of Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart during the weekend, is exerting all efforts to reassure African and Asian critics of the mission's value, though some countries still demanded that Wilson step down as mission chairman.

Some Might Rather Be Dead Than Bled

OTTAWA (CP)—If nuclear bombs ever fall on Canada, the survivors may have to pay higher taxes.

A new cabinet order outlining responsibilities of government departments in event of nuclear attack instructs the finance department to "advise cabinet respecting the imposition of emergency taxes."

The justice department, among other things, would assist "in the identification of persons unable to identify themselves."

The labor department in a "national emergency government" would control and allocate all civilian manpower and set wage rates.

The defence production department would set price controls, the works department rent controls.

Defence production also would control all industrial production and regulate internal and external trade.

The post office would distribute emergency change of address cards.

COLORADO HIT

Flood Flips Car Five People Lost

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—With Colorado still bearing most of the brunt, muddy cloudburst-fed rivers and streams spread damage through vast portions of the Rocky Mountain states and part of the southwest today.

Seventeen persons are known to have died in the flooding or for reasons directly attributable to floods. Unconfirmed reports in Colorado indicate that at least 11 other persons are missing in flooded parts of the state.

One [illegible] report said five members of the Manuel Guajardo family were swept away when waters overturned their car near Lamar. Guajardo, 36, the sole survivor, is a beet worker.

At La Junta, in the southeast part of Colorado, where the Arkansas River has made a virtual lake of the town for the last two days, 1,500 persons have received emergency vaccinations.

PREPARE FOR WORST

Officials in Las Animas, which lies in the conflux of the Arkansas and the Purgatoire Rivers, are prepared for the worst. The Arkansas has already inundated Lamar and Holly and the Purgatoire was reported to be moving rapidly toward the juncture.

Gov. John A. Love of Colorado issued an appeal to all persons in the Arkansas Valley to evacuate the lowlands. State civil defence officials said two emergency air deliveries dropped food for some 1,000 persons in shelters at Lamar.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1965 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

At our house, as in many another throughout British Columbia, we are once more enduring the whips and jingles of examination time.

It's a rough go, especially since these aren't just any old exams but a full set of Grade 12 brain-busters and there are moments when we wonder if we'll last the course.

True, experience is on our side since we have already travelled the rocky road of the would-be matriculant with our son. But there are aspects we had forgotten until the second of our hostages abandoned her happy-go-lucky ways and started cramming.

There is, for instance, the rule of silence; and as one accustomed to being noisy around the house, I find it particularly trying. Television and radio are muzzled so that only a whisper emerges. I can't sing, whistle, drop ashtrays or bang things, and the other day I got chawed out for sneezing.

★ ★ ★

Much worse, though, in the plodding journey from Latin to English to French to mathematics is the moment when the student checks in after each wrestle with an examination paper.

With us, it goes something like this:

Student walks down driveway, head bent and shoulders drooping. Closes door softly behind her, instead of giving it customary slam. Sits down, to stare at opposite wall, a picture of quiet tragedy.

She: Well. I guess that takes care of that.

We (anxiously): Was it a hard one?

She: Hard? Whoever thought up those questions was a fiend. An absolute fiend!

We: You'll feel better about it later. After all, it's one of your favorite subjects.

She (darkly): They'll have to upgrade everybody! If they don't, it will be a complete wipeout. Even the brains couldn't get anywhere with it. (Goes out for a cookie, returns to stand by window, munching.) I didn't even touch the last question, and it was worth 40 marks!

We: You mean you didn't write anything on it? Nothing at all?

She: Oh, I made a few wild guesses. I suppose they might give me a mark or two for them. As a matter of fact, the first part wasn't as bad as I expected . . .

★ ★ ★

By this time, experienced parents have read between the lines, and can venture a sigh of relief.

Translated, the tragic melodrama offered above boils down to this:

"It was a pretty hard paper, but I think I passed it."

It seems to be a fact of life that, to the conscientious student, no examination is easy. These incline to hairsplitting. They fret and fuss over the minute details of each question. The minor lapse, the failure to achieve completely, is to them a disaster.

The worst moaner I ever encountered copped a lieutenant-governor's medal with an average that all but blew the top out of the academic thermometer.

If worry one must, the time is when the jouster in the examination lists fails to come home in a state of shock.

More times than not, the jaunty step, the carefree smile, the casual dropping of terms like 'easy,' 'cinch,' or 'nothing to it!' mask a nose-dive into failure.

So far, with us, the news has all been bad, thank goodness.

And we hope this happy state of gloom and woe will continue until the last exam is written!

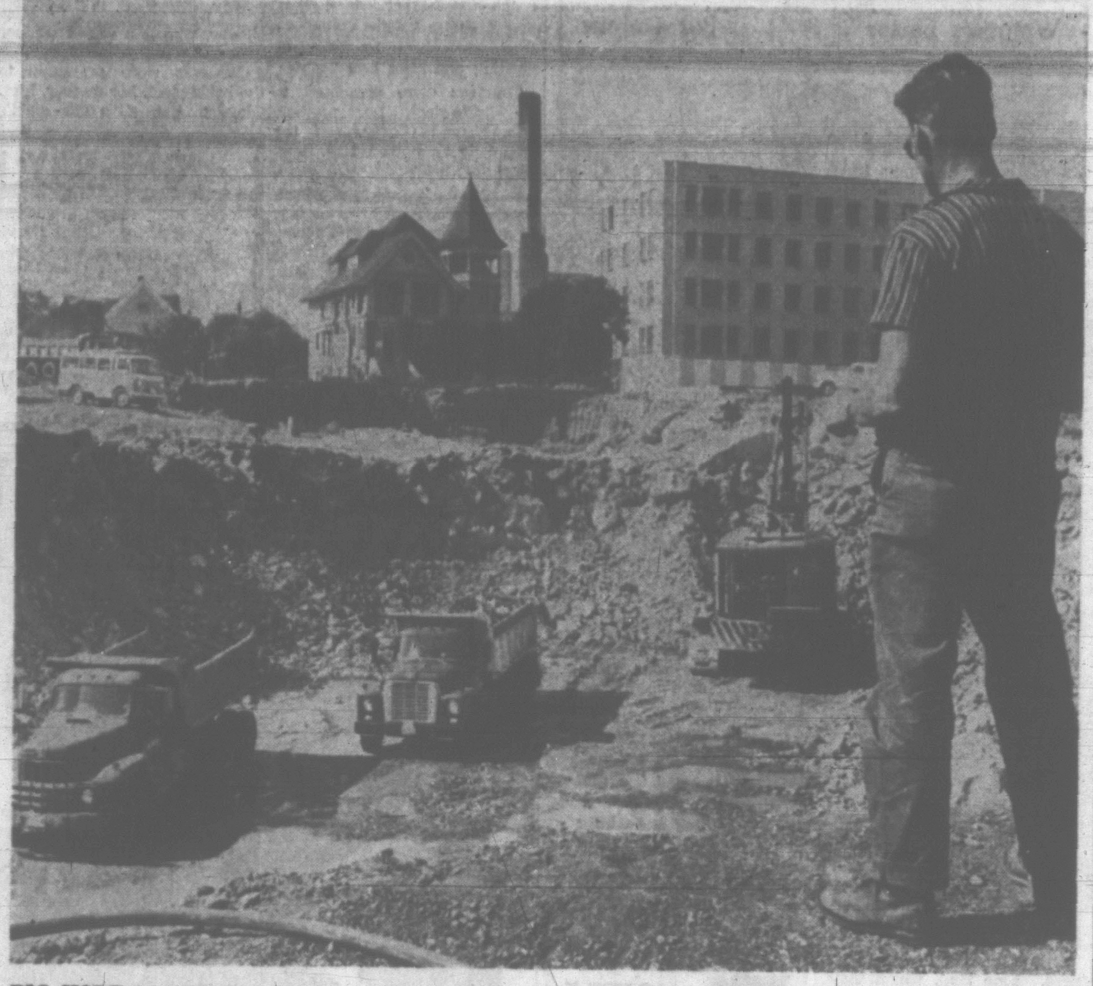
Home Zoning 'Ridiculous'

Residential zoning in Saanich is ridiculous, says municipal planner Tom Loney.

He pointed out in a report to council there are 16 residential zones with minimum floor areas ranging from 600 square feet to 1,400 square feet.

Sixteen zones are hardly needed and Vancouver only has nine, he said.

He suggested two zones which permit 600-square-foot minimums be eliminated because they are too small.



BIG HOLE in the ground today will have a big building when excavation ends and construction begins on new provincial museum. The $7-million structure, on Belleville Street, near the Legislative Buildings, is a provincial Centennial project. By the middle of August, 22,000 cubic yards of rock and 50,000 cubic yards of earth will have been moved from the site. Douglas Building is seen in the background. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

RECORD TOTAL FOR STUDENTS

Uvic Lists $22,000 in Prizes

Winners of a record $22,000 in prizes and scholarships for the 1964-65 session have been announced by the University of Victoria senate.

A jump from last year's total of $13,000 is mostly accounted for by $7,500 in new awards, called the President's Scholarships.

Several other new scholarships have been awarded this year.

Among top winners were Alexander Michael Dawes who took a $250 MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. award and a $300 President's Scholarship.

Frank Graham Sommer received the $500 1958 Centennial Scholarship, a Francis Jewelers gold wrist watch, the G. B. Stark Memorial slide rule prize and a book prize for German studies.

University Women's Club Rosalind W. Young scholarship of $200 went to Gabriele Johanna Seidel, as well as a $100 bursary from the Canadian Daughters' League.

Carolyn Gail Menzies was one of six students awarded special biology scholarships of $200, as well as a $300 Pearse science scholarship for biology.

Winners will receive their awards at a fall academic assembly, since many of the prizes require students to continue university studies.

Hundreds more students may receive a third to a half of next year's tuition fees under the provincial government's money-for-marks program.

The newly-established President's Scholarships, totalling $10,000, were announced earlier this year by president Malcolm E. Taylor.

Fifty students have been named to receive $7,500 of the awards, in amounts ranging from $50 to $500.

FIVE STUDENTS

The remaining $2,500 will go in $500 amounts to five students entering first year in September.

Government scholarships provide one-half of the year's tuition fees for first class students and one-third of the fees for students with a high second class average.

They must be applied for before July 1, and results are announced at a later date.

To be eligible for scholarships students are required to take a full course and must obtain a first class or high second class average.

They must also fulfill special requirements established by the donors of the awards.

Full list of winners will be published Monday.

PAIR TO FACE CHARGE IN PHOTO LAB CASE

A naval officer and a civilian employee of the RCN will be charged in connection with an alleged shortage of navy photographic materials.

They will appear in court Monday afternoon to face a charge, it is understood.

The court action is the culmination of a lengthy RCMP investigation into missing supplies from the photographic branch at HMCS Naden.

The investigation began after commercial photographers in the city complained to police. Last December police seized a quantity of material in a local studio.

The operator of the photography studio said he bought the supplies from a man who claimed to operate a supply business as a sideline.

WHAT BATTLE? ANSWERS FULTON

If there's a battle on for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, E. Davie Fulton says he hasn't heard about it.

In a telephone interview from Vancouver's International Airport this morning, Mr. Fulton once again denied that he was seeking the leadership of the party.

"I have stated before on many occasions that all I am interested in at the present time is being elected to the House of Commons in the Kamloops riding," he said.

"My position remains unchanged."

Asked if he would welcome the news that Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba had entered the leadership race, Mr. Fulton replied: "I'm not aware of any race for the leadership of the Conservative party."

Mr. Fulton was interviewed en route to Victoria where this afternoon he addressed the annual meeting of the Certified General Accountants Association of Canada.

He told the accountants that many of the basic principles applied in accounting could be used in politics to advantage.

"The principles of factual honesty could well be used in Canadian politics to the betterment of the nation," he said.

Mr. Fulton gave his address at the Empress Hotel a few minutes after arriving in the city.

Thieves Hit 2 Firms; $10, Cigarettes Taken

Thieves overnight Friday broke into Ames Paints, 1821 Douglas Street, and then chopped through an adjoining door and got into Lee's Produce, 1823 Douglas.

They stole $10 from the paint shop and 10 cartons of cigarettes from the grocery store.

Dealer Defends Tires Used On Japanese 'Bike'

Not all Japanese motorcycles have hard tires with poor traction, a city dealer said today.

Charles Mullins, who sells Yamaha machines, said they use a well-known North American brand of tire.

This motorcycle has won five international safety awards for tires, steering and general safety, he said.

Earlier this week, another city dealer called for government tire inspecting to eliminate machines which have poor-quality tires.

The comments came after the Motor Vehicles Branch indicated changes in legislation covering licences and testing for motorcyclists.

Campbell OK's 400-Home Plan In N. Saanich

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The green light has been signalled for a controversial 400-house subdivision on the slopes of Mount Newton in North Saanich.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said developers of the subdivision near John Dean Park have agreed to six conditions set by him.

His department now is completing zoning regulations incorporating these conditions.

The minister said he believed the site to be a good place for residential development provided it is fully serviced and the public not burdened with excessive servicing costs in the future.

The subdivision was strongly opposed at public hearings last year and in January by planners and residents.

They said approval of the scheme would be a break with the capital region development plan and create sprawl with pockets of building, rather than an orderly growing of existing population centres.

HALF-ACRE

Developers had sought half-acre lots in the area where the present restriction is two years, an effective curb on subdivision.

One of Mr. Campbell's conditions gives the minimum lot size as half an acre and the minimum house size 1,200 square feet.

His five other conditions are:

- Quality control, rather than the policy of minimum standards;
- For this purpose, a comprehensive residential zone will be created;
- The agreement must be binding to the land and can include a phasing program so builders need not embark on the whole program immediately;
- Each lot must be served with a guaranteed water supply; there must be approved sanitary sewage disposal; all roads must be paved, have storm drains and street lights;
- Five per cent, or 20 acres, of the gross area must be set aside for parks.

One of the initial problems facing developers will be water supply.

WATER FOR 120 LOTS

Reeve R. Gordon Lee has said the Central Saanich waterworks can only guarantee at present water for 120 lots.

The company developing the subdivision is Dean Park Estates Limited composed of four or five individuals. Denis Hagar is president.

He said this morning it will take about 1½ years to lay out plans before any subdivision occurs. The entire project is being built around a 10-year plan.

The estate will be "one of the finest in British Columbia," he said. The company will sell lots and individuals will arrange to have their homes built according to regulations.

He also said there is sufficient water in the next two years from Central Saanich and Sidney for 200 homes.

The capital region plan drawn up in 1958 foresaw a population increase to 250,000 by 1981—about 90,000 more than at present.

The plan saw these additional people being accommodated through an orderly and logical progression outwards from present populated areas.

It warned against spot development which would cause sprawl, offering no advantages that can't be provided more economically, raising taxes, prematurely increasing the value of land and disturbing agricultural development.

Planners and residents said approval of the Mount Newton plan would set a precedent that might allow similar projects.

However, it likely will be the only such development in North Saanich, which could become a municipality by August or September.

Liquor Level Highest Ever

Ray Padgema, 28, of the Kings Hotel, had a blood alcohol level of .35 per cent when tested at the city police station Friday night.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said this morning in court it was the highest reading he ever heard of.

Padgema, who pleaded guilty to having the care of a vehicle while drunk, was given a 15-day jail sentence.

Mr. Birkett said police found Padgema trying to start a car on Store Street near Johnson shortly after 6 p.m. Friday. When he was asked to get out of the car he fell out, said Mr. Birkett.

Padgema was unable to stand without support and he told police: "I was just going to drive home."

REACHING TO THE SKY is this 400-square-foot mural being painted at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory by artist Juan Greuer of Ottawa. PLANNER RAPS MINISTER

'Leapfrog Development' Under Fire

Approval of the Mount Newton subdivision drew strong criticism this morning from the Capital Region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

Branch president Mrs. B. Levitz Packford criticized the decision for three reasons:

- North Saanich is about to become a municipality and it should decide the matter;
- The subdivision is at "complete variance" with the Capital Region Planning Board report;
- The move "flouts every sound planning principle" by allowing leapfrog development.

She said this will prove "very, very expensive" with the provision of water, sewers, lights—and then schools, fire protection and so on.

The proposed action by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell "negates all his fine sentiments about planning," she said.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you give me the specific name of what we call flying ants? V.C.

A. Provincial agriculture department advises there are dozens of species of ants which have wings at one time during their life cycles.

But the one which is seen most in this area is a large, black ant with a wing-spread up to three-quarters of an inch.

It is a wood burrowing pest and is known as a carpenter ant.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Fire In Hotel

Firemen extinguished a fire in a fifth floor room at the Churchill Hotel at 11:30 Friday night.

The blaze was confined to the room but considerable damage was done.

City police are investigating.

WEARS HEIRLOOM SANDALS

Clusters of orange blossoms accented the hand-made satin bridal sandals, belonging to her mother, which fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Marilyn Heather Lawson this morning, when she became the bride of Allan Glen.

The skirt of her floor-length gown was styled with soft, unpressed pleats, slightly en train. The bodice was of lace and featured a scalloped sweetheart neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her scalloped-edged double cathedral veil misted from a coronet of orange blossoms. Pink roses were in her crescent-shaped bouquet.

Arrangements of white and pink carnations and white peonies decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when Dr. J. Lewis W. McLean heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Lawson, 2852 Gorge View Drive, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Glen, 206 Menzies Street. Mr. Lawson gave his daughter in marriage.

Soloist Mrs. D. G. Born sang "O Perfect Love" and "Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven" during the ceremony.

Gowns of blue lace over taffeta, similar to the bride's, were the choice of maid of honor Miss Susan Watson, bridesmatron Mrs. N. F. Wilkinson, and bridesmaids, the Misses Maureen Lawson and Anona Glen. Headpieces were coronets highlighted with sequins, banded with blue flowers and edged with toning veils. They carried colonial bouquets of white feathered carnations.

Best man was David L. McLean. Ushering guests to their pews were Charles A. Scott, Norman F. Wilkinson, and John C. Craig.

A three-tier wedding cake, topped with a silver vase of pink roses and surrounded by pink tulle and toning rosebuds, centred the bride's table for the reception following in the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club. Pink and white carnations and white peonies completed table decorations.

Jack Caddell proposed the toast to the bride.

Following a honeymoon trip to Washington and Oregon, the couple will make their home in Victoria.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Glen chose a white serrano sheath-style dress, topped with a sleeveless jacket.

Tea Party

Capt. and Mrs. J. Poole entertained at a tea at their Fairfield Place home recently for the past and present executive members of the Parent-Teacher Association of Margaret-Jenkins School and Bank Street School. Mrs. G. Love, wife of the principal of Margaret Jenkins School and Miss E. Creighton, vice-principal of Bank Street School presided. Mrs. J. T. Cruise, past-president of the PTA, was presented with a silver spoon.

Fine weather, a de luxe setting and a popular cause attracted many guests to the evening of pleasure, designed to raise money for the Conquer Cancer Campaign. In this group, left to right, are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Elsdon, Mr. K. W. L. Scace, secretary for the campaign; Mrs. Scace, Mr. Dugald Gillespie, campaign chairman, and Mrs. Gillespie. GALA EVENING RAISES FUNDS TO FIGHT CANCER

Social Set Goes Out-of-Town to Grouse Nest

Victoria's social set went for a country drive, Friday evening, en route to one of the most gala affairs on this season's party calendar. The occasion was an evening at the Grouse Nest at Sooke, arranged to raise funds for the Conquer Cancer Campaign.

For most, it was their first visit to the European-owned resort and all, even those who had been there before, were enthralled with the elegance of its trappings and the jewel-like setting.

Beginning with a cocktail hour, the program lived up to its title, "An Evening of Elegance."

Highlight of the evening was a fast-moving fashion show which featured clothes from Mr. Josef of Montreal, flown in especially for the occasion, and evening gowns, designed and made by local couturier, Ursula Redwood.

Anything but conventional, the styles teased the imagination with their color and unusual designs. Colors ran the gamut and as commentator Helen Beirnes explained, "These styles are for the daring—this is the season of the sexy look."

Provocative as an ingenue, many of the shifts and hostess gowns gave more than a glimpse of the models' suntanned thighs, featuring side-slits reaching almost to the hips.

Harem pants added excitement to an unusual hostess outfit. Another eye-raising ensemble in white had a demure middy teamed with a saucy pair of pants that had a Calypso ruffled bottom hem, trimmed with a veritable garden of embroidered flowers.

Hair styles were by Danny Hajnal, who, together with Helen Beirnes, was responsible for the novel evening. Jewelry was from Henry Birks Limited.

Even resort manager, Jack Ehrensperger agreed that the flowers donated by Norma Fitzsimmons almost outshone the sparkle and brilliance of their surroundings. Each of the tables was centred with creamy-toned vases, filled with scarlet roses and fern while huge arrangements of other blossoms seemed to bring the outdoors in.

The menu was designed to drive a gourment to ode-making, featuring lobsters flown in from eastern Canada, sea foods of every description, meats for every taste and a selection of salads that seemed to have stolen the colors of the rainbow.

Champagne flowed freely and no one seemed to mind that the dance floor was small . . . there was so much to see and admire, to take turns at "tripping the light fantastic" enabled the guests to tour the resort and admire its beauty.

And, when the evening ended, the long drive back to the highway along private roads, edged with magnificent trees, gave an extra bonus. It was truly a night to remember.

Jennifer Botterell Bride In Chapel Wedding Today

The Lady's Chapel of Christ Church Cathedral was the setting this afternoon for a lovely summer wedding, when Elizabeth Jennifer Joah, daughter of Mrs. Hugh E. Botterell, 533 Transit Road and the late Mr. Botterell, became the bride of Peter House, son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter K. House of Halifax.

Rev. E. Gilbert officiated at the ceremony.

Entering the chapel on the arm of her brother, John F. Botterell, the brown-haired bride was a picture in a gown of white crepe flowing to floor length. The empire-waist dress was enhanced by a scoop neckline and wrist-length sleeves. The skirt swept to a chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil misted from a headpiece of crepe petals. She carried a prayer book topped with white roses and wedgewood blue streamers.

Wedgewood blue dresses in crepe were worn by maid of honor, Miss Nan Dufour and bridesmaid, Miss Susan Lort, Seattle. The afternoon-length dresses were styled on the same lines as the bride's gown. They wore headdresses of white chrysanthemums and carried matching bouquets.

Best man was James Richardson, Vancouver. John Lort and Tim Richardson ushered guests to their pews.

W. McIntyre proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed in the Union Club.

Later, the newlyweds left on honeymoon to an undisclosed destination.

They will make their home in Halifax, where the groom is completing studies in medicine at Dalhousie University.

To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Durden, 1625 Hampshire Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Georgina Lynn, to Mr. William Keith Jackson, eldest son of Mr. Albert Bernard Jackson, Victoria, and the late Mr. Jackson. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 26, at 7 p.m., in Victoria Truth Centre with Rev. Emma Smiley officiating.

His Honor To Open Tea

His Honor will open the affair at 2 p.m. next Saturday. This year, the party will be at "Strangewood," the home of Mrs. S. L. McMullen at 1800 Ferndale Road.

In charge of arrangements are Mrs. N. C. Powell, Mrs. D. Latimer and Mrs. H. O. Watkins.

Features of the afternoon will be stalls of home cooking, sewing, garden plants, shrubs, flowers, antiques and miscellaneous items.

A program of games will also add to the afternoon's enjoyment.

That afternoon, the Lieutenant-Governor will attend the double ceremony of the laying-away of the White Ensign and the unveiling of a plaque commemorating the Second Canadian Mounted Rifles in the rotunda of the Provincial Parliament Buildings.

Wed in Germany

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Merklinger of Pforzheim and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Forrester of Vancouver, formerly of Victoria. The newlyweds are now making their home at 9, The Gateways, Park Lane, Richmond, Surrey, Eng.

Free Medical Service For Indians Appealed

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers said in the Commons Friday a court decision that all Saskatchewan Indian hospital and medical services from the federal government is being appealed because of its "far-reaching implications."

Citizenship Minister Nicholson said, however, the Indian Affairs branch in his department is willing to provide "outstanding counsel" to ensure the Indians' rights are safeguarded.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh noted all Indians had not been included in Saskatchewan plans and the issue should be taken to a higher court "so it can be settled once and for all."

The federal government pays the provincial premiums for Indians on reserves and Indians who have lived off reserves for less than 12 months. But it considers Indians taking up residence off reserves should pay their own premiums after a year.

Two Victorians To Be Ordained

U.S. Student Artists Given Brush By Law

Victoria city council is expected to deal Thursday with an application by two American students wanting to use the Causeway as an open air studio.

Jerald Bentley and Samuel LeBaron set up easels and began sketching portraits Thursday, not realizing they needed council permission as well as a $30 trade licence.

Police, acting on complaint from a local art group, moved them along.

They took their problem to city hall, discussed the licence with inspector Bill Wallis and the policy with city manager Dennis Young.

The summer season seems to bring out unusual bids to conduct off-beat businesses, Mr. Wallis indicated, resigned to the problem.

"There'll be more before the summer is out," he said.

CAUTIOUS ATTITUDE

In the past, council has been cautious about granting sidewalk and pedlar permits, although an art guild has had permission to display pictures on the Causeway as a tourist attraction and enterprising school girls have been granted a shoeshine licence.

The Americans were told they should write a formal letter of application.

"I do want to do art work here," said Mr. Bentley. "I worked on the Loop in Chicago. The licence costs $10 there."

A student in Madison, he also has sketched on the streets there and earned his master's degree in philosophy.

Mr. LeBaron attends Stanford University and came to Victoria with the idea of playing jazz for the summer.

DESERT CLAIMS 5

Last Days Recaptured On Films

CAIRO (AP)—The German woman lay down on the desert, pillowed her head on her dress, covered her face against the searing sun and prepared to die.

"Our water is running short. We are in a very critical condition."

These were the final recorded words of five West Germans who died of thirst in the Egyptian desert last week as revealed in the pages of a tattered notebook. Photographs taken by one of the victims showed the group gradually collapsing.

The notes, written by Gunter Wanderschtek, a technician at Egypt's jet aircraft factory, were obtained from the Egyptian police after the bodies were found in the Siwa Desert last Friday and Saturday.

The five had set out on a holiday trek across an unmarked 300-mile track to Siwa Oasis June 5.

The two cars bogged down and were abandoned in the sands, and the group split up.

Parliament To Debate Beatle MBE

LONDON (AP) — The [illegible] question of why the Beatles were installed in the Order of the British Empire will be debated by both Houses of Parliament, it was announced Friday.

Questions about how candidates for such high awards are chosen were submitted by two members of Commons for answer July 20 and by a member of the House of Lords for June 29.

In the Lords, Lord Colwyn, whose name and whose banker-father's name was Fred Smith before the latter was created the first Baron Colwyn in 1917, was to ask the government:

Why was the singing quartet honored by the Queen when "there are many distinguished entertainers who gave their services voluntarily during the war in conditions of great hardship all over the world, without the award of any honor?"

In Commons, Conservative MP Stephen Hastings was asking Prime Minister Harold Wilson if he will review the present departmental procedure for submitting names for the honors list.

Moderates Have Delicate Task Solving Quebec's Problems

Times City Hall reporter Ab Kent continues his report on the Union of B.C. Municipalities' goodwill visit to Quebec in this, the last of four articles.

The moderates of Quebec's "quiet revolution" must step carefully between radicals and reactionaries to keep peace and empathy with the rest of Canada.

This was one of the most cognent observations made following last month's Quebec mission of understanding by 150 Union of B.C. Municipalities delegates.

It came from Mayor R. B. Wilson, who played a large part in planning the mutual exchange begun last fall by Union of Quebec Municipalities guests in B.C.

Virtually all the westerners had praise for the visit to Quebec City and Montreal areas, many of them seeing the French-speaking province for the first time.

Differences

They learned some basic differences and noted many similarities in the daily lives of their urban counterparts.

All made new acquaintances, some found lasting friendships.

They are now in much better position to judge the sometimes bizarre happenings that occur in a resurgent society with historic and cultural implications unique in Canada.

Some visitors found the voice of the people, Quebecois in whose homes they were entertained, speaking less harshly than their political leaders in describing the aspirations of Quebec.

Great Success

At the same time, they found that the majority deplores the acts of hoodlumism and violence perpetrated in the name of nationalism.

"We went to see more of their province and to see some of their problems, and in this respect I think the trip was a great success," said Mayor Wilson.

"The moderates will have to walk a very narrow path for some years, because if the radicals go too far, the English-speaking people will probably get their backs up.

"We mustn't let the radicals or the reactionaries get the ball. It leaves majority caught in the middle.

"But problems do have to be solved and we have to get the English-speaking people to realize there must be compromise on both sides, with more understanding of each others' problems."

Mayor Wilson agreed with Le Devoir editor-in-chief Claude Ryan, who said "We are now sitting down and talking about these problems." There must be continued discussion, he said.

"But they are most concerned about language, and this, I think, is impractical for the rest of the country," the mayor said. He referred to a Quebec desire for bilingualism at public level in ordinary business and government such as banks, post offices and day to day government agencies.

When Governor-General Georges Venier was here last week he said:

"All we have to do is get to know one another. We all have the same conception of life. We have no problems really (except) some little problem over language."

Senior Victoria Alderman M. H. Mooney observed:

Same People

"To my way of thinking, the people have no intention of breaking away from Canada. They are the same people as we are; they wear the same clothes, have the same goods, have the same sights, the same kids on the streets—they just have a different language.

"We need a great deal more travel between the provinces of Canada. I would like to see state-paid holidays enabling people to know the rest of their country."

Ald. A. W. Toone:

"The trip was most worthwhile. Among my most valued associations are those with people in the same position as myself, and senior municipal officials.

More Visits

"But exchanges should be broadened to draw in people from other provinces, perhaps through the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities."

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox was impressed that the Quebec visit to Victoria and Vancouver last year had had an obvious impact in Quebec.

"All were very anxious to repeat the cordiality on an individual basis. This exchange is the right idea and now it is up to individual people to follow it up," the reeve said.

Coun. Frances Elford, Oak Bay:

"They went out of their way to extend hospitality and a feeling of friendliness."

No Co-operation

Daryl Elford, the councillor's husband, found a feeling that people of east and west are not trying to co-operate. He said Quebec "seems keenly interested in co-operating with the rest of Canada."

Saanich Councillor Ed Lum:

"I think the visit created better understanding between east and west. We couldn't keep up with the people who invited us to their homes.

"Several tried to explain the Quebec situation . . . most hoped the visits would continue and further the understanding."

Girl Relates Meet With St. Michael

SAN SEBASTIAN DE GARABANDAL, Spain (AP) — A 16-year-old farm girl, who claimed to have held regular conversations with the Virgin Mary in the past, said today she held a belated rendezvous with the Archangel St. Michael at midnight Friday night.

Her meeting with the heavenly messenger was witnessed by a crowd of religious experts and curious from Spain, France and the United States who gathered in this remote mountain settlement in anticipation of a new holy visitation.

The girl, Conchita Gonzalez, daughter of a village widow, was in ecstacy for approximately 10 minutes, in a mountain grove outside this village. During that period a doctor checked her pulse and found it normal.

"When she regained consciousness she told us she had been speaking with St. Michael and that she had received a message which she would reveal later in writing," said a witness.

Nearly 1,000 visitors — more than double the normal population of this rural village—waited throughout the day for some fulfilment of the promise that one or more of the four village girls who claimed contact with the Virgin Mary would receive a new heavenly visit.

Despite an official ban on participation in the activities here by the Roman Catholic bishop of Santander, several priests were in the crowd.

SOLOIST at the morning and evening services in Metropolitan United Sunday will be Mrs. Margaret Hurdon Keifer. In the morning she will sing How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings, and in the evening, The Prayer Perfect.

Repeat Performance

Mayor R. B. Wilson Friday staged a repeat performance of the Victoria story in urban improvements when he spoke to a Vancouver service club at noon.

Accompanied by two members of the Capital City Club and special projects director Roderick Clack, Mayor Wilson gave a presentation similar to what he delivered earlier this month to a meeting of Confederation Centennial planners in Ottawa.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JIM JACOBY

Here is another hand from the Great Lakes Regional at Grand Rapids:

The four heart contract was normal enough so that almost every South player got there and it would be no problem at all in rubber bridge. South would win the diamond opening and proceed to play the ace of trumps and eventually lose a club and a diamond in addition to the trump trick.

In duplicate it is well worth while to play for an extra trick and several South players did play successfully for five odd.

Thus, when Grant Marsee of Dearborn, Mich., sat South he won the diamond opening and led a club toward dummy. East overtook the jack with his king and led a second diamond. Grant won the trick and led a second club to dummy's queen.

He got back to his hand by ruffing a spade and discarded dummy's last diamond on his ace of clubs. Then he ruffed his deuce of diamonds with dummy's seven of trumps and led the queen. East ducked and Grant let the queen ride. Then he returned to his hand by ruffing another spade and played his ace of trumps. When both opponents followed Grant conceded a trick to the king of trumps and made his overtrick.

There is nothing really complicated about the whole line of play, but it does show something about both skill and luck in duplicate. Grant's skill gave him a good score. The opponents had bad luck in that they had to defend the hand against him instead of against a man who would have settled for 10 tricks only.

CHALET ONLY OUTLET

'Wet' Vote Wins In North Saanich

North Saanich residents Friday voted "wet."

They approved in a plebiscite beer parlors, cocktail lounges, sale of beer and wine in restaurants and sale of spirits in restaurants.

The recently renovated Deep Cove Chalet is the only place in the unorganized district which now can make use of the liquor privileges.

Under the Liquor Act, it can only apply to sell beer, wine and spirits in a restaurant.

Beer parlors and cocktail lounges are only permitted in hotels and there is none in North Saanich.

"I'm satisfied," said Chalet operator William Cole, who initiated the plebiscite move. "I only wanted full dining room privileges."

About 640 out of 1,541 eligible voters cast ballots.

They approved beer parlors 345 to 229.

Sale of beer or wine in dining rooms was approved 482 to 91; full restaurant liquor privileges 493 to 30, and cocktail bars by 471 to 106.

ISLAND DIGEST

Check Ordered On Oyster Beds

New restrictions on oyster marketing have been imposed on Sooke and four other Vancouver Island harbors.

Deputy Health Minister J. A. Taylor said Friday all oysters taken in the Ladysmith and Pender Harbor areas and at individual leases at Sooke, Fanny Bay and Denman Island must be isolated for 14 days before they are marketed.

The new restrictions follow studies of contamination levels begun last November, he said.

Mr. Taylor emphasized his continuing confidence in the quality of shell fish provided commercially for domestic and export markets.

He said that in the 60-year history of the B.C. industry there has never been any disease associated with commercially-produced clams or oysters.

"The only exception is the red tide," he said, "which is a natural phenomenon and which should not be confused with the bacterial control under which the present restrictions are implemented."

The new restrictions means that oysters in contaminated areas will have to be lifted from their beds and shifted to non-polluted waters.

Oysters in a day pump about 22 gallons of water through their circulatory system. In two weeks, they are expected to be thoroughly clean.

Former Olympic Runner Trains Duncan Youth

DUNCAN—Young athletes of the Cowichan Lake-Cobble Hill district are being trained by a former Olympic runner.

Ton Hamilton, a Dutchman who ran in the 400-metre relay for Holland in the 1948 Olympics in London, spends three nights a week coaching 12 young people the rudiments of track work.

He is an employee of the B.C. Forest centre at the Duncan nursery.

Nimrods Fear Strathcona Destruction

CAMPBELL RIVER — Objections were raised here Friday to the cutting of timber in Strathcona Park near this central Vancouver Island community.

Complaints were laid against Elk River Timber Co., which recently logged a timber stand around Crest Lake in the park; and Western Mines Ltd., which is seeking provincial government approval to build a townsite at its copper mine site in the park.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan last month announced the park would be split in two — three-fifths for nature conservations and two-fifths for commercial operations.

ACCESS ROAD

Elk River president Don Ellis said Friday in Everett, Wash., that his company removed the timber at a provincial government request to provide access to a new mill town at Gold River.

George Bergsma, president of the Campbell River Fish and Game Club, said the government should be buying timber and mineral rights "instead of allowing timber and mining companies to destroy the park.

"The American government is spending billions to do this, but we just go right ahead ruining ours."

Peter Lakoduk, president of the Chamber of Commerce here, said: "We soon won't have any parks left. They're cleaning them out."

He said the chamber will meet next Thursday to try to work out a plan to save the parkland.

32 Students From Boise Learning About Island

Thirty-two high school students from First Methodist Church, Boise, Idaho, have been working at Camp Moorecroft, near Nanaimo, this week.

Their main task was painting and cleaning the camp in preparation for its use by United Church youth later this summer.

Each worked on a study project. Student Stephen Boyer prepared a paper on Nanaimo totem poles; Donna McElravy, grade 11, studied Vancouver Island, its history past and present.

Sherry Vycital, grade 11, made a study of the city of Victoria.

Visiting Victoria Thursday, the group invited civic and provincial leaders, and Rev. and Mrs. Robert Morris of First United, to be their guests at a dinner in the Net Loft.

The youngsters are on a tour of the Pacific Northwest.

De Gaulle's Election Plans in Air

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle today resumed the last speaking tour of his present seven-year term with everyone still asking when he will throw more light on his plans for December's presidential election.

De Gaulle so far has refrained from indicating if he will run for re-election or name a successor to run in the election with his support.

But his speeches in Paris suburbs earlier this week have contained hints of a campaign theme—stressing the value of a France independent from foreign nations' policy influences.

UNITED FRONT FAILS

The whole election picture was changed by the failure Friday of Socialist candidate Gaston Defferre, the mayor of Marseille, to form the united party front he wanted in order to oppose de Gaulle.

Defferre, who announced his candidacy at the end of 1963, previously let it be understood he would give up the race if his plan of a combined left-of-centre opposition failed.

After a long meeting of 17 political leaders Friday, Defferre read a brief communique saying the representatives of the political parties were unable to reach a broad enough agreement "to realize a unified political formation."

But he did not commit himself further, saying only: "I must consider my position."

Reds Rap Plan

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW—Prime Minister Harold Wilson may be unable to carry out his plan for a Commonwealth peace mission on Viet Nam, Tass said today.

The official Soviet news agency, in a dispatch from London, said the mission "is beginning to take an unpleasant and unforeseen turn for London," as other Commonwealth premiers criticize the idea.

"One gets the impression," Tass said, "that the British government does not want to wash its dirty linen in public and is striving to soft-pedal the discussion of the question concerning the expediency of sending such a mission."

'SHOW THE CRITICS'

The Soviet press and radio earlier attacked the plan. Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the mission was setting out without first branding the United States as an aggressor. It said it was a "manoeuvre intended to show the critics of British policy that London is concerned about peace."

China remained officially silent on the proposed peace mission today, but newspapers in Peking featured attacks on the "peace hoax" of Americans and those who supported Viet Nam talks.

Navy Fails To Lasso TNT Vessel

Drifting South Off Wash.

By RON SUDLOW

Battling mountainous seas and howling winds, two naval craft today failed to secure a line to the abandoned Laymore, carrying 149 tons of obsolete naval ammunition.

Standing by to ward off approaching merchant vessels and fishing craft were HMCS MacKenzie and naval auxiliary vessel Clifton.

HMCS Stettler took cover Friday night in Barkley Sound.

The vessels, at press time, were hove to off the Washington coast 60 miles south of Cape Flattery and 30 miles from land.

Commander H. J. Wade of Mackenzie said they were battling northwest winds and an increasing waves.

"It looks like no tow connection can be made today," he radioed.

The Clifton, which rescued the Laymore's 17-man crew from 70 mph gales and 30-foot waves Thursday evening left Victoria Friday night.

RETURNS FOR REPAIRS

She replaced the navy's ocean-going tug Heatherton which arrived at Esquimalt at 8 a.m. today for repairs to a generator which actuates her towing winch.

Capt. Bob Hooper of the towboat said weather conditions when they left the Laymore were "pretty well the same as Friday."

Winds were steady at 45 mph and gusting and 25-30-foot waves still pounded the vessels.

50-DEGREE PITCH

"Laymore was still pitching 40 to 50 degrees to either side when we left," he said.

Heatherton crept as close as 200 feet to the powerless, rudderless munitions vessel Friday and also sighted the fluorescent orange life raft used by her crew for four hours Thursday.

And Capt. Hooper today confirmed reports ammunition lashed to Laymore's decks had broken loose during the storm and was washed overboard.

HOOPER

DRIFTING SOUTH

By press time, Laymore had drifted 85 miles south of where she was abandoned because ammunition in the cargo hold shifted.

The ship is drifting against a northwest wind.

"During her drift she has crossed the approaches to most of the shipping lanes into the Strait of Juan de Fuca," Capt. Hooper added.

'NOT A MENACE'

But she is not considered a menace to shipping because navy vessels are standing by, transport department and U.S. Coast Guard officials said at noon.

ARMY COUP

Algerian President Ousted

ALGIERS — An army-backed coup carried out before dawn today ousted President Ahmed Ben Bella, 48, as a "diabolical dictator." By nightfall a revolutionary council that took over power was reported to be preparing charges of high treason against him.

Emerging as the strong man of the council, and signing its first declaration, was Col. Houari Boumedienne, vice-premier and defence minister.

The declaration said Ben Bella would "meet the fate of all despots." Besides treason, it accused him of abuse of personal power."

TROOPS PATROL STREETS

Most tanks which clattered into position before dawn had been withdrawn, although a few stood sentry outside some buildings. Troops units armed with sub-machine guns patrolled the streets.

COL. BOUMEDIENNE
. . . new strongman

The city was quiet and Algerians sat at sidewalk bistros sipping drinks. A few muttered dislike for Boumedienne and some said he had engineered the coup because of disagreement with Ben Bella on domestic matters.

Boumedienne, 40, an officer who had been associated with Ben Bella since the early days of Algeria's fight for independence, was said to have been trained either in Peking or Moscow. But The Associated Press reported one responsible source said Boumedienne "is definitely not pro-Chinese."

ADMIRES CASTRO

Diplomatic sources in Madrid said they had been informed the coup was accomplished by rightists within the Algerian armed forces. But Boumedienne is said to be an admirer of Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba and visited Havana last July.

Reuters news agency said Boumedienne, an ascetic, fervent Moslem, always has regarded the army as the core of a socialist society in his country.

A statement signed by Boumedienne and read over the radio said all power had been taken from Ben Bella. It added that Algeria would continue to honor all previous agreements and commitments with other countries.

PLEDGES FRIENDSHIP

Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika said in a statement that Algeria's foreign policy is non-alignment and friendship with all nations.

Blank Shot Proves Hot —24 Hurt

GLADEWATER, Tex. (AP)—A rodeo clown firing what was supposed to be a blank charge peppered spectators with bird shot Friday night, wounding 24 persons and creating pandemonium.

Investigators said it obviously was an accident but they had not determined early today how a live shell got into the shotgun.

Of the wounded, 11 adults remained in hospitals overnight but attendants said none suffered serious injury. The others were dismissed after emergency treatment.

Police said the clown, Ken Arthur Boen, 41, of Fort Smith, Ark., told questioners he noticed before the performance that his box of blank shells was nearly empty, and he would need to buy more.

Sheriff Doyle Johnson filed a charge of assault with a prohibited weapon against Boen. The clown was not in custody.

Father Held Knife Against Infant Son

A young man kept police at bay for 30 minutes this morning by threatening to use a knife on his five-months-old son if police made a move to get him.

Anthony Soulsby, 1142 Caledonia, was finally talked into coming out of his house.

He pleaded guilty in city court this morning to possession of an offensive weapon—a carving knife with an eight-inch blade.

Soulsby was remanded to next Saturday for a psychiatric report and sentence.

Constable Ken Horsman said he went to Soulsby's home at 1:50 this morning and found Mrs. Soulsby standing outside. She told him there had been a domestic quarrel and her husband was inside the house with their child.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby stood behind the glass door of his house and threatened police "If you try to enter I'll use this knife on the child and then myself."

The officer talked with Soulsby for 30 minutes before he let police inside. He stood behind the door holding the child in one arm and the knife in his other hand all the while he talked.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby had been drinking but was not intoxicated. The child was unharmed.

Magistrate J. A. Byers asked Soulsby for an explanation of his conduct.

Soulsby replied, "I just lose my temper and get like that. I wouldn't harm the child."

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Soulsby had a conviction for breaking and entering five years ago and also for impaired driving.

'Restrain War' Plea By PMs

LONDON (Reuters) — The Commonwealth peace mission tonight appealed to the warring factions in Viet Nam for "the utmost restraint in military operations" as a step toward an early ceasefire.

The appeal came in a statement from the British prime minister's official country residence, Chequers, from the four members of the mission—Prime Minister Wilson, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, and Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago.

Wilson launched his peace mission plan in the first major session of the current 21-nation Commonwealth prime ministers' conference Thursday.

The statement said the mission's function was to explore the circumstances in which a conference must be held to end the Vietnamese fighting.

SEEK GOOD CONDITIONS

"Meanwhile, in order to create the conditions in which the mission can carry through its work, the mission is appealing to all parties concerned to show the utmost restraint in military operations as a step toward a total ceasefire which the mission hopes will be established at the earliest possible opportunity."

It added the mission hoped to meet all the parties concerned in the Vietnamese dispute.

Conference sources said the mission was willing to meet the Viet Nam National Liberation Front (NLF), the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, as part of a North Vietnamese delegation.

In the past both Britain and the United States refused to have any kind of discussions with the Viet Cong.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Wilson mounted a weekend battle to avert collapse of his peace mission plan.

As the Commonwealth conference went into a weekend recess, Wilson received his colleagues in groups at Chequers.

The visits provided Wilson with an opportunity for talks to convince the Commonwealth leaders to close ranks in support of the peace-seeking mission.

A spokesman said Canadian Prime Minister Pearson, travelling to the country homes of Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart during the weekend, is exerting all efforts to reassure African and Asian critics of the mission's value, though some countries still demanded that Wilson step down as mission chairman.

Some Might Rather Be Dead Than Bled

OTTAWA (CP)—If nuclear bombs ever fall on Canada, the survivors may have to pay higher taxes.

A new cabinet order outlining responsibilities of government departments in event of nuclear attack instructs the finance department to "advise cabinet respecting the imposition of emergency taxes."

The justice department, among other things, would assist "in the identification of persons unable to identify themselves."

The labor department in a "national emergency government" would control and allocate all civilian manpower and set wage rates.

The defence production department would set price controls, the works department rent controls.

Defence production also would control all industrial production and regulate internal and external trade.

The post office would distribute emergency change of address cards.

COLORADO HIT

Flood Flips Car, Five People Lost

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—With Colorado still bearing most of the brunt, muddy cloudburst-fed rivers and streams spread damage through vast portions of the Rocky Mountain states and part of the southwest today.

Seventeen persons are known to have died in the flooding or for reasons directly attributable to floods. Unconfirmed reports in Colorado indicate that at least 11 other persons are missing in flooded parts of the state.

One such report said five members of the Manuel Guajardo family were swept away when waters overturned their car near Lamar. Guajardo, 36, the sole survivor, is a beet worker.

At La Junta, in the southeast part of Colorado, where the Arkansas River has made a virtual lake of the town for the last two days, 1,500 persons have received emergency vaccinations.

PREPARE FOR WORST

Officials in Las Animas, which lies in the conflux of the Arkansas and the Purgatoire Rivers, are prepared for the worst. The Arkansas has already inundated Lamar and Holly and the Purgatoire was reported to be moving rapidly toward the juncture.

Gov. John A. Love of Colorado issued an appeal to all persons in the Arkansas Valley to evacuate the lowlands. State civil defence officials said two emergency air deliveries dropped food for some 1,000 persons in shelters at Lamar.

Who said the days of the fast buck are gone?

Victoria Daily Times readers who are amateur photographers have the opportunity to make a bundle, with no more time or effort than it takes to flick a shutter.

Only requirements are a quick mind, a good eye, a steady hand and participation in the National Newspaper Snapshot Awards sponsored by The Times.

For their efforts the winners will share $50,000 of prizes including exotic trips to the far corners of the world and substantial cash awards.

Unless they are familiar with the photo contests of the past two years, contestants should first study the technical rules applying to the competition. A thorough study of today's page 16 ad, outlining rules and regulations, is suggested.

For the eager-beavers who want to start shooting before reading, here are a few tips:

The snaps (only black and white) must have been taken after July 1, 1964. The unmounted prints can be of any reasonable size.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Ever since the edict was made known from the High Command of the Dominion Drama Festival, concerning the re-zoning of the provinces with respect to participation in the finals, I've been wondering why the executive bothered about pussyfooting at all.

Why the patronizing nod in the direction of the Maritimes and Western Canada?

Why not have the guts (or should I say, gall), to make a simple and factual statement: "We—Ontario-Quebec and the eastern portion of Manitoba—being fully conscious of our superiority and self-sufficiency, have decided to X the rest of you out."

We would have received the statement without shock. We're all too accustomed to the role of the far-out and unloved cousin.

It's been happening to us here in the west ever since I can remember, politically and every other way. The plums go where the votes are. And where the people already have an orchard full.

Suppose Ontario and Quebec do have many more active and proficient theatre groups than the combined provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Maritimes.

So room must be made for greater participation by these groups in fairness to them and to the standard aimed at by the Dominion Drama Festival.

But is it fair, at the same time, to be totally unfair to the rest of Canada?

It is quite clear to me that in a short while even the single representation grudgingly accorded the west and the Atlantic provinces will become rarity when DDF officials have had time to dream up a reason for making it so.

Admittedly, the three western provinces have sometimes failed to come up with a suitably high standard of production. But over the years the record isn't all that bad and in 1964, British Columbia had the runner-up spot in the finals and the best actor award.

And where were Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba this year? On the outside, watching Nova Scotia walk off with the big prize.

Let's Split Canada in Half

Suppose we accept as valid, the need to allow all good work being done in the eastern zones a chance to appear in Canada's drama showcase; then we have to admit that something has to go.

The ship is topheavy so heave the super cargo overboard.

But wouldn't it be wiser to whistle up another ship and divide the overload?

In other words split the festival into eastern and western divisions; after which never the twain shall meet for years and years, until on some future great occasion—such as the Canadian bi-centenary—when winners of the eastern and western divisions could face each other in an all-out battle of giants.

Specifications for such an event should require that each team present a comedy and a drama or tragedy, one of the two to be classic and the other, contemporary.

This would occupy four nights of the epic meet, the rest of the week to be accounted for by presentations, eulogies, expressions of good will between outermost Canada and innermost Canada, panels, seminars, discussion groups, workshops and finally, a meeting of official minds at which it could be decided that Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlottes, Prince Edward Island and Baffin Land, being the extreme perimeters of civilization, would no longer be eligible to participate.

After which these territories could get together and form a Canadian Continental Fringe Festival, thus thumbing their noses at the eastern and western divisions.

But whatever happens in the future, the effect of the current zone change will be to harden the already excessive cultural stratification, and narrow and diminish the original concept of the Dominion Drama Festival.

In fact, after the coming year, when we are committed to entertaining the DDF finals in Victoria, I doubt whether the West will bother about entering at all.

So the organization will have actually forfeited the right to the title "Dominion." Perhaps we should think up a new one; something like, "The Onque (Ontario-Quebec) Drama Festival."

But no, perhaps Onque is a little too like oink to be a tactful suggestion.

New Format for Noon Shows

This week—on Friday to be exact, when soprano Adele Lewis and pianist Joan Bulmer gave a recital of Spanish music—phase one of the McPherson Playhouse lunchtime concerts concluded.

From Wednesday to the end of June there will be an interval while some unfinished business is taken care of in the matter of cutting access from the Playhouse stage into the new scene loft and rehearsal room.

When the concerts resume on July 2, founder-director Ken Gravenor will try out a new format. Instead of two concerts of 40 minutes each, starting at 12:10 and 1:10, there will be one continuous performance running from 12:10 to 1:15 with frequent two-or-three-minute intervals.

This arrangement will allow audiences to come and go as they please. It will be ideal for late comers and people who have to hurry back to work.

When the McPherson has its projection equipment installed, probably sometime in August, Mr. Gravenor expects to be able to show National Film Board shorts dealing with art and music subjects at each concert.

After 41 noon shows plus two Sunday afternoon concerts, Mr. Gravenor has learned a lot about Victoria.

He knows, for example, that many city business men are interested and willing supporters of the undertaking. Not only do they buy blocks of tickets for the shows assistance in the matter of pianos and other things is forthcoming.

And he knows too, that there is much more excellent quality talent in this community than most of us realize but that the weakness lies in repertoires which are limited and repetitive.

Greed Could Spoil Everything

On the other hand, much of this weakness can be blamed on the fact that up to now there has been little encouragement or opportunity to demonstrate a repertoire of any kind.

This is just one of many valuable things about the lunchtime concerts.

I have already talked about the lift that has been given Victoria artists.

But I should also like to point out that the concerts have done much to popularize the McPherson Playhouse and develop a public interest that could grow into a demand and a strong theatre-going habit.

That is why I am alarmed when I hear rumors that admission price changes are in the offing.

I don't think anyone would mind a jump from 25 cents to 35, in fact I think it is logical, but I hope that it will stop there and that no civic covetousness will step in and spoil one of the most useful ventures ever promoted here.

The beauty of the idea, apart from anything else, is its availability to all and the fact that anyone can afford to attend two and three times a week.

Double the present admission fee and you immediately begin to whittle away the audience potential.

Thousands of people who might never have passed through the theatre doors in two or three years, are now regular visitors.

Let's keep it that way and sustain the important function the concerts are providing for everyone.

FORD SCHOLARSHIPS

Full Registration For Dance Course

Registration is now closed for the full six-week course to be given by Royal Ballet star, Peter Franklin White, in Victoria this summer.

Forty-eight students as well as a number of teachers from many parts of Canada and the United States, have registered.

Two of the students are coming on Ford Foundation Scholarships, and the Department of Indian Affairs is sponsoring an Indian dance student from Kamloops.

Mrs. John Wade is in charge of arrangements for the sessions which are being sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Victoria School of Music.

She announces that there are still a few vacancies for advanced pupils in the evening classes.

Mr. White is at the moment teaching and giving lecture demonstrations at Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, and will give short dance seminars in Banff and Vancouver before coming to Victoria July 11. The course opens in the Wynne Shaw Dance Studio, July 12.

In August, Mr. White will be presented in a dance recital at McPherson Playhouse as part of Festival Theatre Society's Show Parade 1965.

Immediately afterward, the noted dancer will fly back to London to rejoin the Royal Ballet which he left at the conclusion of its recent New York engagement.

Reeds, Voices Share Program

The Gayfer Singers will perform madrigals and rounds as well as English part songs and two modern motets.

Three numbers composed by Capt. Gayfer and music by Haydn, Mozart, Bizet and Frederick Loewe will be among the numbers by the woodwind group.

Joan Corner is the pianist.

Brilliant Theatre Men Coming From U.S. and U.K.

Top-flight talent and experience from the worlds of British and American theatre will be combined shortly as the University of Victoria Renaissance Festival plays go into production.

Arriving in town at the end of June will be director Richard Digby Day from England, and costume designer Douglas Russell from California.

Mr. Day is coming especially to direct Twelfth Night and Mr. Russell will be designing lavish costumes for both the Shakespeare play and for Robert Bolt's A Man for All Seasons, which will be directed by Carl Hare.

In addition to their festival activities, both will be teaching theatre courses in the University Summer Session program.

Of particular interest is Mr. Russell's two week non-credit course in costume designing to be given from August 3 to 13.

SPECIAL FIELD

Mr. Russell is not only one of the most distinguished experts in costume designing in the United States today, but is also an outstanding scholar and teacher in this special field at Stanford University.

He was given a Fulbright grant for study at the Shakespeare Institute, Stratford-upon-Avon in 1954-55. For 13 years he was costume designer for the Oregon Shakespeare Festival at Ashland, and has also designed for Actor's Workshop in San Francisco and for the Shakespeare Company of San Diego.

Richard Digby Day comes from a very active year of engagements with the Sadler's Wells Company, London; the Everyman Theatre, Cheltenham, and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

DOUGLAS RUSSELL
. . . costume designer

A graduate of the latter school, he has directed plays in the Edinburgh International Festival, at the Middlesbrough Little Theatre, the Nottingham Playhouse and Everyman Theatre in Liverpool.

At the ripe age of 23, he promises to be one of England's most outstanding theatre directors.

SYMPHONY OUTDOORS

A free open-air concert will be given in Centennial Square, Sunday, June 27, by Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

The concert, one of a series of three, will be conducted by Otto-Werner Mueller. It will be amplified through a specially installed sound system.

A local brewery has financed this performance.

Some Might Rather Be Dead Than Bled

OTTAWA (CP)—If nuclear bombs ever fall on Canada, the survivors may have to pay higher taxes.

A new cabinet order outlining responsibilities of government departments in event of nuclear attack instructs the finance department to "advise cabinet respecting the imposition of emergency taxes."

The post office would distribute emergency change of address cards.

The justice department, among other things, would assist "in the identification of persons unable to identify themselves."

The labor department in a "national emergency government" would control and allocate all civilian manpower and set wage rates.

Five In Family Lost As Flood Flips Car

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—With Colorado still bearing most of the brunt, muddy cloudburst-fed rivers and streams spread damage through vast portions of the Rocky Mountain states and part of the southwest today.

Seventeen persons are known to have died in the flooding or for reasons directly attributable to floods. Unconfirmed reports in Colorado indicate that at least 11 other persons are missing in flooded parts of the state.

One such report said five members of the Manuel Guajardo family were swept away when waters overturned their car near Lamar. Guajardo, 36, the sole survivor, is a beet worker.

At La Junta, in the southeast part of Colorado, where the Arkansas River has made a virtual lake of the town for the last two days, 1,500 persons have received emergency vaccinations.

'Restrain War' Plea By PMs

LONDON (Reuters) — The Commonwealth peace mission tonight appealed to the warring factions in Viet Nam for "the utmost restraint in military operations" as a step toward an early ceasefire.

The appeal came in a statement from the British prime minister's official country residence, Chequers, from the four members of the mission—Prime Minister Wilson, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, and Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago.

Wilson launched his peace mission plan in the first major session of the current 21-nation Commonwealth prime ministers' conference Thursday.

The statement said the mission's function was to explore the circumstances in which a conference must be held to end the Vietnamese fighting.

SEEK GOOD CONDITIONS

"Meanwhile, in order to create the conditions in which the mission can carry through its work, the mission is appealing to all parties concerned to show the utmost restraint in military operations as a step toward a total ceasefire which the mission hopes will be established at the earliest possible opportunity."

It added the mission hoped to meet all the parties concerned in the Vietnamese dispute.

Conference sources said the mission was willing to meet the Viet Nam National Liberation Front (NLF), the political arm of the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, as part of a North Vietnamese delegation.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Wilson mounted a weekend battle to avert collapse of his peace mission plan.

As the Commonwealth conference went into a weekend recess, Wilson received his colleagues in groups at Chequers.

The visits provided Wilson with an opportunity for talks to convince the Commonwealth leaders to close ranks in support of the peace-seeking mission.

A spokesman said Canadian Prime Minister Pearson, travelling to the country homes of Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart during the weekend, is exerting all efforts to reassure African and Asian critics of the mission's value, though some countries still demanded that Wilson step down as mission chairman.

THREE CLASSES INCLUDED IN TIMES PHOTO CONTEST

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

Who said the days of the fast buck are gone?

Victoria Daily Times readers who are amateur photographers have the opportunity to make a bundle, with no more time or effort than it takes to flick a shutter.

Only requirements are a quick mind, a good eye, a steady hand and participation in the National Newspaper Snapshot Awards sponsored by The Times.

For their efforts the winners will share $50,000 of prizes including exotic trips to the far corners of the world and substantial cash awards.

Unless they are familiar with the photo contests of the past two years, contestants should first study the technical rules applying to the competition. A thorough study of today's page 16 ad, outlining rules and regulations, is suggested.

For the eager-beavers who want to start shooting before reading, here are a few tips:

The snaps (only black and white) must have been taken after July 1, 1964. The unmounted prints can be of any reasonable size.

Drifts Near Wash.

By RON SUDLOW

Battling mountainous seas and howling winds, two naval craft today failed to secure a line to the abandoned Laymore, carrying 149 tons of obsolete naval ammunition.

Standing by to ward off approaching merchant vessels and fishing craft were HMCS MacKenzie and naval auxiliary vessel Clifton.

HMCS Stettler took cover Friday night in Barkley Sound.

The vessels, at press time, were hove to off the Washington coast 60 miles south of Cape Flattery and 30 miles from land.

Commander H. J. Wade of Mackenzie said they were battling northwest winds and an increasing waves.

"It looks like no tow connection can be made today," he radioed.

The Clifton, which rescued the Laymore's 17-man crew from 70 mph gales and 30-foot waves Thursday evening left Victoria Friday night.

RETURNS FOR REPAIRS

She replaced the navy's ocean-going tug Heatherton which arrived at Esquimalt at 8 a.m. today for repairs to a generator which actuates her towing winch.

Capt. Bob Hooper of the towboat said weather conditions when they left the Laymore were "pretty well the same as Friday."

Winds were steady at 45 mph and gusting and 25-30-foot waves still pounded the vessels.

50-DEGREE PITCH

"Laymore was still pitching 40 to 50 degrees to either side when we left," he said.

Heatherton crept as close as 200 feet to the powerless, rudderless munitions vessel Friday and also sighted the fluorescent orange life raft used by her crew for four hours Thursday.

And Capt. Hooper today confirmed reports ammunition lashed to Laymore's decks had broken loose during the storm and was washed overboard.

DRIFTING SOUTH

By press time, Laymore had drifted 85 miles south of where she was abandoned because ammunition in the cargo hold shifted.

The ship is drifting against a northwest wind.

"During her drift she has crossed the approaches to most of the shipping lanes into the Strait of Juan de Fuca," Capt. Hooper added.

'NOT A MENACE'

But she is not considered a menace to shipping because navy vessels are standing by, transport department and U.S. Coast Guard officials said at noon.

Blank Shot Proves Hot —24 Hurt

GLADEWATER, Tex. (AP)—A rodeo clown firing what was supposed to be a blank charge peppered spectators with bird shot Friday night, wounding 24 persons and creating pandemonium.

Investigators said it obviously was an accident but they had not determined early today how a live shell got into the shotgun.

Of the wounded, 11 adults remained in hospitals overnight but attendants said none suffered serious injury. The others were dismissed after emergency treatment.

Police said the clown, Ken Arthur Boen, 41, of Fort Smith, Ark., told questioners he noticed before the performance that his box of blank shells was nearly empty, and he would need to buy more.

Father Held Knife Against Infant Son

A young man kept police at bay for 30 minutes this morning by threatening to use a knife on his five-months-old son if police made a move to get him.

Anthony Soulsby, 1142 Caledonia, was finally talked into coming out of his house.

He pleaded guilty in city court this morning to possession of an offensive weapon—a carving knife with an eight-inch blade.

Soulsby was remanded to next Saturday for a psychiatric report and sentence.

Constable Ken Horsman said he went to Soulsby's home at 1:50 this morning and found Mrs. Soulsby standing outside. She told him there had been a domestic quarrel and her husband was inside the house with their child.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby stood behind the glass door of his house and threatened police "If you try to enter I'll use this knife on the child and then myself."

The officer talked with Soulsby for 30 minutes before he let police inside. He stood behind the door holding the child in one arm and the knife in his other hand all the while he talked.

Cons. Horsman said Soulsby had been drinking but was not intoxicated. The child was unharmed.

Magistrate J. A. Byers asked Soulsby for an explanation of his conduct.

Soulsby replied, "I just lose my temper and get like that. I wouldn't harm the child."

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Soulsby had a conviction for breaking and entering five years ago and also for impaired driving.

ARMY COUP

Ben Bella Hinted Slain

ALGIERS — An army-backed coup carried out before dawn today ousted President Ahmed Ben Bella, 48, as a "diabolical dictator." By nightfall a revolutionary council that took over power was reported to be preparing charges of high treason against him.

A communique broadcast by Algiers radio said Ben Bella "has undergone the fate reserved by history for all despots."

Emerging as the strong man of the council, and signing its first declaration, was Col. Houari Boumedienne, vice-premier and defence minister.

The declaration said Ben Bella would "meet the fate of all despots." Besides treason, it accused him of abuse of personal power."

TROOPS PATROL STREETS

Most tanks which clattered into position before dawn had been withdrawn, although a few stood sentry outside some buildings. Troops units armed with sub-machine guns patrolled the streets.

COL. BOUMEDIENNE
. . . new strongman

The city was quiet and Algerians sat at sidewalk bistros sipping drinks. A few muttered dislike for Boumedienne and some said he had engineered the coup because of disagreement with Ben Bella on domestic matters.

Boumedienne, 40, an officer who had been associated with Ben Bella since the early days of Algeria's fight for independence, was said to have been trained either in Peking or Moscow. But The Associated Press reported one responsible source said Boumedienne "is definitely not pro-Chinese."

ADMIRES CASTRO

Diplomatic sources in Madrid said they had been informed the coup was accomplished by rightists within the Algerian armed forces. But Boumedienne is said to be an admirer of Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba and visited Havana last July.

Reuters news agency said Boumedienne, an ascetic, fervent Moslem, always has regarded the army as the core of a socialist society in his country.

A statement signed by Boumedienne and read over the radio said all power had been taken from Ben Bella. It added that Algeria would continue to honor all previous agreements and commitments with other countries.

PLEDGES FRIENDSHIP

Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika said in a statement that Algeria's foreign policy is non-alignment and friendship with all nations.
